Tourists Staying Longer

They Dig That Dixie Sun!

MIAMI (AP) — Tourism officials say Northern tourists who usually return home after Easter aren't leaving sunny Florida this year and officials believe their peak business will continue through summer. "This is the first time in 23 years that people have stayed on after Easter. All this sunshine is just like a magnet holding them down here into April," said Miami-area motel owner Rhea Gladwin, who termed business "just a miracle."

Despite the nation's economic pinch, Florida has had a record-breaking winter season. Miami tourism official Lew Price predicted, "If they use their welfare checks to visit us in the winter, I'm sure they'll use their rebate checks to come down in the summer."

Officials base their rosy predictions on these indicators:

(1) Florida's Division of Tourism is receiving more than 1,000 inquires daily from potential visitors.

(2) Auto-Train Corp. carried 33,079 passengers in March, its largest total since it began running between Florida and Washington in 1971; summer bookings are strong.

(3) Disney World at Orlando had a 50-per-cent rise in attendance during the past three months with a record 3.1 million visitors.

(4) One cruise line in Miami reports it is booked solid through the first week of July.

"From all measurable indicators, we are probably 15 per cent ahead of the 1973 record year both in terms of dollars spent and warm bodies coming in," says Landon Haynes, director of research for the state's Tourism Division.

DESCRIBED AS $220,000 CROP: State police from Paw Paw post said field tests indicated that 710 pounds of substance taken from auto early Saturday morning was marijuana with estimated street value of $220,000. Pot was put in bags for identification purposes and stored at state police post. Substance came from auto stopped in Lawrence township in Van Buren county after state police intelligence unit reported shipment was enroute to Michigan from Texas. Richard Castillo, 28, and his wife, Lucy, 26, both of Ennis, Texas, arrested in connection with case, demanded examination in Seventh district court on charges of possession of marijuana with intent to deliver. Each remains lodged in jail in lieu of $10,000 bond. (Staff photo)

Ford Gives Pep Talk To Nation

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — President Ford, rejecting forecasts of "depression at home and disintegration abroad" said today he sees cooperative growth and development throughout the world.

"My vision is one of peace," Ford said in the text of an address to the National Association of Broadcasters' meeting in Las Vegas. The text was made public before the President wound up a nine-day Easter holiday in Palm Springs and headed East.

While acknowledging "it is true that we have suffered setbacks at home and abroad," Ford declared:

"America will not give in to self-doubt nor paralysis of will power. Americans will not dismantle the defense of the United States. And we certainly will not adopt such a naive vision of the world that we dismantle our essential intelligence-gathering agencies. I can assure you that other superpowers are increasing — not decreasing — their military and intelligence capacities."

Ford made no direct reference to current inquiries into activities of the Central Intelligence Agency but, by indirection, he has increasingly defended the CIA and other intelligence units in recent public speeches.

The President, who canvassed the economic scene and threw a few brickbats at Congress as well as discussing the nation's role in the world, said in his text:

"There are some who see nothing but a grim future of depression at home and disintegration abroad. I reject that scenario. My vision is one of growth and of development worldwide through increasing interdependence of nations of the world.

"My vision is one of peace And my vision of Americans is of a people who will retain their self-respect and self-dependence so that this vision can emerge."

Ford asserted that so long as he is President, "Americans will neither resign from the world nor abandon hope of peaceful and constructive relationships with all people."

The President referred directly to setbacks in South Vietnam only in discussing federally promoted efforts to fly orphans here from that country.

Ford bore down on Congress for giving him a tax-cut bill that went beyond his request and for threatening to increase the

Baroda Man Killed In Car-Train Crash

UNION PIER — A 22-year-old Baroda man was killed Saturday night when the auto he was driving crashed into the side of a moving freight train north of here.

DONALD R. HEYN
Dies in crash

State police at New Buffalo said Donald R. Heyn, 1970 West Hinchman road, Baroda, was pronounced dead on arrival at St. Anthony's hospital, Michigan City, Ind., as a result of the crash.

The victim's father, Edward, is a cousin of Berrien County Treasurer William C. Heyn.

Police said the victim suffered massive head injuries.

According to police, the Heyn auto was westbound on Warren Woods road near Red Arrow highway in Chikaming township when it slammed into the side of a moving Chesapeake and & Ohio freight train. He was alone in the car, police said.

Flashing red warning lights at the crossing were in operation at the time of the 9:40 p.m. crash, police said. Troopers reported there were no skid marks on the pavement near the crossing and the cause of the crash is still under investigation.

The impact of the crash drove the auto into a nearby ditch, police said. The auto crashed into the fourth car of the 101-car train pulled by three engines, police said. Police said the train was traveling about 35 miles per hour at the time of the crash, but the speed of the auto had not been estimated.

11 Auto Deaths In Berrien County In 1975

The death was the 11th traffic fatality in the county this year.

Mr Heyn was employed at Garey Roofing company, St. Joseph. A 1970 graduate of Lakeshore High school, he was a veteran and was a member of St. Paul's Lutheran church, Stevensville. He was born June 27, 1952.

Survivors include his parents, Edward and Lillian Heyn; his grandmother, Mrs. Anna Sieroslawski, of St. Petersburg, Fla.; two sisters, Mrs. Harvey (Patricia) Luttrell, Buchanan, Mrs. Michael (Ann) Duensing, St. Joseph; and two brothers, Edward and Robert, both of Baroda.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday, at 11 a.m., at St. Paul's Lutheran church with burial in Ruggles cemetery, Baroda. Friends may call at Kerley and Starks funeral home at any time.

Many Are Ill-Equipped To Bring Up Viet Orphans

MIAMI (AP) — As Americans rush to adopt Vietnamese orphans, a Miami adoption specialist warns that some people are reacting to stories of young casualties of the Vietnam war and may not make suitable parents.

"This is a panic thing — I've seen it too often," said March Dickens, director of the Miami office of the Children's Home Society of Florida.

"I'd say that 70 per cent of the people who have applied for these children are not equipped to bring them up. There's a romance in this business of taking an overseas child."

Miami psychologist Dr. Edith Lord said the Vietnam stories have triggered a "come into my home and let me mother you" instinct among Americans

She said that many Americans are prompted by compassion and love to seek a Vietnamese child but others are driven by guilt, glamor and emotional problems.

"The press sort of played up the fact that our going to Vietnam to support a civil war was immoral, if not illegal," Dr. Lord said.

Some people reacted to that by adopting a Vietnamese child as "their chance to do something good."

She adds that there are certain types of parents who will make good mothers and fathers of Vietnamese orphans.

"The pinnacle of maturation occurs when an adult ceases to be a taker and becomes a giver. Such persons want to and can give of themselves freely to dependent people."

But she said adoption officials must weed out "carnivorous parents" who want to adopt to meet their own emotional needs.

"If you add the problems of culture and language difference, you're going to have a lot of headaches," she said.

Even if some children do wind up with unsuitable parents, Dr Lord said it shouldn't be disasterous. "Children are amazingly flexible and adaptable."

Dr. Michael Epstein, a Miami child psychologist, agreed that the Vietnamese children might run into problems here. "But at least they'll have food and stability and a house that won't get bombed every night."

The groups that have organized the current flights of orphans out of Saigon have said that all the children involved have adoptive parents waiting for them who went through regular adoption procedures.

BAY CITY, Mich. (AP) — A candlelight ceremony marked a legislative first in Michigan this weekend as two active lawmakers became the first ever to tie the marital knot while serving in the state House. A black-tie reception for some of Michigan's biggest political names followed the nuptials of state Reps. Coleen House of Bay City and John Engler of Mount Pleasant. Both are Republicans. Among the 470 guests on hand were 25 members of the legislature. After the reception, the newlyweds were scheduled to fly to a Caribbean honeymoon. On their return, they will live in a Lansing apartment but will maintain separate residences in their own districts. Engler, who is 26, was the youngest person ever elected to the state legislature when he won his seat four years ago at the age of 22. Miss House, 23, was the youngest woman ever elected when she won her first full term last November.

Michigan Payroll Grows Despite Milliken Order

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The state is employing a record number of people despite budget cutbacks and orders by Gov William Milliken to not fill vacancies.

According to state figures, the state had 56,890 classified employes in March, as well as 110 administrators, 851 legislators and their staffs, and 676 judicial workers.

The total is 58,627 persons, up 1,535 from last October when reports of state financial problems first came out.

Most of the increase has been a reflections of the recession.

Jobs have jumped almost five-fold from 1,006 to 5,004, in the Michigan Employment Security Commission to help handle the flood of applications for jobless benefits.

The state's soaring welfare load, plus state efforts to curb welfare payment errors, has added 507 employes to the Department of Social Services.

The Treasury Department added 124 workers to speed up income tax return handling, and the military affairs department added 79 workers to process the Vietnam veterans bonus.

Of the 20 major state departments, 14 showed increased employment ranging from 100 to 200 hundred workers. Only six showed reductions

Executive branch agency employment rose about 3 per cent and the legislative branch jumped about 13 per cent since last fall.

The number of judicial workers, including those in circuit and district courts, increased about 10 per cent Since October Gov Milliken and legislators have agreed on two budget cuts with the idea that job vacancies would go unfilled.

Milliken ordered a $13.4 million cut Dec. 16 and another $15 million cut March 4 to help make up for shrinking state revenue.

U.P. Statehood Issue Comes Alive Again

MARQUETTE, Mich. (AP) — Should Michigan's Upper Peninsula become the 51st state?

Marquette voters get a chance to express themselves on the long-simmering statehood issue in a special advisory referendum in November. The referendum has been authorized by the Marquette City Commission.

Various area business and political leaders are renewing the traditional statehood battle for the Upper Peninsula, saying statehood would allow better use of natural resources and prevent area residents from being governed by the whims of the more populous downstate regions.

Move To Repeal State Income Tax Increases

The Michigan Citizens Lobby which last year spawned repealing the sales tax on food and drugs is swinging into action to perform the same surgery on the cancer which its mischievous behavior activated.

The Lobby's Detroit headquarters last week revived it 1974 committee, Citizens to Cut Unfair Taxes (CUT), to launch a campaign to nullify the 18 per cent increase in the personal income tax from 3.9 to 4.7. The new rate takes effect May 1st, its one redeeming feature to most people since its impact on '75 income will be two-thirds of the 0.8 gain.

CUT will petition the legislature to cancel its action and if that fails, which predictably it will, the next step is to put the proposition on the 1976 ballot.

In announcing the program, Barbara Grossman, the Lobby's paid director, said, "At a time when the federal government finally is granting some much needed tax cuts to help middle income people trapped in this recession, it makes absolutely no sense for the state to turn around and take it back from us by raising the state income tax."

To which anyone can respond, "Amen."

Mrs. Grossman had indicated two weeks ago the Lobby would swing into action, stating at the time that her group did not intend for the sales tax repealer to be used as an excuse to raise other taxes or dream up new ones.

This rhetorical display is 24-karat sophistry.

Any number of people, this column included, warned last year that repealing the sales tax would leave no alternative but to jiggle the income tax because the repealer would leave a gaping hole in the state's budget.

It sounds great, as the Lobby campaigned last year, to advocate sweating the fat from the budget. It's something else to put that prayer to work.

The Lobby cleverly last year counted on most voters looking only at the chance to gain an immediate advantage for their pocketbooks and giving no thought to the warning which some of us vainly tried to put across.

Michigan went through the identical experience in 1932 and conceivably somebody in the Lobby's sanctum thumbed through the history books to borrow the formula.

A home owners organization sponsored an amendment to the state constitution limiting the tax on real estate to 15 mills and prohibiting outright a state real estate tax which up to that time funded most of Lansing's spending.

The argument sounded then was that between mortgage payments and real estate taxes home ownership in Michigan would soon become a memory.

The amendment met only token opposition at the polls.

In the following year the legislature enacted the sales tax as the quickest, most acceptable means to keep the state government in some semblance of running order.

It was a matter of but a few years until agile minds devised innumerable schemes to get around the 15-mill limitation and to concoct other taxes.

The sales tax repealer has the same inborn failure as the 15-mill limitation. It makes no provision for picking up the load it dumps.

Repealing the income tax boost follows in the same reckless pattern.

The Lobby could perform a real service if it would present a well rounded tax reform plan for the state, an idea last heard from when George Romney was Governor.

The legislature has consistently demonstrated its inability to come up with a sensible program and for partisan reasons is unwilling to accept any such thoughts from Governor Milliken.

Though we question the Lobby's willingness to forsake the popularity of partial surgery, somebody should give some thought to the patient; and since the Lobby is claiming the expert's role, let it try to fulfill it.

Precious Food Wasted

Before many Americans give up meat and snacks to help feed the starving people of the world, the governments of those people are going to have to do more to help themselves.

One expert claims that enough food is unnecessarily lost in some countries to insects, rodents, plant diseases and wasteful distribution methods to feed half a billion people.

The United Nations Food and Agricultural Organization estimates that even in comparatively developed Latin America, 40 per cent of crop yields are lost.

According to another authority, Melvin B. Randle, up to 50 per cent of the food grown in developing countries is wasted between the time it leaves the farm and the time it reaches the consumer. Randle, a former official of the U.S. Agency for International Development (AID), is president of a private firm that contracts with developing countries to teach them modern food distribution techniques.

Not only ignorance and primitive conditions but unstable governments, lack of consumer goods and politics must share the blame for low levels of agricultural productivity in many developing nations, charges yet another authority, Roy Bainer, emeritus dean of the College of j ngineering of the University of California in Davis.

He cites Chile as an example of a country where political unrest has undone advances. "It's a shame to see the potential of this country — with most of the natural resources found in California — going to waste."

In Laos, says Bainer, AID assisted in building diversion dams to supply irrigation water to farmers, making it possible for them to produce twice as much rice on two hectares of land as had been produced on three — and then the farmers refused to gqow rice on the third hectare.

Why? Because "the farmer's only concern was, and is, producing enough rice to meet the needs of his village. There is no incentive for hym to produce surplus rice for sale because there is little he can purchase with the money."

With more consumer goodwavailable, farmers might be encouraged to meet outside demands for rice. But then, in Laos, war has disrupzed market possibilities.

Despite it all, Baine remains an optimist. "It is hard to believe that man's ingenuity has reached the end of the line. Certainly we have the brains to overcome the problems.'

What seems to be lacking in too many countries is the will.

THINKS PRESIDENT MISSED THE BOAT

Editor,

President Ford "missed the boat" when he recently appealed to the U.S. Senate for a grant of 250 million dollars for further aid to beseiged South Vietnam (which the Senate refused).

It became unmistakably clear the senators who voted against this disbursement were not concerned with our country's long-standing and oft-repeated commitment to its allies or to the long-standing victims of Communist aggression in Asia; it is clear they were not concerned with the fate of the remaining millions of innocents in the invaded countries being overrun with a merciless, ruthless invader who long ago showed it had no scruples whatsoever and would tell any lie, take any vow, make any "peace agreement," to attain its own aims: Overrunning the entire Asian continent if at all possible (and after that — whatever other targets of opportunity afforded new "blood victims" to its war lust!); it is clear these senators were not the wholehearted enemies to imperialism or to world communism as they would like to be thought of as being; but they are interested in voter support when it comes time for re-election, and for some of them, that is the only primary concern they DO have.

That brings us to the crux of the matter: How President Ford "missed the boat" in making his plea to the Senate for their sanction of the 250 million dollars to South Vietnam to hold off the current Communist advance which has brought most of that country (area-wise) under the influence of the invading armies from the north.

By not authorizing the expenditure of the requested 250 million, a vast store of military arms and equipment worth anywhere from a half-billion to a full billion dollars (the news media quoted both amounts as being the value) fell as a ripe

Some 2,000 Benton Harbor voters Monday went to the polls and — Elected Louis Rahn city commissioner; defeated "fast time;" defeated the $25,000 Paw Paw avenue bridge bonds; elected William Murphy constable; rolled up a big majority for the Republican state ticket; reelected all of the city's four supervisors.

Women participated in Monday's election not only as voters, but as active candidates as well. Mrs. Minnie Kaltenbrun of Lake boulevard, St. Joseph, was a candidate for the board of supervisors from the third ward of that city, but was defeated. In Benton township May Peterson was elected justice of the peace, while Chikaming voters decided that Mary Pfauff would make a good constable. In Watervliet township Marguerite Wolcott, running on the Democratic ticket, was defeated for township clerk. Lydia Haid, candidate for treasurer of Coloma township, was beaten. May Best, Republican, met defeat at the hands of another woman down in Bertrand township. Her successful opponent was Emma House. Both were candidates for township clerk.

Ten years ago the energetic townspeople of Benton Harbor dreamed that some day Benton Harbor would be the leading city of Western Michigan. That dream has been realized for in 1900 Benton Harbor stands the most important port on the east shore of Lake Michigan. In population there are two or three cities that are ahead of this place but in push, pluck and business Benton Har bor leads them all. This year of all years is a prosperous one for this city and never before were business men so sanguine of the town's bright future. Factories are here and still coming, great improvements are under way and the supply of houses is not equal to the demand.

Spice In Bland Congress Stew

WASHINGTON — Up to the last couple of decades, Larry McDonald of Georgia would have fit nicely with the other chaps in the House of Representatives. Patriotic, religious, fiscally old hat, he's the kind of congressman routinely electd in America for nearly two centuries. Now however, the election trend is towards the institutionalization of a national mod squad — everyone an activist — and mossback McDonald is the odd man out.

Far out. An executive member of the John Birch Society, an officer in the "Movement to Restore Decency," an ammunition bearer for the National Rifle Association, he is in the sense of contemporary politics a sort of middle-aged (40) Methusela. "Larry," as a colleague says, "is vitally concerned with the problems of the 1950s."

The wags are merciless with McDonald; the joke in the House pressroom is that he is working up an amendment to the Monroe Doctrine. But the subject sees nothing funny at all. He has some harsh views concerning the flighty politics and politicians of the recent American experience ("Being elected to the House was the low point of my life") and all peers considered, he's happy to be the philosophical wallflower of newly elected representatives.

McDonald feels the joke of recent governmental trends is not on the old fashioned but on the new fangled. He reasons that the populist fads, uncoupled from vision, have brought the nation to the brink of any number of disasters. For example, McDonald says the government has already prepared an emergency way out of congressionally induced financial catastrophe: "I can't prove it, but my information is the day will come when the government will tell us to turn in ten old bills for one new dollar. I think the new money will be colored to identify denominations — green for $1, blue for $5 and red for $10. It's not a rumor, it's fact."

Fact or no, McDonald says he would not be surprised anymore at anything the government were to do n violation of republican principles and Constitutional regulation. Considering the people who control government — Rockefeller, Kissinger and that type — "I don't think there's any question we're heading for dramatic changes in the way we live and think." McDonald believes Henry and the "Rock" are leading us down the lane of one worldism, where two classes exist, high and low, and where the low has naught but tears.

Here then is the reason McDonald, a urologist by trade, is suddenly in government himself. "Not one person in 50 in this country knows what's really going on in Washington," he says. "so I see my job as one of education." To this end the congressman has been bruising some noses around town recently, calling spades spades as he says it, by using the legal immunity of his office to criticize what he views as Communist-inspired political activity.

Not since Joe McCarthy, perhaps, has any member of Congress felt such an urge to color groups and individuals red. McDonald has charged a lengthy list of antiwar, conservation and populist groups (and group members) with Marxist sympathies. Privately, he does the same with well-known members of congress and high officers in the administration. Wounded targets are bitter, claiming the man is "the worst kind of bigot — a political one." But for his part, McDonald says he's merely telling the truth as he knows it.

New Morton Job Polite Demotion

WASHINGTON — President Ford's sudden shift of Secretary of Interior Rogers Morton to the Commerce Department was a political kick downward, and it means that Morton's influence over energy policy is already slipping away.

Morton's performance as the Administration's chief energy spokesman has been a disappointment to the White House. He had terrified western state officials by pressing for a vast program of tapping the region's coal reserves without much apparent concern for the negative environmental impact. He had irritated the President by publicly supporting a big increase in the Federal gasoline tax at a time the President was publicly opposing such an increase.

He looked foolish by announcing the government would proceed with bids for offshore oil drilling while the Supereme Court was still pondering the question of whether the states or the Federal Government owned the rights to such offshore resources. And he had been severely criticized by Sen. Henry Jackson and others for moving too slowly to encourage greater drilling for oil and digging for coal.

The seashore environmental alliance recently accused him of a conflict of interest because his brother, former Sen. Thruston Morton, is on the board of directors of an oil company that has leased acreage in the Federal waters of the Gulf of Mexico.

The White House fibbed about the reason for its transfer of Morton from one Cabinet post to a lesser one. Press secretary Ron Nessen described the move as a promotion, claiming that the President wanted Morton to be in a better position to spur private industry to develop so-called exotic fuels from coal.

But highly reliable sources inside the White House indicate the President wanted to get Morton out of the energy business. They have been friends since they met 12 years ago as GOP congressional colleagues, and Ford did not wish to embarrass him. Hence the Commerce openly seemed like a perfect solution. Morton was given no choice in the matter.

"This White House doesn't like to fire people," a plainspoken staffer explained.

Morton will temporarily remain as chairman of the Energy Resources Council. But the power over administration of energy programs will now shift to his successor at Interior.

The Commerce post is such a dog that speculation immediately arose that Morton would really be occupying his time there as Maurice Stans used to do, privately raising funds among businessmen for the next Presidential campaign. But Stans got into a lot of legal trouble for those efforts. And White House aides acknowledge that the role of Secretary of Commerce is not going to be synonymous any more with chief fundraiser "after what happened."

The Commerce post is the least important and least effective in the entire Cabinet. Over the years it has been stripped of all significant functions and dreams. Knowledgeable businessmen don't deal with Commerce, when they want something done; they deal directly with Congress, the White House, or the Department that has authority over their particular problem.

The Commerce Department has the responsibility for encouraging American tourism, overseeing the Census Bureau, coordinating regional economic development commissions, keeping economic statistics, and encouraging international trade and small businesses. It also contains under its umbrella the Maritime Administration, the National Bureau of Standards and the Patent Office.

Move To Repeal State Income Tax Increases

The Michigan Citizens Lobby which last year spawned repealing the sales tax on food and drugs is swinging into action to perform the same surgery on the cancer which its mischievous behavior activated.

The Lobby's Detroit headquarters last week revived it 1974 committee, Citizens to Cut Unfair Taxes (CUT), to launch a campaign to nullify the 18 per cent increase in the personal income tax from 3.9 to 4.7. The new rate takes effect May 1st, its one redeeming feature to most people since its impact on '75 income will be two-thirds of the 0.8 gain.

CUT will petition the legislature to cancel its action and if that fails, which predictably it will, the next step is to put the proposition on the 1976 ballot.

In announcing the program, Barbara Grossman, the Lobby's paid director, said, "At a time when the federal government finally is granting some much needed tax cuts to help middle income people trapped in this recession, it makes absolutely no sense for the state to turn around and take it back from us by raising the state income tax."

To which anyone can respond, "Amen."

Mrs. Grossman had indicated two weeks ago the Lobby would swing into action, stating at the time that her group did not intend for the sales tax repealer to be used as an excuse to raise other taxes or dream up new ones.

This rhetorical display is 24-karat sophistry.

Any number of people, this column included, warned last year that repealing the sales tax would leave no alternative but to jiggle the income tax because the repealer would leave a gaping hole in the state's budget.

It sounds great, as the Lobby campaigned last year, to advocate sweating the fat from the budget. It's something else to put that prayer to work.

The Lobby cleverly last year counted on most voters looking only at the chance to gain an immediate advantage for their pocketbooks and giving no thought to the warning which some of us vainly tried to put across.

Michigan went through the identical experience in 1932 and conceivably somebody in the Lobby's sanctum thumbed through the history books to borrow the formula.

A home owners organization sponsored an amendment to the state constitution limiting the tax on real estate to 15 mills and prohibiting outright a state real estate tax which up to that time funded most of Lansing's spending.

The argument sounded then was that between mortgage payments and real estate taxes home ownership in Michigan would soon become a memory.

The amendment met only token opposition at the polls.

In the following year the legislature enacted the sales tax as the quickest, most acceptable means to keep the state government in some semblance of running order.

It was a matter of but a few years until agile minds devised innumerable schemes to get around the 15-mill limitation and to concoct other taxes.

The sales tax repealer has the same inborn failure as the 15-mill limitation. It makes no provision for picking up the load it dumps.

Repealing the income tax boost follows in the same reckless pattern.

The Lobby could perform a real service if it would present a well rounded tax reform plan for the state, an idea last heard from when George Romney was Governor.

The legislature has consistently demonstrated its inability to come up with a sensible program and for partisan reasons is unwilling to accept any such thoughts from Governor Milliken.

Though we question the Lobby's willingness to forsake the popularity of partial surgery, somebody should give some thought to the patient; and since the Lobby is claiming the expert's role, let it try to fulfill it.

Precious Food Wasted

Before many Americans give up meat and snacks to help feed the starving people of the world, the governments of those people are going to have to do more to help themselves.

One expert claims that enough food is unnecessarily lost in some countries to insects, rodents, plant diseases and wasteful distribution methods to feed half a billion people.

The United Nations Food and Agricultural Organization estimates that even in comparatively developed Latin America, 40 per cent of crop yields are lost.

According to another authority, Melvin B. Randle, up to 50 per cent of the food grown in developing countries is wasted between the time it leaves the farm and the time it reaches the consumer. Randle, a former official of the U.S. Agency for International Development (AID), is president of a private firm that contracts with developing countries to teach them modern food distribution techniques.

Not only ignorance and primitive conditions but unstable governments, lack of consumer goods and politics must share the blame for low levels of agricultural productivity in many developing nations, charges yet another authority, Roy Bainer, emeritus dean of the College of j ngineering of the University of California in Davis.

He cites Chile as an example of a country where political unrest has undone advances. "It's a shame to see the potential of this country — with most of the natural resources found in California — going to waste."

In Laos, says Bainer, AID assisted in building diversion dams to supply irrigation water to farmers, making it possible for them to produce twice as much rice on two hectares of land as had been produced on three — and then the farmers refused to gqow rice on the third hectare.

Why? Because "the farmer's only concern was, and is, producing enough rice to meet the needs of his village. There is no incentive for hym to produce surplus rice for sale because there is little he can purchase with the money."

With more consumer goodw available, farmers might be encouraged to meet outside demands for rice. But then, in Laos, war has disrupzed market possibilities.

Despite it all, Baine remains an optimist. "It is hard to believe that man's ingenuity has reached the end of the line. Certainly we have the brains to overcome the problems.'

What seems to be lacking in too many countries is the will.

Court Battle Looms On Assets For Fairplain

DEMOCRACY IN ACTION: Robert Dennison, 981 Carley Lane, St. Joseph, waves 1975-76 township budget he says shortchanges parks department. (Staff photo)

CITY CAN'T START FROM SCRATCH

By DICK DERRICK
SJ City Editor

Fairplain incorporation would be abandoned if a circuit judge rules against dividing township assets, St. Joseph township residents heard Saturday at the annual meeting.

It would not be economically feasible, Richard G. Hagenauer, chairman of the Committee for the City of Fairplain, said to start the new city from scratch.

Hagenauer was responding to a report by St. Joseph township supervisor, Orval L. Benson, that the township would seek a ruling from the Ingham County Circuit court, how assets would be divided.

The assets are various municipal properties such as park land and a fire station now owned by the Townships of St. Joseph and Benton.

Hagenauer said the Committee for the City of Fairplain was going on the assumption the new city would retain one-third of the St. Joseph township assets and one-fourth of Benton township assets.

The new city also would expect to assume its share of bonded indebtedness for water and sewer services, Hagenauer said.

In other matters at the annual meeting, the township's $1,841,137 budget was cirticized on grounds that it shortchanges the the parks department. The township board is scheduled to adopt the budget at its regular meeting tonight. The budget does not contain pay raises for elected officials.

There unanimous agreement agreement among 42 people at the meeting one topic — the township should fight the I-94 penetrator, with all its resources.

Benson, presiding over his 16th annual township meeting, reviewed action the township had taken in its attempts to head off incorporation of the City of Fairplain. Signing up petitioners for an election must await delivery of official Boundary Commission documents, he said.

One of the steps the township plans to take immediately is to ask the Ingham County Circuit court to rule on division of assets.

Benson said the township is asking the courts to say: "who gets what?" Benson said attorneys for the township, Fairplain and the attorney general's office do not agree.

Hagenauer, of 2356 Lora drive, Fairplain, debated the incorporation issue virtually alone with the crowd in attendance composed mainly of foes of incorporation.

The court decision would go a long way in clarifying the issue, Benson said. Hagenauer said if the judge ruled the new city would not get any of the township assets the incorporation of the new city would not be economically feasible.

Hagenauer said the one third net worth of St. Joseph township is already located in Fairplain in the forms of buildings and equipment. The one fourth net assets of Benton township probably would have to be paid in cash or movable equipment. Hagenauer said the home rule law on which the proposed new city backers are basing their plans specifies the new city would get a proportionate share of the township's net worth.

Thus a court ruling on actual division of assets would be welcome at this time, Hagenauer said.

Clerk Bill Payne Smith described the budget as an austerity document with major increases in only two areas — an expanded police department and water and sewer debt retirement.

The police department budget goes from $85,916 (actual expenditures, $95,392) to $126,850. Much of the increase, however, is covered by addition of two patrolmen through Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) funds, Smith said. The budget includes a $22,140 CETA grant.

Last year the 1974-75 budget listed $838,483 in sewer, water and interceptor debt funds. The debt service will take $1,106,770 this year. Smith said the township is ahead of the debt retirement schedule.

A vocal assault on the budget by Robert Dennison, 981 Carley Lane, and Jerry Veine, 123 Fairlawn, ended when residents refused to approve, by a 9 to 4 vote, to recommend transfer of $7,490 in interest earnings from the township building fund to the parks department.

Dennison argued the township appropriated $33,600 last year and with a balance on hand of $5,784 the parks department had a budget of $39,384. This year, he said, most of the $7,552 balance on hand is already earmarked and the lower appropriation of $32,775 in reality.

Dennison moved the township continue to fight construction of the proposed I-94 limited access penetrator through the township. He argued it would reduce the efficiency of the township fire department by splitting the township with a concrete barrier. His motion was unanimously approved.

Reports of other departments:

POLICE—The department recorded 101,786 patrol miles; made 944 business, 2,259 school and 668 residential checks, recorded 21 forcible entries (the same as last year) and recovered over $30,000 in stolen property.

TAXES—Approximately 94 per cent of the 3,351,124 taxes spread or $3,124,876, have has been collected.

FIRE—Station No. 1 (west of the St. Joseph river) reported 63 calls and $13,000 fire loss. Station No. 2 (Fairplain) reported 31 calls and $11,460 fire loss.

BUILDING—One hundred and sixty three permits issued accounted for $2,372,647 in construction which included 27 houses for $1,209,600; 119 alterations for $214,347; 16 commercial for $588,700 and one industrial for $360,000. This compared to last year when 145 permits including 55 houses totaled $3,753,468 in construction.

Chief Lincoln Officials Get $1,000 Increases

By ALAN AREND
Staff Writer

Lincoln township residents Saturday approved a proposed budget of $265,000 for fiscal 1975-76 operations of Lincoln township government, $18,000 more than last year's figure.

The proposed budget, approved at the township's annual meeting, included $72,000 earmarked for township official's budget, and increase on $7,000 over last year.

Supervisor Ernest Hauch, Clerk Mrs. Bernice Trefheway, and Robald Schultz, administrative assistant, all will receive $1,000 pay hikes. Hauch will receive $12,000 annually, Mrs. Trefheway, $10,000 and Schultz, $11,000. Gerald Wahl, township treasurer, will get $7,000 an increase of $500, but trustees will remain on a $25 per diem basis. A total of $12,000, the same as last year was set aside for clerical salaries.

Police protection budget was raised from $25,000 to $30,000 and the allotment for fire protection from $20,000 to $25,000.

Other major estimated expenditures for 1975-76 included $20,000 for road and bridge improvement; $10,000 for street light installation; $27,330 for parks, beaches and recreation; $20,000 for water and sewer projects; $13,000 for the township improvement fund; $10,000 for engineering fees; and $8,000 for cemetery maintenance.

Hauch reported the township's tentative state equalized valuation for 1975 should top $75 million, compared to $69,731,726.

Lester White, police administrator, reported that 551 summons were issued by his force in 1974, down 51 from the previous year. A total of 76 arrests were made compared to 81 in 1973. He said police officers will be cracking down on vandals "who persist in turning on township fire hydrants," and asked for citizen support in bringing an end to the problem.

Lloyd Both, Tri-Unit fire chief, said his department answered 156 fire calls in 1974, 25 more than in 1973. He said the cost of fire protection for residents of Lincoln and Royalton townships and Stevensville amounts to $2.07 per person per year, roughly 10 per cent less than St. Joseph city residents.

Sam Krettzer, township building inspector, reported that 204 permits were issued for construction in 1974, 70 less than 1973. Total new construction costs were $2,461,499 compared to $3,872,975 in 1973.

Hauch also announced that regular township meetings will be held the second Tuesday of each month at 8 p.m. in the township hall, Stevensville, the same as last year. However the board will also schedule a special meeting for the fourth Tuesday of every month, unless it is determined there is no need for a special meeting.

ENERGY VS. ECOLOGY

Divergent Views At Nuclear Forum

A meeting on the safety of nuclear power plants Saturday night generated discussion and information on the controversial issue, but failed to reach any agreements on the future of nuclear-produced energy.

The Nuclear Forum, held in an area sandwiched between two nuclear power plants, offered a debate by four nuclear authorities whose viewpoints ranged from the total abandonment of nuclear plants to the continued development of the plants to meet the nation's energy needs.

More than 200 people attended the meeting at the Unitarian church, 601 Main street, St. Joseph.

The forum was sponsored by the American Association of University Women, Grand Mer Association, League of Women Voters, Unitarian Fellowship of Berrien County, YWCA, and United for Survival, Inc.

People who attended the meeting were encouraged to sign a petition as they left, demanding the end of nuclear power plants and the development of solar energy as an alternative. The petition was reportedly supplied by United for Survival, Inc.

Panelists at the forum were Dr. Dean E. Abrahamson, professor of public affairs and chairman of the All-University Council on Environmental Quality at the University of Minnesota; Roger W. Sinderman, health physicist for Consumer Power Co.; Richard Sandler, freelance consultant for environmental groups and associate of Ralph Nader, and Dr. G. Hoyt Whipple, radiological health professor at the University of Michigan. Moderator of the forum was John Paul Taylor, of St. Joseph.

The panelists' discussion centered around the possibilities of an accident or sabotage and the effects of the storage of plutonium, the nuclear waste from the power plants which must be stored for more than 1,000 years.

"Regardless of the lack of alternatives, the U.S. must move toward the total abandonment of nuclear power plants as a source of energy," Dr. Abrahamson opened.

He said the plutonium wastes from the nuclear plants are the most toxic material ever used commercially and that nuclear radiation accidents will occur.

Abrahamson lashed out at the argument that there was an economic need for nuclear-produced energy. "The electrical rate increases consumers are now experiencing are due largely to the electrical companies' early commitment to nuclear power plants," he said.

Sinderman said that Consumers Power believed that nuclear generation of electricity was a "proven technology" and that there were greater risks involved in everyday life. He said experts have theorized that a nuclear accident could occur only once in 10,000 years.

Sinderman noted that the Consumers-operated Palisades nuclear power plants was back in operation and that the problems which closed the plant down were "mechanical rather than nuclear."

Sandler said that the safety question of nuclear power plants was not a technical one, but a moral one. He said the plants currently have stored 3,000 Hiroshima bombs worth of toxic nuclear wastes which would have to be stored and guarded for over 1,000 years. "Do we have the right to leave this legacy of this enormous amount of nuclear waste just for the sake of a few extra kilowatts of power?" he summarized.

Dr. Whipple said the problems of nuclear power plants presented engineers with no more problems than they had already experienced with nuclear arms waste. "There is no substance so benign, that someone could not get into trouble with it if he wasn't careful," he said.

Whipple added, however, that nuclear engineers are a "cautious lot" and that they had 30 years of experience in the field. He suggested that scientists could turn the nuclear wastes from the power plants into an asset rather than a liability by recycling it for some other use.

A television documentary, "Powers That Be," which was narrated by Jack Lemmon, was also shown at the nuclear forum. The film, which Pacific Gas & Electric Co. is currently attempting to suppress, is an account of the criticisms which have been made of nuclear power plants with rebuttals from nuclear power plant officials.

Benton Approves Boost In Salaries

Benton township residents Saturday approved a record $1.6 million operating budget that provides pay raises for elected officials and employes, without local tax increases during fiscal 1975-76.

The City of Fairplain issue was not mentioned during the annual meeting, attended by only 35 people, including township officials.

The new $1,655,373 township budget is $108,723, or about 9 per cent, higher than the current budget of $1,546,650.

Salaries of the supervisor and clerk were raised from $11,000 to $12,000 per year.

The treasurer also will be paid $12,000, under a new policy. The treasurer presently is paid $8,250 as a part time employe. The post recently was reclassified as full time, with general fiscal duties extended into financial operations of the growing parks department.

Clark Catheryn Sirk said other employes will receive raises, averaging 7½ per cent.

Trustees will continue to be paid receive $25 per meeting.

Major budgetary expenditures are, police protection, $446,839 (up $63,060); fire protection, $351,500 (up $39,400); environmental protection and related services, $160,000 (down $73,000, because of a surplus budgeted last year for current projects such as Dial-A-Ride); rubbish collection, $113,003 (up $12,911); and general outlays administered by the township board, $131,095 (up $21,468).

Local taxes will provide $890,100, or 53 per cent, of the budget, which becomes effective on July 1. Other revenue includes state sales tax returns, $433,753; and federal revenue sharing, $230,000.

The township will continue to levy 7 mills, including 1 mill approved Saturday for general operating, and 3 extra voted mills, each, for the police and fire departments.

Among reports made at the meeting:

Supervisor — Martin J. Lane said the Pipestone industrial park as well on the way to completion and said that when filled, its plants would form a $50 million tax base and provide employment for about 7,300 people.

Model Cities — Melvin Farmer, Jr., said the program is closing out this year on a $665,000 budget and 18 projects. Farmer voiced the only comment on Dial-A-Ride, saying it was becoming successful, largely be because of its director, Wilbert Brown, a former Model Cities official.

Neighborhood development — Judd Spray, township director of rehabilitation, said the second and final year saw 24 residences rehabilitated, a water system extended into the Chicago avenue — Pine street area, and work underway on storm sewers in this area.

Parks — William Marquart described plans to develop Robbins park to include two basketball courts, a baseball field and shelter for at a cost of $49,300 in local, state and federal funds. He said as soon as weather permits, construction will start on a $64,000 boat ramp project at the river park.

Public Housing — Director Sammie Smith reported the 300 units produced rental income of $175,065, while other income including interest on investment boosted total revenue to $186,755. Total operating expenses were $254,907, but the federal Housing and Urban Development department contributed $79,127, leaving a balance of $10,975. Smith said an $808,109 federally-financed modernization project is underway.

SALES TAX LOSS

Hagar Budget Cut By $42,309

A 1975 budget calling for $171,938, down $42,309 from last year, was unanimously approved by Hagar township residents during the annual township meeting Saturday.

Approximately 30 people attended the meeting and approved the budget as proposed by the township board.

Edward Broderick, township supervisor, said the budget was down because it couldn't be determine how much income will be lost because of repeal of the sales tax on food and drugs.

No pay raises were included for elected officials.

Major budget reductions from last year are (1975) budget figure followed by 1974 figure:

Contingent (general) expenditures $34,067 from $55,893; fire and water $25,000 from $30,000; Hagar park, 0 from $5,000, and recreation, $2,000 from $17,000.

Of the $171,936 for 1975, $30,000 was budgeted for the second year in a row for the fire department and ambulance service.

Township Trustee John Bergstedt, head of the township fire board, $12,800 would be for utilities and supplies; $7,000 for wages for the the fire department, ambulance service and fire board and $5,200 for fire bills to Benton township and Coloma fire departments for when they provide assistance. Also included was $5,000 for an equipment sinking fund. Bergstedt explained there is $5,000 already in the fund.

Residents at the meeting also voted to have Broderick appoint a committee (to include members of the fire department) to study the possibility of dropping contracts with Benton township and Coloma fire departments and forming mutual fire agreements with both.

Residents and members of the fire department voiced displeasure with having to pay for Benton township and Coloma fire department services in emergency situations. Under mutual fire agreements each fire department would exchange services when needed for free.

Court Battle Looms On Assets For Fairplain

CITY CAN'T START FROM SCRATCH

By DICK DERRICK
SJ City Editor

Fairplain incorporation would be abandoned if a circuit judge rules against dividing township assets, St. Joseph township residents heard Saturday at the annual meeting.

It would not be economically feasible, Richard G. Hagenauer, chairman of the Committee for the City of Fairplain, said to start the new city from scratch.

Hagenauer was responding to a report by St. Joseph township supervisor, Orval L. Benson, that the township would seek a ruling from the Ingham County Circuit court, how assets would be divided.

The assets are various municipal properties such as park land and a fire station now owned by the Townships of St. Joseph and Benton.

Hagenauer said the Committee for the City of Fairplain was going on the assumption the new city would retain one-third of the St. Joseph township assets and one-fourth of Benton township assets.

The new city also would expect to assume its share of bonded indebtedness for water and sewer services, Hagenauer said.

In other matters at the annual meeting, the township's $1,841,137 budget was cirticized on grounds that it shortchanges the the parks department. The township board is scheduled to adopt the budget at its regular meeting tonight. The budget does not contain pay raises for elected officials.

There unanimous agreement agreement among 42 people at the meeting one topic — the township should fight the I-94 penetrator with all its resources.

Benson, presiding over his 16th annual township meeting, reviewed action the township had taken in its attempts to head off incorporation of the City of Fairplain. Signing up petitioners for an election must await delivery of official Boundary Commission documents, he said.

One of the steps the township plans to take immediately is to ask the Ingham County Circuit court to rule on division of assets.

Benson said the township is asking the courts to say: "who gets what?" Benson said attorneys for the township, Fairplain and the attorney general's office do not agree.

Hagenauer, of 2356 Lora drive, Fairplain, debated the incorporation issue virtually alone with the crowd in attendance composed mainly of foes of incorporation.

The court decision would go a long way in clarifying the issue, Benson said. Hagenauer said if the judge ruled the new city would not get any of the township assets the incorporation of the new city would not be economically feasible.

Hagenauer said the one third net worth of St. Joseph township is already located in Fairplain in the forms of buildings and equipment. The one fourth net assets of Benton township probably would have to be paid in cash or movable equipment. Hagenauer said the home rule law on which the proposed new city backers are basing their plans specifies the new city would get a proportionate share of the township's net worth.

Thus a court ruling on actual division of assets would be welcome at this time, Hagenauer said.

Clerk Bill Payne Smith described the budget as an austerity document with major increases in only two areas — an expanded police department and water and sewer debt retirement.

The police department budget goes from $85,916 (actual expenditures, $95,392) to $126,850. Much of the increase, however, is covered by addition of two patrolmen through Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) funds, Smith said. The budget includes a $22,140 CETA grant.

Last year the 1974-75 budget listed $838,483 in sewer, water and interceptor debt funds. The debt service will take $1,106,770 this year. Smith said the township is ahead of the debt retirement schedule.

A vocal assault on the budget by Robert Dennison, 981 Carley Lane, and Jerry Veine, 123 Fairlawn, ended when residents refused to approve, by a 9 to 4 vote, to recommend transfer of $7,190 in interest earnings from the township building fund to the parks department.

Dennison argued the township appropriated $33,600 last year and with a balance on hand of $5,784 the parks department had a budget of $39,384. This year, he said, most of the $7,552 balance on hand is already earmarked and the lower appropriation of $32,775 in reality.

Dennison moved the township continue to fight construction of the proposed I-94 limited access penetrator through the township. He argued it would reduce the efficiency of the township fire department by splitting the township with a concrete barrier. His motion was unanimously approved.

TAXES—Approximately 94 per cent of the 3,351,124 taxes spread or $3,124,876, have has been collected.

FIRE—Station No. 1 (west of the St. Joseph river) reported 63 calls and $13,000 fire loss. Station No. 2 (Fairplain) reported 31 calls and $11,460 fire loss.

BUILDING—One hundred and sixty three permits issued accounted for $2,372,647 in construction which included 27 houses for $1,209,600; 119 alterations for $214,347; 16 commercial for $588,700 and one industrial for $360,000. 'Your Problems' By Ann Landers

Atheist Speaks Her Piece

Dear Readers: Recently I said I was waiting for permission to print a good letter from an atheist and use the writer's name. Today, permission was granted. Here it is: The author, Madalyn Murray O'Hair, founder of the Society of Separationists, Inc.

Dear Ann Landers: I am addressing you because I receive thousands of pieces of mail each year with clippings of your column enclosed, as you continue to refer persons with troubles to their minister, rabbi and priest.

The atheistic community of the United States comprises about 20 per cent of the population. This means you are offending a helluva lot of people week in and week out. Your columns are replete with religious references also, in other veins.

The Society of Separationists, Inc., which I founded, is dedicated to the complete and absolute separation of state and church, i.e., of religion and government. Atheists are good people, fine citizens, educated and mature adults. Please stop offending them by pretending they don't exist. Telling an atheist to go to his minister with a family problem is like telling a Jew to light a candle for the Virgin Mary. Consideration, understanding, and empathy extends to us also, along with everyone else. — Madalyn Murray O'Hair

Dear Madalyn Murray O'Hair: I have seen you on TV and am impressed by your sincerity and courage.

I, too, am a firm believer in the separation of religion and government, but after that we part company.

I'm sorry if you feel I am offending "a helluva lot of people week in and week out." The reason my columns are "replete with religious references" is because I happen to be a person who HAS religious beliefs and my column reflects my convictions.

When one has an audience of 60 million readers, seven days a week, 365 days a year, it is impossible to tailor every reply to fit every segment of society. Surely you are not suggesting that I stop telling people to seek help from a minister, rabbi or priest when you yourself have stated that 80 per cent of the people in the United States do hold religious beliefs. (Actually, it's 77 per cent, according to a recent Gallup poll.) I frequently advise people to seek help from physicians, psychiatrists, lawyers, and marriage counselors, as well.

I'm sure many atheists are fine citizens, educated and mature, but I see no reason for those individuals to be offended by my references to God. The way I see it, if the advice doesn't fit they can ignore it.

Some Are Stinkers

Dear Ann Landers: You are a traitor to your sex. Instead of sticking up for us women who really need it, you always support the selfish, inconsiderate husbands who should get a swift kick in the barstool.

ANN LANDERS

Why don't you be honest with your readers and tell it like it is? Some of these jerks we're stuck with are just plain stinkers and they wouldn't come home for Elizabeth Taylor. Sign me — Former Ann Fan In Racine

Dear Former: I agree that some men are stinkers — but who picked them? Since you brought it up, beauty doesn't guarantee faithful homecoming. Elizabeth Taylor is now in the process of considering Number Six.

Are drugs O.K. if you learn how to control them? Can they be of help? The answers are in Ann Landers's new booklet, "Straight Dope on Drugs." For each booklet ordered, send a dollar bill, plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope (20 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Illinois 60120.

Awards System Out Of Hand

The awards system has gotten out of hand in this country. (Excuse me, I get a cookie when I get the lead to my story down.)

There's the Oscars, the Emmys, the Tonys, and the Grammys, not to mention statues of gold for the best commerical, funniest person, entertainer of the year, best dressed, worst dressed, Miss America and her comical sidekick, Miss Congeniality, Mother of the Year, the all-stars of everything and the best use of Pillsbury.

It would be hard to find one person in this world who isn't walking around with an acceptance speech in his pocket with the exception of children.

It's strange. We all start out raising children with the reward system. We reward them for burping, eating, sleeping, knowing which one in the room is Da Da, and the growing and losing of teeth.

The ultimate in rewards continues through toilet training. I was a guest in a home one evening where the hostess was summoned by her toddler to the bathroom to catch her performance.

The mother emerged and said to me, "She wants you to see what she has done." Reluctantly, I peeked into the bowl, gave her a V for Victory sign and returned to my seat where the hostess said, "Well?"

"It far exceeded my expectations," I said.

"But what did you give her?"

I returned to the bathroom and gave her a standing ovation.

Then suddenly, the praise and rewards end. Personally, I have seen an awful lot of originality among children that should not go unrewarded. Why not a night to honor children who are outstanding in the following categories?

FOR THE MOST ORIGINAL COSTUME out of a dirty clothes hamper worn by a child to have his school picture taken.

FOR THE MOST ORIGINAL STORY by a teen-ager of why the keys are locked in the car in the cemetery with the lights on.

FOR THE MOST LOGICAL EXPLANATION of why it takes three boys to carry a note to Miss Lewis in the girls' gym.

FOR THE MOST CONVINCING PERFORMANCE by a son that wearing boots to school will destroy a human life.

MOST OUTSTANDING SPECIAL EFFECTS AWARD to a boy's bedroom that makes your eyes smart.

MOST AMUSING MONOLOGUE by a daughter claiming, "I got to be me" when she is wearing your entire wardrobe.

Excuse me. I get another cookie when this space is filled.

Oswald: "The 'Ifida' club is easy to get into. In fact, we know few players who haven't qualified for membership."

Jim: "South became a member after going down at three notrump. He remarked, 'Ifida seen that my diamond suit was a self-blocker, I'da made my contract'."

Oswald: "South won the spade lead with dummy's jack and promptly led a club to his queen. West won with the ace and shifted to a heart. East was allowed to win and continued hearts. South took the third heart in dummy, cashed four diamonds but could not get to his hand to score the last two."

Jim: "South was very unlucky. East had made a brilliant defensive play when he continued hearts instead of leading a spade back. Had he done so, South could have ducked and discarded a diamond from dummy. Later on he could unblock by discarding another diamond on the ace of spades. East's continuation of hearts ruined this chance."

Oswald: "South had two ways to make his contract. The simple one would have been to overtake dummy's jack of spades with his queen, lead the low spade right back and discard a diamond right then. The second diamond would go on the ace of spades."

Dr. Lester Coleman

I've eaten mussels all my life and enjoyed them. I ate some in a European country and within minutes I got violently sick. Can I expect to have this same reaction now to American mussels?

Mr. E.R.B., Calif.

Dear Mr. B.:

The discharge of oil and refuse from ships and tankers has upset the healthy balance that formerly existed in the sea.

In the light of man's own destruction of natural resources, it is hard to believe that any area exists where oysters, clams, mussels and fish can be free of pollution.

It is said that mussels sometimes contain a particular toxin which is not destroyed by cooking. This substance, mytilotoxin, can produce violent cramps, nausea, muscle weakness and even paralysis.

This resembles the symptoms that you describe after your experience in Europe. I would be inclined to be very wary about deliberately exposing yourself again to an avoidable distressful situation.

Cancer of the penis is relatively rare. Even physicians in the specialty do not see this frequently.

'Your Problems' By Ann Landers

Atheist Speaks Her Piece

Dear Readers: Recently I said I was waiting for permission to print a good letter from an atheist and use the writer's name. Today, permission was granted. Here it is: The author, Madalyn Murray O'Hair, Founder of the Society of Separationists, Inc.

Dear Ann Landers: I am addressing you because I receive thousands of pieces of mail each year with clippings of your column enclosed, as you continue to refer persons with troubles to their minister, rabbi and priest.

The atheistic community of the United States comprises about 20 per cent of the population. This means you are offending a helluva lot of people week in and week out. Your columns are replete with religious references also, in other veins.

The Society of Separationists, Inc., which I founded, is dedicated to the complete and absolute separation of state and church, i.e., of religion and government. Atheists are good people, fine citizens, educated and mature adults. Please stop offending them by pretending they don't exist. Telling an atheist to go to his minister with a family problem is like telling a Jew to light a candle for the Virgin Mary. Consideration, understanding, and empathy extends to us also, along with everyone else. — Madalyn Murray O'Hair

Dear Madalyn Murray O'Hair: I have seen you on TV and am impressed by your sincerity and courage.

I, too, am a firm believer in the separation of religion and government, but after that we part company.

I'm sorry if you feel I am offending "a helluva lot of people week in and week out." The reason my columns are "replete with religious references" is because I happen to be a person who HAS religious beliefs and my column reflects my convictions.

When one has an audience of 60 million readers, seven days a week, 365 days a year, it is impossible to tailor every reply to fit every segment of society. Surely you are not suggesting that I stop telling people to seek help from a minister, rabbi or priest when you yourself have stated that 80 per cent of the people in the United States do hold religious beliefs. (Actually, it's 77 per cent, according to a recent Gallup poll.) I frequently advise people to seek help from physicians, psychiatrists, lawyers, and marriage counselors, as well.

I'm sure many atheists are fine citizens, educated and mature, but I see no reason for those individuals to be offended by my references to God. The way I see it, if the advice doesn't fit they can ignore it.

ANN LANDERS

Some Are Stinkers

Dear Ann Landers: You are a traitor to your sex. Instead of sticking up for us women who really need it, you always support the selfish, inconsiderate husbands who should get a swift kick in the barstool.

Why don't you be honest with your readers and tell it like it is? Some of these jerks we're stuck with are just plain stinkers and they wouldn't come home for Elizabeth Taylor. Sign me — Former Ann Fan In Racine

Dear Former: I agree that some men are stinkers — but who picked them? Since you brought it up, beauty doesn't guarantee faithful homecoming. Elizabeth Taylor is now in the process of considering Number Six.

Are drugs O.K. if you learn how to control them? Can they be of help? The answers are in Ann Landers's new booklet, "Straight Dope on Drugs." For each booklet ordered, send a dollar bill, plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope (20 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Illinois 60120.

Awards System Out Of Hand

The awards system has gotten out of hand in this country. (Excuse me, I get a cookie when I get the lead to my story down.)

There's the Oscars, the Emmys, the Tonys, and the Grammys, not to mention statues of gold for the best commerical, funniest person, entertainer of the year, best dressed, worst dressed, Miss America and her comical sidekick, Miss Congeniality, Mother of the Year, the all-stars of everything and the best use of Pillsbury.

It would be hard to find one person in this world who isn't walking around with an acceptance speech in his pocket with the exception of children.

It's strange. We all start out raising children with the reward system. We reward them for burping, eating, sleeping, knowing which one in the room is Da Da, and the growing and losing of teeth.

The ultimate in rewards continues through toilet training. I was a guest in a home one evening where the hostess was summoned by her toddler to the bathroom to catch her performance.

The mother emerged and said to me, "She wants you to see what she has done." Reluctantly, I peeked into the bowl, gave her a V for Victory sign and returned to my seat where the hostess said, "Well?"

"It far exceeded my expectations," I said.

"But what did you give her?"

I returned to the bathroom and gave her a standing ovation.

Then suddenly, the praise and rewards end. Personally, I have seen an awful lot of originality among children that should not go unrewarded. Why not a night to honor children who are outstanding in the following categories?

FOR THE MOST ORIGINAL COSTUME out of a dirty clothes hamper worn by a child to have his school picture taken.

FOR THE MOST ORIGINAL STORY by a teen-ager of why the keys are locked in the car in the cemetery with the lights on.

FOR THE MOST LOGICAL EXPLANATION of why it takes three boys to carry a note to Miss Lewis in the girls' gym.

FOR THE MOST CONVINCING PERFORMANCE by a son that wearing boots to school will destroy a human life.

MOST OUTSTANDING SPECIAL EFFECTS AWARD to a boy's bedroom that makes your eyes smart.

MOST AMUSING MONOLOGUE by a daughter claiming, "I got to be me" when she is wearing your entire wardrobe.

Excuse me. I get another cookie when this space is filled.

Oswald: "The 'Ifida' club is easy to get into. In fact, we know few players who haven't qualified for membership."

Jim: "South became a member after going down at three notrump. He remarked, 'Ifida seen that my diamond suit was a self-blocker, I'da made my contract'."

Oswald: "South won the spade lead with dummy's jack and promptly led a club to his queen. West won with the ace and shifted to a heart. East was allowed to win and continued hearts. South took the third heart in dummy, cashed four diamonds but could not get to his hand to score the last two."

Jim: "South was very unlucky. East had made a brilliant defensive play when he continued hearts instead of leading a spade back. Had he done so, South could have ducked and discarded a diamond from dummy. Later on he could unblock by discarding another diamond on the ace of spades. East's continuation of hearts ruined this chance."

Oswald: "South had two ways to make his contract. The simple one would have been to overtake dummy's jack of spades with his queen, lead the low spade right back and discard a diamond right then. The second diamond would go on the ace of spades."

Crime Victims' Assistance Tops Agenda

By MARY SCHEIER
Associated Press Writer

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The legislature returns from its Easter break Tuesday with bills on crime victims' compensation and red-light turns main items on the agenda.

The Senate is scheduled to debate a bill providing monetary compensation for crime victims.

In the House, a bill permitting motorists to make right turns at red lights is up for debate.

The crime compensation bill would not replace goods or money lost as a result of burglaries or muggings. But it would provide help for injured victims or their relatives who face serious financial difficulties from medical expenses or lost wages resulting from the crime.

Sen. Patrick McCollough, D-Dearborn, sponsor of the bill, and the Senate Fiscal Agency estimate the program would cost the state about $1 million for awards and approximately $200,000 in expenses. Although this is a small portion of the state budget it does add to state expenses at a time when the state is trying to cut every corner it can.

One possible solution, McCollough suggests, is that the federal government will enact similar legislation, providing federal funds for the state programs.

The bill's major provisions:

—Establish a crime victims compensation board to consider and investigate claims and grant awards.

—Define who is eligible for the awards. The definition generally says eligible recipients are the crime victim, surviving relatives or a person who depended on the victim for support.

—Set standards for eligibility. Thise include the loss of at least $100 in expenses for medical care or services, or loss of two continuous weeks' earnings or support.

—Establish requirements for obtaining an award, such as reporting the crime within 48 hours; filing for the award within 90 days; actual physical injury, and the suffering of serious financial hardship.

—Place limits on awards. Generally the limits equal the medical expenses and loss of earnings or support, but not more than $100 per week or $15,000 per crime.

—Reduce awards by the amount of insurance payments, public funds granted or an emergency award that might be granted immediately in cases of extreme hardships.

Supporters say the state should be responsible when it fails to prevent crime and that people in need are entitled to public aid.

Crime Victims' Assistance Tops Agenda

By MARY SCHEIER
Associated Press Writer

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The legislature returns from its Easter break Tuesday with bills on crime victims' compensation and red-light turns main items on the agenda.

The Senate is scheduled to debate a bill providing monetary compensation for crime victims.

In the House, a bill permitting motorists to make right turns at red lights is up for debate.

The crime compensation bill would not replace goods or money lost as a result of burglaries or muggings. But it would provide help for injured victims or their relatives who face serious financial difficulties from medical e lpenses or lost wages resulting from the crime.

Sen. Patrick McCollough, D-Dearborn, sponsor of the bill, and the Senate Fiscal Agency estimate the program would cost the state about $1 million for awards and approximately $200,000 in expenses. Although this is a small portion of the state budget it does add to state expenses at a time when the state is trying to cut every corner it can.

One possible solution, McCollough suggests, is that the federal government will enact similar legislation, providing federal funds for the state programs.

The bill's major provisions:

—Establish a crime victims compensation board to consider and investigate claims and grant awards.

—Define who is eligible for the awards. The definition generally says eligible recipients are the crime victim, surviving relatives or a person who depended on the victim for support.

—Set standards for eligiblity. Thkse include the loss of at least $100 in expenses for medical care or services, or loss of two continuous weeks' earnings or support.

—Establish requirements for obtaining an award, such as reporting the crime within 48 hours; filing for the award within 90 days; actual physical injury, and the suffering of serious financial hardship.

—Place limits on awards. Generally the limits equal the medical expenses and loss of earnings or support, but not more than $100 per week or $15,000 per crime.

—Reduce awards by the amount of insurance payments, public funds granted or an emergency award that might be granted immediately in cases of extreme hardships.

Supporters say the state should be responsible when it fails to prevent crime and that people in need are entitled to public aid.

Berrien Township Meetings Reflect Economy . . .

Nationwide economic problems of inflation coupled with recession township meetings across Berrien county Saturday.

On one hand, budgets in 18 of the 22 townships went up with the primary cause listed as higher operating costs while on the other hand, new programs and expanding services drew little support.

Pay raises for elected officials, usually widespread during the annual sessions, were voted in only nine of the townships.

One township supervisor took a $1,000 pay cut so that an assessor to help him in assissing duties could be hired.

Watervliet and Coloma townships approved seeking more of a non-voted tax rate to help meet mounting costs.

Stories on meetings in St. Joseph, Benton, Lincoln and Hagar townships are page 3. Accounts of annual meetings in Lake and Coloma townships are on page 19.

Stories on other township meetings in Berrien county follow:

Bainbridge

Thirty Bainbridge township residents approved a $147,655 budget for township governmental operations at the annual meeting Saturday, up $30,208 from last year's budget of $117,447.

Major expenses in the new budget include $37,000 for improvments on Randall, Carmody and Arndt roads.

Two new items added to the budget include police, $3,000 and ambulance, $5,000.

Supervisor Leonard Smith Jr. said funds allocated for policing would be used to increase police patrols of the township when the board feels it is necessary.

The ambulance allocation is in preparation for providing monies for furnishing ambulance service to township residents in view of the pending shutdown of a privately operated service June 30.

According to Smith, $25,000 has been allocated to a revolving fund for any township improvements, while $6,500 has been budgeted for replacing two voting machines and the purchase of one additional voting machine.

Residents voted against formation of a lake control board for fighting weed control problems in Pipestone Lake. The residents felt the board would be too powerful and could propose additional lake projects with no public appeal procedures.

Denial to form the lake board also prohibited the formation of a special assessement district.

Residents approved holding township meetings on the first Monday of each month at 7 p.m. in the township hall.

Mrs. Virginia Kibler, a Coloma school teacher, was reappointed the board's representative on the Watervliet library board.

Baroda

BARODA — A $93,576 budget for operating Baroda township government in 1975-76, including pay raises for three key officials, was approved at the annual township meeting Saturday.

The budget is $13,873 over last year's budget of $79,703.

Clerk Emil Nitz said the raises for the supervisor, clerk and treasurer were approved by the township board in January. The raises will be effective for the new fiscal year.

Under the boosts, the supervisor is to receive $4,200, compared to $3,600, while both clerk and treasurer are to receive $3,600. They both had been receiving $2,900.

Nitz said $7,500 of the projected budget increase would come in road work funds. He said the figure for the new year would be $15,000 compared to $7,500 last year.

In other areas, Nitz said a township cleanup day was set for Saturday, May 3. No garbage or big trees would be handled in the pick-up, however.

The regular monthly board meeting is to be held on the third Monday of each month as in the past year.

Twenty-four people attended the 2½-hour meeting.

Berrien

BERRIEN CENTER — Berrien township board was authorized to purchase 20 acres of land for expanding Union cemetery during the township's annual meeting Saturday.

The land is to cost $18,000. It is located off Pokagon road near M-140 and is to be acquired through Ralph Laverty.

The board also was given the go ahead to hire a sexton to care for Union cemetery as well as the four other cemeteries within the township.

In other areas, a proposal that property value of land in the township be studied was approved. A proposed $8,000 budget to finance the study was boosted to $12,500. Supervisor Lowell Bruce said he expected to complete the work by the end of the fisal year.

Pay raises for the supervisor, clerk and treasurer were approved through a series of proposals from the 15 people present. The increases were not initially contained in proposed expenditures.

The supervisor's salary was boosted $1,000 to $6,000 by a near unanimous vote after a move to cut the proposed increase to $500 was ruled out of order.

The clerk, Mrs. Robert (Esther) Sommers, was granted an $800 pay increase after an initial proposal for $600 was amended by the people. The action places the annual salary at $3,000.

Treasurer James Stover received a $500 boost, to $3,000, when an initial proposal from the 15 was increased by $200.

With the increases, projected expenditures for the year were set at $151,475, or $31,225 over the $120,250 of the last fiscal year.

Creation of a five-member bicentennial committee also was approved.

Township residents voted to continue an investigation on whether Berrien should have its own police force, a study launched by the board during the last year.

The township board will again meet on the third Monday of each month, at 8 p.m.

Bertrand

NILES — An $82,365 budget was approved by Bertrand township residents during Saturday night's annual township meeting.

Clerk Trella Rough said the budget increased $9,330 over last year's figure of $73,035. Part of the increase was due to the added expense of $1,200 for the data processing of tax statements by the county, she said.

The rest of the increase was attributed to the increased costs of supplies.

The six people present also approved renewal of a one-mill property tax for operation of the township fire department. The levy is expected raise about $13,000, Miss Rough said.

Township board meetings were again set for the second Thursday of the month, at 8 p.m.

Buchanan

BUCHANAN — A Buchanan township budget of $111,000 for fiscal year 1976-77 was adopted by some 30 township residents at the township's annual meeting Saturday.

The new budget, adopted a year in advance as is the custom in the township, calls for about $10,500 more in expenditures than the 1975-76 budget, according to township officials.

There are no raises included in the 1976-77 budget for elected township officials.

The 1974-75 budget was $99,500.

Increases will go the township planning commission to develop a master township plan and for improvements of the township hall, roof repairs and parking lot expansion, officials said.

Charles Wesner, the township fire chief, told the board and township residents that the department is currently considering the purchase of radio monitors to be kept in homes of firemen.

The monitors would be used as a system of simultaneous broadcast of fire alarms and locations of the fires, Wesner said.

Chikaming

LAKESIDE — Chikaming township residents approved a 1975-76 budget of $171,080 for township governmental operations at the annual township meeting Saturday. The new budget is about $22,825 above the 1974-75 budget.

Budget increases were allocated for the fire and police departments, mostly to upgrade or purchase new equipment, according to township Clerk Mrs. Lena Abrahamsen.

The increases bring the fire department budget to $30,010 and the police departmentto $34,020, she said.

An additional $2,000 was allocated to the parks and recreational board or improvement of stairs leading to township beaches.

The 26 people attending the two-hour meeting also approved $500 raises for the clerk, treasurer, police chief, building inspector and cemetery sexton.

VICTIM: The victim of reshuffling in the Equal Employment Opportunity commission was Chairman John Powell, forced to resign from that post recently. He left under pressure from White House.

The raises bring the salary of the police chief to $10,000; clerk and treasurer each to $5,500 yearly; the sexton to $7,000; and the building inspector to $3,500, Mrs. Abrahamsen said.

The supervisor did not get a raise this year. His salary is $7,000.

Galien

GALIEN — Galien township residents approved a $47,273 budget for township governmental operations at Saturday's annual township meeting.

Clerk Russell Babcock said the budget was down $2,774 from last year's $50,047 budget. He said the decrease came about because the township would have $6,024 remaining from last year's budget, compared to $10,000 remaining the year before. The drop, he said, meant proposed expenditure had to be cut accordingly.

In other areas, township board meetings were set for the first Tuesday after the first Monday of each month, at 7:30 p.m.

Babcock said 12 people attended the brief meeting held in the township hall.

New Buffalo

NEW BUFFALO — A New Buffalo township budget of $123,224 for the 1975-76 year was approved during the annual township meeting here Saturday.

The new budget is $1,831 more than last year's expenditures of $121,393.

Thirty-two people attended the meeting which lasted 3½ hours.

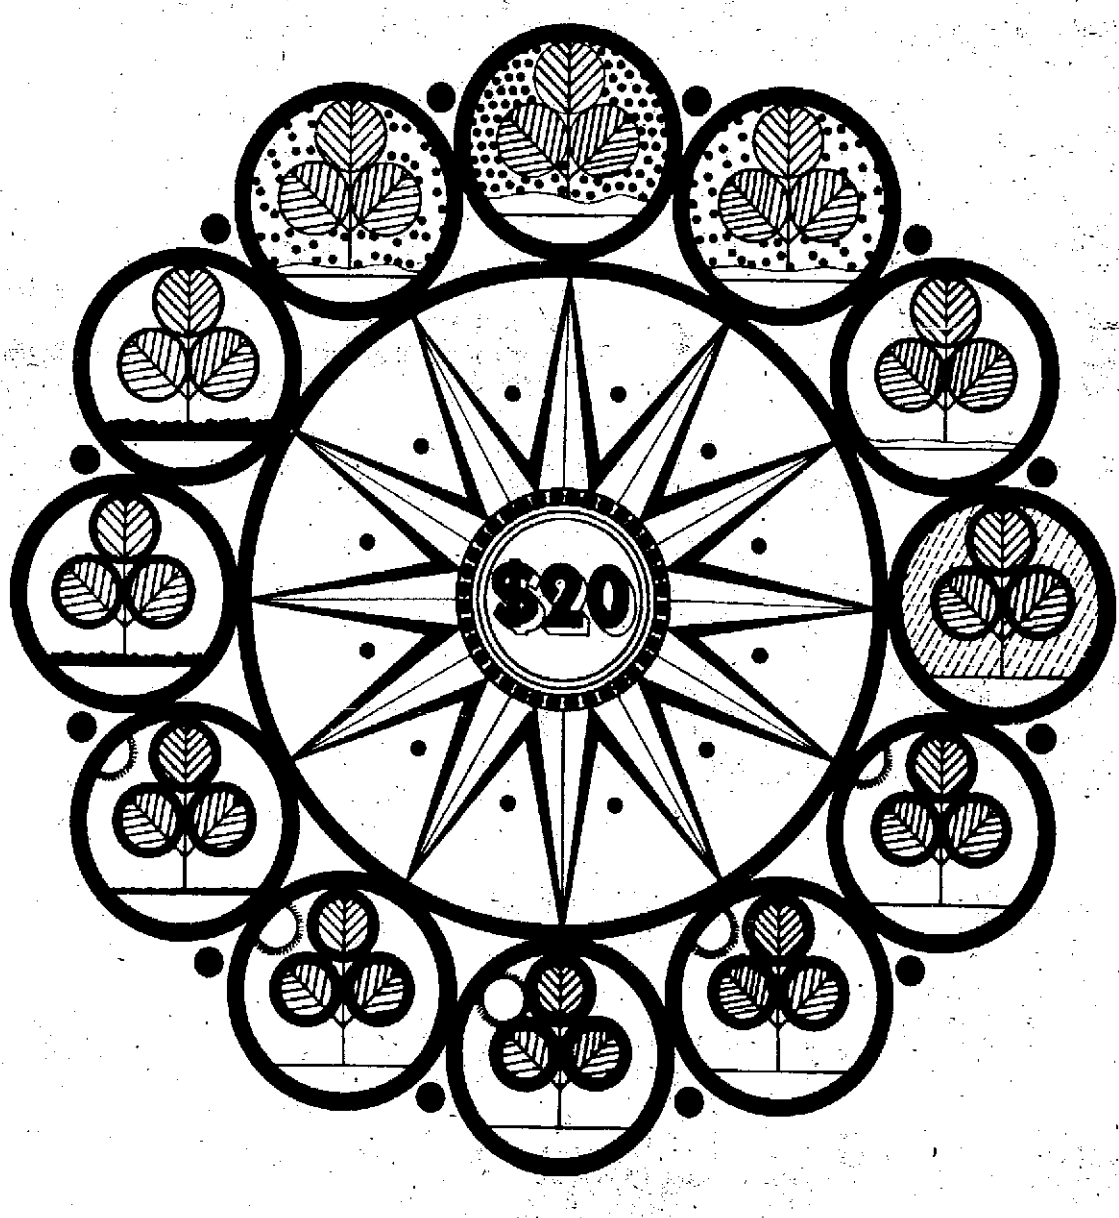

Supervisor Joseph Svehla reported that the township's estimated state equalized valuation on real and personal property would be approximately $26 million.

Included in this year's budget are funds for the purchase of a fully equipped fire truck and overall improvement in the fire department equipment; long range recreational programs;

and completion of a tri-party agreement with Three Oaks and the city of New Buffalo on joint ownership of a base radio system for fire and emergency assistance.

In other areas, residents approved the public library board's annual request for revenue equal to that generated from one-third of a mill in property tax. The library budget of $27,508 was accepted and Fred Fleming and Mrs. Olive Stromer were re-elected to three year terms on the board.

Residents approved a $10 contribution to a summer recreation program for each township member. The contributions will come from revenue sharing funds.

Also from revenue sharing funds will be the cost for employing an architect to draw up plans for a proposed Galien river recreational park and ambulance service for township residents.

The board was authorized to have an "inexpensive" building constructed to serve as an equipment shed for storing snow plows, garden equipment and tools and the antique fire truck.

The board was also authorized to have eight four-cubic yard waste containers provided for township residents. Svehla said the cost would be $7,200 a year.

Residents instructed the board to notify New Buffalo city that some residents are opposed to the location and height of proposed bridge spanning Galien river at Whittaker street.

Niles

NILES — Niles township residents approved a $2,500 pay increase for township Supervisor John McDonald during Saturday afternoon's annual township meeting.

About 100 people attended the meeting held in the Brandywine high school, but their ranks had dwindled by the time the pay increase for McDonald was introduced over two hours later by Frank Fabiano, Niles.

The vote in favor of the pay hike, bringing McDonald's salary to $10,500 a year, was 34 to 18.

Township residents in February rejected a $4,000 raise sought by McDonaldby a vote of 191 to 10p at a special township meeting.

In other areas, a tentative budget of about $750,979 was approved, an increase of $223,339 over last year.

McDonald said that a major portion of the hike would not mean an additional expense to township taxpayers. He said that $179,921 of the increase was due to the addition about 22 federally-funded CETA jobs and the expense would also be paid by the federal government.

The supervisor said the $750,979 was tentative because the budget had called for a six per cent salary increase for all regular township employes, but that in a special meeting held Friday night, the township board voted instead to grant a straight $520 yearly pay increase.

The $520 hike will average about 6 per cent, but no final budget figure will be available until the new pay hike is computed and the the budget was approved as amended at the Friday night board meeting.

A motion to seek a special millage levy not to exceed one and one-half mills for the township's park and recreation district was approved.

McDonald announced that public works department supervisor Wayne Stevens, 56, was retiring after serving for three years.

and completion of a tri-party agreement with Three Oaks and the city of New Buffalo on joint ownership of a base radio system for fire and emergency assistance.

In other areas, residents approved the public library board's annual request for revenue equal to that generated from one-third of a mill in property tax. The library budget of $27,508 was accepted and Fred Fleming and Mrs. Olive Stromer were re-elected to three year terms on the board.

Residents approved a $10 contribution to a summer recreation program for each township member. The contributions will come from revenue sharing funds.

Also from revenue sharing funds will be the cost for employing an architect to draw up plans for a proposed Galien river recreational park and ambulance service for township residents.

The board was authorized to have an "inexpensive" building constructed to serve as an equipment shed for storing snow plows, garden equipment and tools and the antique fire truck.

The board was also authorized to have eight four-cubic yard waste containers provided for township residents. Svehla said the cost would be $7,200 a year.

Residents instructed the board to notify New Buffalo city that some residents are opposed to the location and height of proposed bridge spanning Galien river at Whittaker street.

Niles

NILES — Niles township residents approved a $2,500 pay increase for township Supervisor John McDonald during Saturday afternoon's annual township meeting.

About 100 people attended the meeting held in the Brandywine high school, but their ranks had dwindled by the time the pay increase for McDonald was introduced over two hours later by Frank Fabiano, Niles.

The vote in favor of the pay hike, bringing McDonald's salary to $10,500 a year, was 34 to 18.

Township residents in February rejected a $4,000 raise sought by McDonaldby a vote of 191 to 10p at a special township meeting.

In other areas, a tentative budget of about $750,979 was approved, an increase of $223,339 over last year.

Berrien's Townships Eye Park, Road Improvements

Oronoko township governmental operations, some 20 per cent higher than last year's budget, was approved Saturday at the township annual meeting.

The budget totalled $195,843, compared to $162,550 in the last budget.

Supervisor Robert Feather told the 10 township residents at the meeting that the salary for the assessor was the only significant difference between the two budgets.

An assessor — Tom Russell — was hired in July last year, but not included in last year's budgeting. He receives an annual salary of $12,500.

Feather said the other differences were increases to meet inflationary costs.

Salaries for the township board members, which were raised 10 per cent last year, were not changed at this year's meeting. The supervisor will continue to receive $7,200 annually, the clerk and treasurer, $4,200, and the trustees $675.

In other areas, the audited statement of operation for 1974-75 showed the township with $65,286 more receipts than expenditures. Total receipts were $207,302, and expenditures were $142,016.

The township also spent $12,612 in the cemetery fund, $4,780 in the building ordinance fund, and $60,297 of federal revenue sharing.

Treasurer Robert King reported that tax collections this year were about 96 per cent, better than most previous years.

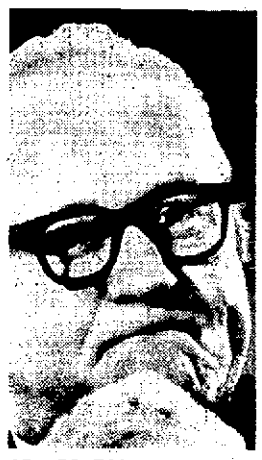

Pipestone

EAU CLAIRE — A 1975-76 budget of $116,042 for Pipestone township governmental operations was approved by seven township residents during the annual township meeting Saturday.

The budget was $2,612 over last year's budget of $113,430 and included some $60,000 for road improvements. Of the amount, approximately $46,000 was carried over from last year's appropriation, according to Herbert Hasse, township clerk.

Roads to be improved were Hochberger road, Staley and Kirk roads.

Also included in the budget were pay increases for elected township officials. The hikes were from $4,100 to $4,500 for Hazen Harner Jr., supervisor; $2,000 to $2,700 for Hasse and Richard Skibbe, treasurer; and from $25 to $35 per meeting for Pat Kirk and George Wesner, trustees.

OTHERS, TOO: CIA was not alone in intercepting private mail. U.S. Chief Postal Inspector William J. Cotter told House Civil Liberties subcommittee that federal, state and local law enforcement agencies made more than 8,500 requests to his department to open citizens' mail over the past two years.

Royalton

Royalton township board was given authority Saturday to purchase 22 acres along the St. Joseph river for park or recreational purposes.

The approval came from 24 people attending the township's annual meeting.

The land, located between Miners and Marquette Woods roads, will cost $6,750. It is to be bought from Indiana and Michigan Electric company.

In other business, a 1975-76 budget of $102,863, down $7,923 from last year's budget of $110,785, was approved. Pay raises of $1,940 for elected township officials were included.

The decrease in the budget was due primarily to a reduction in fire equipment from $16,000 to $5,000, according to Otto Jasper, clerk.

Annual salary hikes approved included Harley Marschke, supervisor, from $4,200 to $5,000; Jasper and Allan Stockman, treasurer, from $2,600 to $3,100 each; and Trustees Edward Kretchman and Francis Stump, from $350 to $420 each.

It was reported that 104 building permits covering $1,373,834 in construction work were issued over the past year. Thirty of the permits were for new homes at an average cost of $39,477.

Sodus

SODUS — It was the consensus of the 15 people attending the annual Sodus township meeting Saturday that the township board should decide whether to join an ambulance authority if it is formed.

Last year, the board withdrew its $100 monthly subsidy to Action Ambulance, along with several other municipalities.

On March 31, the St. Joseph city commission voted to join a proposed community emergency ambulance service provided that six other local governments also affiliate.

Under the proposal, a contribution made to the emergency ambulance service by the participating member would be on the basis of population.

Other Municipalities involved include Benton Harbor and the townships of Benton, Lincoln, Royalton and St. Joseph.

Township residents in need of help can still contact Action, Rampart Ambulance service or the sheriff's department for ambulance service, according to Carrol Cox, township clerk.

In other areas, resident authorized the board to buy property, valued up to $5,000, as future park and recreational sites.

A 1975-76 budget of $85,000, up $3,700 from last year's budget of $81,300, was approved. Major reason for increase, according to Cox, was an addition of $2,000 for future capital improvements.

Annual salaries for elected township officials were set the same as last year. Supervisor Fred Froehlich will receive $4,500; Cox and Ronald Schroeder, treasurer, $3,100 each; and Trustees Ward Collins and Harold Fox, $600 each.

Roads to be improved were Hochberger road, Staley and Kirk roads.

Also included in the budget were pay increases for elected township officials. The hikes were from $4,100 to $4,500 for Hazen Harner Jr., supervisor; $2,000 to $2,700 for Hasse and Richard Skibbe, treasurer; and from $25 to $35 per meeting for Pat Kirk and George Wesner, trustees.

OTHERS, TOO: CIA was not alone in intercepting private mail. U.S. Chief Postal Inspector William J. Cotter told House Civil Liberties subcommittee that federal, state and local law enforcement agencies made more than 8,500 requests to his department to open citizens' mail over the past two years.

Royalton

Royalton township board was given authority Saturday to purchase 22 acres along the St. Joseph river for park or recreational purposes.

The approval came from 24 people attending the township's annual meeting.

The land, located between Miners and Marquette Woods roads, will cost $6,750. It is to be bought from Indiana and Michigan Electric company.

In other business, a 1975-76 budget of $102,863, down $7,923 from last year's budget of $110,785, was approved. Pay raises of $1,940 for elected township officials were included.

The decrease in the budget was due primarily to a reduction in fire equipment from $16,000 to $5,000, according to Otto Jasper, clerk.

Annual salary hikes approved included Harley Marschke, supervisor, from $4,200 to $5,000; Jasper and Allan Stockman, treasurer, from $2,600 to $3,100 each; and Trustees Edward Kretchman and Francis Stump, from $350 to $420 each.

It was reported that 104 building permits covering $1,373,834 in construction work were issued over the past year. Thirty of the permits were for new homes at an average cost of $39,477.

Sodus

SODUS — It was the consensus of the 15 people attending the annual Sodus township meeting Saturday that the township board should decide whether to join an ambulance authority if it is formed.

Last year, the board withdrew its $100 monthly subsidy to Action Ambulance, along with several other municipalities.

On March 31, the St. Joseph city commission voted to join a proposed community emergency ambulance service provided that six other local governments also affiliate.

Under the proposal, a contribution made to the emergency ambulance service by the participating member would be on the basis of population.

Other Municipalities involved include Benton Harbor and the townships of Benton, Lincoln, Royalton and St. Joseph.

Township residents in need of help can still contact Action, Rampart Ambulance service or the sheriff's department for ambulance service, according to Carrol Cox, township clerk.

In other areas, resident authorized the board to buy property, valued up to $5,000, as future park and recreational sites.

A 1975-76 budget of $85,000, up $3,700 from last year's budget of $81,300, was approved. Major reason for increase, according to Cox, was an addition of $2,000 for future capital improvements.

Annual salaries for elected township officials were set the same as last year. Supervisor Fred Froehlich will receive $4,500; Cox and Ronald Schroeder, treasurer, $3,100 each; and Trustees Ward Collins and Harold Fox, $600 each.

Oaks township residents during the township's annual meeting here Saturday.

The new budget is about $20,000 more than the 1974-75 budget and provides for salary increases for the supervisor, clerk and treasurer.

The major increase in the township's budget is in funds set aside for road repairs, $25,000 in 1974-75, and projected as $41,650 in the coming year, township officials said.

Other than the road fund, township expenses went up about 10 per cent in all other areas, officials said.

Raises granted were for Supervisor Alfred Hellenga; from $3,750 to $4,400 yearly; for Clerk Mrs. Marjorie Drier, from $3,500 to $3,900; and for Treasurer Robert Martin, from $3,750 to $4,150 yearly.

One township resident, other than board members, attended the hour-long meeting.

Watervliet

WATERVLIET — Watervliet township board will seek an additional half-mill property tax allocation from Berrien county tax allocation board this year.

Supervisor Lyle Woodworth told some 25 township residents attending the annual township meeting Saturday that the extra millage, representing approximately $6,300, was needed to offset proposed expenditures in the 1975-76 budget of $100,200.

The allocation board divides among county, township and school units a 15-mill property tax rate permitted to be levied on taxable property value without a vote of the people. Previous township's allocations have been one mill.

The new budget, which included anticipated federal revenue sharing funds of $5,000, is 14.7 per cent higher than last year's budget of $83,860.

Contributing to the increased budget expenditures were the costs of police protection, building repairs and maintenance, utilities, supplies and equipment and the hiring of a part-time assessor.

In a related item, township residents approved a salary cut for the supervisor from $6,500 to $5,500 because of the hiring of Mike McGuire, the assessor, for $3,000.

Woodworth said last year he would take a cut in pay of $1,500 to help finance employment of the assessor, but the township board recommended $500 be left as part of his salary because of his workload.

Residents agreed to keep the salaries of the other elected officials the same as they were last year. Annual salaes for Mrs. Barbara Tyler, clerk, and Mrs. Eleanor Krell, treasurer, were set at $3,900 each, and Trustees Robert Morlock and Lawrence Strouse at $25 per diem.

In other business, residents approved continuation of millage levies for fire equipment, library programs and road improvements.

A half-mill levy was approved for the future purchase of a fire truck. The cost of a new truck will be shared equally with the city of Watervliet. The same levy was approved by voters in the primary election last August.

The library board received three-tenths of mill, or approximately $3,600, from the township residents.

Money generated from the six-tenths of a mill for road improvements, or $7,600, will be matched by $7,500 from the Berrien county road commission.

Other levies in the township include three mills for sewer repayment and one mill for general operation making a total of 5.4 mills, down from 5.5 mills levied last year.

Township residents defeated similar millage levies twice last year. However, Woodworth said that after reviewing state laws governing the township, an election was not necessary because the townsip is not chartered.

A motion to authorize the township board to purchase property as a future site for a new township hall was tabled.

Strouse reported the city police department answered 1,099 complaints last year, and there were 34 fires in the township in the past fiscal year.

Township meetings were set for the second Moday of the month at 7:30 p.m. in the township hall.

Weesaw

NEW TROY — Weesaw township residents approved a $65,125 budget for township governmental operations during Saturday's annual meeting.

The new budget is down $19,290 from last year's $84,415 figure. Most of the decrease was attributed to removal of a $12,000 sum allocated and spent last year for an addition to the township fire station.

Sixteen people attended the session held in the township hall.

In other areas, Craig Smith, fire chief, was given an annual salary of $400. Smith was not paid in the past.

Painting and repair work at the maintenance building at the Weesaw cemetery in Glendora was approved. Installation of a traffic barrier between cemetery property and property owned by Jerry Phillippi was also approved. Phillippi said that motorists in the cemetery were driving across his property. No cost estimates were set for either project.

Township board meetings will continue to be held on the first Wednesday of each month at 7:30 p.m.

Shell Information Series: Motor Oil

I want to help your car's engine live to a ripe old age.

By Bruce Boswell, Shell Staff Engineer, Lubricants

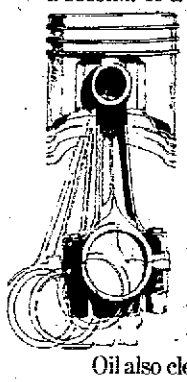

Bruce Boswell

Whether you use Shell or another motor oil this information might put off that awful moment when the mechanic says, "This isn't going to be cheap."

I work with lubricants every day. I know that motor oil is your engine's life blood. The type of oil you use and the way you use it can help you get thousands of extra miles without a major engine repair.

Oil's enormous job

At 55 mph, each piston in your engine moves up and down inside its cylinder about 35 times a second. It travels about a quarter of a mile for every mile you drive. When you step on the gas, the piston rods push against the crankshaft with a pressure of more than a thousand pounds per square inch.

These parts would grind each other to pieces if they were allowed to rub metal to metal. Oil is what separates them — a film of oil thinner than a piece of newspaper.

Oil also cleans the engine, helps to cool it, protects against rusting, and seals the cylinders. And today, the job that oil has to do is tougher than ever.

SAE 10W, SAE 30, etc. What those numbers really mean

Those numbers are viscosity grades. They tell how thick the oil is. The higher the number, the thicker the oil.

The SAE stands for the Society of Automotive Engineers, who set up the grading system. The W means it's for cold weather.

When starting the engine in cold weather, an oil with a low viscosity grade, like SAE 10W, will flow well. But as the engine gets hotter, the oil gets thinner, and a low viscosity oil won't always give a hot engine all the protection it needs.

The opposite is true for an oil with a high viscosity grade like SAE 30 or 40. It's thick enough to protect a hot engine, but on a really cold morning it would be too thick. The engine would be hard to start.

You could use a low viscosity grade oil in winter and change to a higher viscosity grade oil in summer. Or you could use a multigrade oil year-round.

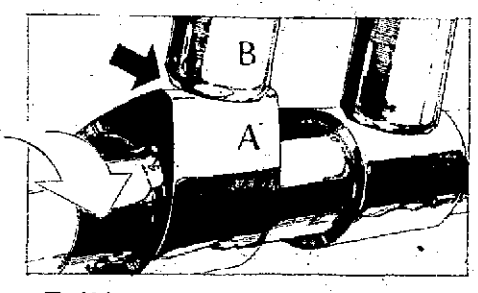

How multigrade oils work

Multigrade oils are the kind with two grade numbers—like 10W-40. They act like low viscosity oils when the engine is cold and like higher viscosity oils when the engine is hot.

They can do this because they contain special chemical additives called polymers. As engine heat builds up, it causes a change in the polymers which keeps the oil from thinning out so much.

But there's a catch.

These polymers can break apart, or "shear," under engine stress. This means that some multigrade oils do not "stay in grade." The 10W-40 that you put in your engine today might eventually drop down to a 10W-30. For this reason, you might need a multigrade with some "extra room" in its viscosity range.

The highest pressure in your engine is where the camshaft (A) pushes against the valve lifters (B). Here an anti-wear additive in the oil lays down a thin film that must protect while pressure reaches about 100,000 lbs. per sq. inch.

Why have single grades?

Even with all the convenience of multigrades, single grades still have an advantage. No multigrade has quite as much high-temperature viscosity as the corresponding single grade. That is, a 10W-40 won't be quite as thick in a hot engine as a single grade 40.

So you get a little better protection at high temperatures with a single grade oil.

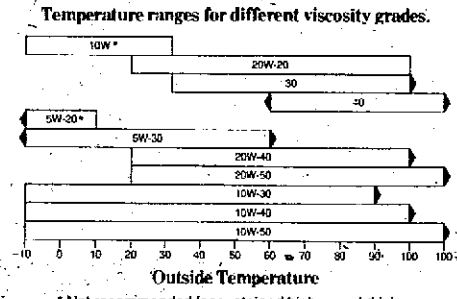

But remember, a heavy single grade like 40 won't give you easy starts on a cold morning. A light single grade like 10W won't give all the protection you need for hard driving.

And since your engine isn't protected over a very wide range with a single grade, you may have to change oil when the season changes or your driving conditions change.

Choosing the right oil for your car

First, make sure that your oil meets the car maker's requirements. (Check your owner's manual or your dealer.) Then make sure you get the right viscosity grade. The chart shows which viscosity grades we recommend for different temperatures.

Since more than one oil is usable at any one temperature, there are other things that must enter your decision. For one thing, you must consider the kind of driving you're going to do. A single grade 10W might be all right for normal winter driving in colder parts of the country. But for a long trip with a heavy load, you'd need a 10W-30 or 10W-40 for high temperature protection.

Another factor is your car. If it's hard to start on a cold morning, a low viscosity grade can help.

If it's an "oil burner", you can cut oil consumption by using a high viscosity single grade until you can get it fixed.

6 basic tips for getting the most from a motor oil

1. Change oil regularly, at least as often as directed by your owner's manual. If you drive under severe conditions, (and stop-and-go driving is one of the worst) change twice as often.

2. Change oil filter with every other change. If you don't change the filter, it can plug up and allow unfiltered oil to circulate through the engine.

3. Don't let the oil get too low. Have it checked when you buy gas. And don't forget to check it yourself when you stop at a self-service station.

4. Keep your engine tuned. A poorly tuned engine can contaminate its oil with soot or unburned fuel.

5. Group short trips together. On a single short trip, the oil doesn't really have a chance to get hot. If you group trips together, one right after the other, the oil will get hot, and heat fights the build-up of sludge and acids.

6. Don't idle to warm up. In a cold engine the fuel-air mixture is rich, and unburned gasoline can get into the oil. So you want the engine to warm up fast, and the fastest way to warm up is to drive off right after starting. But take it easy for the first few miles.

(These last three tips can also conserve gasoline.)

Now some information about a Shell product:

Shell Super X® motor oil earns the 10W-50 rating, the widest multigrade range you can buy.

During cold starts, Shell Super X gives you the advantages of a 10W grade oil—fast cranking to help the engine start, and fast oil circulation to protect the engine during warmup. Then when your engine is really hot, Shell Super X 10W-50 continues to protect.

With proper care and a top quality motor oil (and Shell Super X is our finest) we believe that most of today's newer cars can be expected to go 100,000 miles without a major engine repair and with no appreciable sacrifice in performance.

Furthermore, Shell Super X with its patented formula is designed to stay in grade. And it exceeds the warranty requirements for every U.S. car.

Get the high temperature protection that today's engines need — plus the convenience of a true all-season oil — in Shell Super X 10W-50 motor oil.

3. Don't let the oil get too low. Have it checked when you buy gas. And don't forget to check it yourself when you stop at a self-service station.

4. Keep your engine tuned. A poorly tuned engine can contaminate its oil with soot or unburned fuel.

5. Group short trips together. On a single short trip, the oil doesn't really have a chance to get hot. If you group trips together, one right after the other, the oil will get hot, and heat fights the build-up of sludge and acids.

6. Don't idle to warm up. In a cold engine the fuel-air mixture is rich, and unburned gasoline can get into the oil. So you want the engine to warm up fast, and the fastest way to warm up is to drive off right after starting. But take it easy for the first few miles.

(These last three tips can also conserve gasoline.)

Now some information about a Shell product:

Shell Super X® motor oil earns the 10W-50 rating, the widest multigrade range you can buy.

During cold starts, Shell Super X gives you the advantages of a 10W grade oil—fast cranking to help the engine start, and fast oil circulation to protect the engine during warmup. Then when your engine is really hot, Shell Super X 10W-50 continues to protect.

With proper care and a top quality motor oil (and Shell Super X is our finest) we believe that most of today's newer cars can be expected to go 100,000 miles without a major engine repair and with no appreciable sacrifice in performance.

Furthermore, Shell Super X with its patented formula is designed to stay in grade. And it exceeds the warranty requirements for every U.S. car.

Get the high temperature protection that today's engines need — plus the convenience of a true all-season oil — in Shell Super X 10W-50 motor oil.

SOUTH HAVEN SPEECH

Watergate 'Killed' GOP, But Party's Rebuildable

By SCOTT WILLIAMSON
Staff Writer

SOUTH HAVEN—The building of the Republican party in 1856, and the rebuilding of the Republican party in 1975 were the topics during Van Buren county's annual GOP Lincoln Day dinner here Saturday night.

"This party is far from dead," declared guest speaker Jerry D. Roe, executive director of the GOP state central committee. "This party can be rebuilt."

Roe, 38, traced some of the Republican party's history to the 150 party faithful in attendance at the Lion's Den, north of here, and then launched into the present.

"The Watergate question killed the Republican party in so many areas," he said. "But Watergate is over, and we're on the road to rebuilding."

Roe, who has held his present post since 1969, and also serves as chairman of the state historical commission, felt the party must find good candidates if it hopes to succeed in its rebuilding. He added that Van Buren county has "some great representatives" in Lansing, and noted: "They represent the area."

Roe said polls indicate that 16 per cent of Michigan residents are Republicans, and said he was surprised there were that many. He told those in attendance that to make the Republican party succeed, they must get out and work, and especially go after the independent vote, which he estimated at 51 per cent in Michigan.

Roe traced some of the party's history, going back to July 6, 1854, when the GOP was born in Jackson, Mich. And, in keeping with the Lincoln Day theme, he told of Lincoln's visit to Michigan in 1856, when he campaigned in Kalamazoo for John C. Fremont.

Roe related Lincoln had served one term in Congress when he made his Michigan visit, but said the young congressman was already an acknowledged leader in Illinois. Slavery and abolition were the major topics of the day, and Lincoln touched on his famous "A house divided amongst itself cannot stand" theme.

Roe told the audience Lincoln's viewpoints on slavery did not go over big with the large abolitionist crowd, but the statesman did criticize slavery, calling it a "cancer" that could spread.

County Party Chairman Mrs. William (Bee) Lackey also spoke briefly on the rebuilding theme, and told the GOP followers the party can build upon itself, but Republicans in the county "have got to get out and work."

"We're still a very strong Republican territory down here," noted Congressman Edward Hutchinson, and called area Republicans "loyal, staunch, and hard-working."

GOP MEETS: Among those attending Van Buren county GOP Lincoln Day banquet near South Haven Saturday night were, from left, U.S. Rep. Edward Hutchinson, St. Joseph, Mrs. William (Bee) Lackey, Van Buren GOP chairman and her daughter, Sue Lackey, banquet chairman, both of Paw Paw, and Jerry D. Roe, executive director, state GOP central committee. (Staff photo)

BABY BUSINESS: Michigan Gov. William G. Milliken carries the first of 14 Vietnamese orphans from a Michigan Air National Guard HC130 transport at Detroit Metro Airport Sunday afternoon while pilot and commander of the 305th Air Rescue and Recovery Squadron Lt. Col. Robert E. Dotson of Grosse Pointe Park looks on. (AP Wirephoto)

Parentless, Diseased, Defenseless

Michigan Welcomes 14 Orphans

WHITMORE LAKE, Mich. (AP) — They were, by and large, the cursed of the cursed. Parentless, diseased, defenseless.

Today they are in new homes in Michigan.

Fourteen orphaned Vietnam war refugees — most of them with serious health problems, arrived Sunday amid much fanfare at Detroit Metropolitan airport.

Brought to Maxey Boys Training school here for medical screening, soon they were in the loving hands of foster parents, some of whom may eventually provide their permanent homes.

The children were part of a group of more than 400 orphans flown to Seattle late Saturday in a 22-hour journey from Saigon. But unlike the others, those who came to Michigan were not pre-adopted.

State officials said that was because most people who apply to adopt a child ask for a normal, healthy one.

The children brought here suffer diseases including epilepsy, possible cerebral palsey, bone infections. One child had a shriveled eye.

"These children had not been identified for families because they had these problems," explained Gerald Hicks, director of Youth Services for the Michigan Department of Social Services.

The orphans got a state welcome from Gov. William Milliken who carried off the first baby from one of two Air Force C130 transport jets Milliken obtained to bring them from Chicago to Detroit.

Despite their illnesses, the children seemed to take immediately to Michigan, one of several states to greet orphans on Sunday.

"Everything is pretty here — a lot of trees and a lot of snow," said 9-year-old Huynh Thagh Lam, the lively, smiling elder statesman of the group. He spoke through an interpreter as he rode the bus from the airport.

Most of the others, ranging from five months, were too young to talk much. All but three were so small and weak they had to be carried from the airplane to the bus.

All the children's foster homes are in Genesee County, because the Department of Social Services worked through a local group, Council of Adoptive Parents. Most of the forst parents already had experience with adopted children.

Some said they were interested in adopting the children.

The first to find out about her new home was tiny Nguyen Anh Dung, who is 10 months old. She will stay with lumberyard manager Richard Giebner of Linden, his wife Sandra and their three children.

"We're foster parents right now, but it could develop," said Mrs. Giebner. She said the family knew in advance that the baby suffers from what may be epilepsy.

Bruce Hatter and his wife Peggy, a nurse, took home 6-month-old Dung Van Tung, who is sufering from osteomylitis, a bone infection in the leg.

"We don't know right now," said Mrs. Hatter, considering the possibility of adopting the child. "... We'll just play it by ear."

Gov. Milliken last week put Michigan in line to receive the orphans when he made it known that the state would accept as many of the parentless Vietnamese children as could be brought here.

Under normal circumstances, the adopting parent would have to known in advance before a child could be brought into the state.

The 14 who arrived Sunday (and three more who were supposed to accompany them but were held in Seattle because of bad health), came from a Saigon orphanage owned by the Holt Adoption Agency, which places many children in Michigan.

Survey Shows Slight Boost In Confidence

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — A slight boost in confidence that inflation is abating hasn't dimmed the over-all pessimism among American consumers, a University of Michigan survey indicates.

U-M's Survey Research Center said Sunday only 35 per cent of those interviewed in February believe an economic turnaround will come this year. SRC said 56 per cent believe it will take longer.

Survey director Jay Schmiedeskamp said a "severe lack of confidence in the government's economic policies continues to depress consumer sentiment and lessens the favorable impact of the tax cut."

Schmiedeskamp said more consumers than in previous surveys said they believe inflation is going to be less of a problem. The proportion expecting inflation of 10 per cent or more in the next year was halved from 32 to 16 per cent compared to last October.

However, "Consumers feel increasing pressure on their personal financial situation, offsetting the favorable impact of lower inflation expectations," said Schmiedeskamp.

SRC said consumer confidence is the same as in October, but slightly better than indicated in a special small-sample survey conducted in December.

While the outlook for consumer confidence is "now more favorable that a few months ago," said the study, "there are a number of reasons for expecting any recovery in consumer spending to be slow."

SRC cited data showing consumers "are trying harder to save than at any other time since World War II" and that confidence in government is decelerating faster than previously.

Schmiedeskamp said SRC found that only eight per cent of the 1,374 persons interviewed believe we will have "good times" in the economy for the next five years, while 61 per cent forecast bad times.

"At present," said Schmiedeskamp, "many consumers would be satisfied just to maintain their present standard of living."

The survey also discovered that consumers reacted favorably to auto industry rebates in February.

"This suggests spending may react favorably to any price reductions that might occur in the months ahead," said the study.

"The finding that the extreme pessimism has been modified is certainly good news but does not warrant complacency," Schmiedeskamp said. "The level of consumer confidence remains greatly depressed."

He added: "One important reason that business expectations are so unfavorable is that the American people lack confidence in the government."

Only five per cent of those interviewed in February said the government is doing "a good job" in its economic policies concerning inflation and employment; 44 per cent said the government is doing "a poor job."

The orphans got a state welcome from Gov. William Milliken who carried off the first baby from one of two Air Force C130 transport jets Milliken obtained to bring them from Chicago to Detroit.

Despite their illnesses, the children seemed to take immediately to Michigan, one of several states to greet orphans on Sunday.

"Everything is pretty here — a lot of trees and a lot of snow," said 9-year-old Huynh Thagh Lam, the lively, smiling elder statesman of the group. He spoke through an interpretor as he rode the bus from the airport.

Most of the others, ranging from five months, were too young to talk much. All but three were so small and weak they had to be carried from the airplane to the bus.

All the children's foster homes are in Genesee County, because the Department of Social Services worked through a local group, Council of Adoptive Parents. Most of the forst parents already had experience with adopted children.

Some said they were interested in adopting the children.

The first to find out about her new home was tiny Nguyen Anh Dung, who is 10 months old. She will stay with lumberyard manager Richard Giebner of Linden, his wife Sandra and their three children.

"We're foster parents right now, but it could develop," said Mrs. Giebner. She said the family knew in advance that the baby suffers from what may be epilepsy.

Bruce Hatter and his wife Peggy, a nurse, took home 6-month-old Dung Van Tung, who is sufering from osteomylitis, a bone infection in the leg.

"We don't know right now," said Mrs. Hatter, considering the possibility of adopting the child. "... We'll just play it by ear."

Gov. Milliken last week put Michigan in line to receive the orphans when he made it known that the state would accept as many of the parentless Vietnamese children as could be brought here.

Under normal circumstances, the adopting parent would have to known in advance before a child could be brought into the state.

The 14 who arrived Sunday (and three more who were supposed to accompany them but were held in Seattle because of bad health), came from a Saigon orphanage owned by the Holt Adoption Agency, which places many children in Michigan.

Survey Shows Slight Boost In Confidence

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — A slight boost in confidence that inflation is abating hasn't dimmed the over-all pessimism among American consumers, a University of Michigan survey indicates.

U-M's Survey Research Center said Sunday only 35 per cent of those interviewed in February believe an economic turnaround will come this year. SRC said 56 per cent believe it will take longer.

Survey director Jay Schmiedeskamp said a "severe lack of confidence in the government's economic policies continues to depress consumer sentiment and lessens the favorable impact of the tax cut."

Schmiedeskamp said more consumers than in previous surveys said they believe inflation is going to be less of a problem. The proportion expecting inflation of 10 per cent or more in the next year was halved from 32 to 16 per cent compared to last October.

However, "Consumers feel increasing pressure on their personal financial situation, offsetting the favorable impact of lower inflation expectations," said Schmiedeskamp.

SRC said consumer confidence is the same as in October, but slightly better than indicated in a special small-sample survey conducted in December.

While the outlook for consumer confidence is "now more favorable that a few months ago," said the study, "there are a number of reasons for expecting any recovery in consumer spending to be slow."

SRC cited data showing consumers "are trying harder to save than at any other time since World War II" and that confidence in government is decelerating faster than previously.

Schmiedeskamp said SRC found that only eight per cent of the 1,374 persons interviewed believe we will have "good times" in the economy for the next five years, while 61 per cent forecast bad times.

"At present," said Schmiedeskamp, "many consumers would be satisfied just to maintain their present standard of living."

The survey also discovered that consumers reacted favorably to auto industry rebates in February.

"This suggests spending may react favorably to any price reductions that might occur in the months ahead," said the study.

"The finding that the extreme pessimism has been modified is certainly good news but does not warrant complacency," Schmiedeskamp said. "The level of consumer confidence remains greatly depressed."

He added: "One important reason that business expectations are so unfavorable is that the American people lack confidence in the government."

Only five per cent of those interviewed in February said the government is doing "a good job" in its economic policies concerning inflation and employment; 44 per cent said the government is doing "a poor job."

Chiang's Long Struggle With Peking Finally Ends

TAIPEI (AP) — President Chiang Kai-shek will be buried April 16 in the little mountain village of Tsihu, a favorite retreat of the 87-year-old generalissimo of the Republic of China, official sources said today.

CHIANG KAI-SHEK
Dies of heart attack

The officials said a Christian ceremony would precede the burial. But the state funeral will be postponed indefinitely in the hope that someday it can be held on the mainland Chiang lost in 1949 to Mao Tse-tung's Communists.

Guns boomed every half hour today in tribute to the longtime leader, who died of a heart attack Saturday night. Flags flew at half staff. Temple bells pealed, and clouds of incense rose from Buddhist shrines as thousands bowed their heads in prayer to their dead leader.

Friends from Chiang's revolutionary past surrounded the body in the Veterans Hospital where he died. Thousands of other, including U.S. Ambassador Leonard Unger, went to his suburban residence to pay their respects.

Mourning was ordered for Taiwan's 15 million people. Theaters, bars and other entertainment centers were ordered closed for a month. Television stations suspended color broadcasts.

Several governments sent messages of condolences. But most remained silent to preserve good relation with Peking, which like Chiang's Nationalists claims that Taiwan is part of China.

President Ford called Chiang a man of "firm integrity, high courage and deep political conviction." Former President Nixon said he was "one of the giants of the history of our times, ... a great wartime ally of the United States and a courageous leader."

Hsinhua, Peking's official news gency, called Chiang "the common enemy of the Chinese people" whose "hands were stained with the blood of the redvolutionary people of China."

It said the "military and administrative personnel of the Chiang Kai-shek gang with patriotism in mind will have a clearer view of the situation and activel contribute to liberating Taiwan now that Chiang is dead."

Peking is believed to have suggested secretly that after Chiang's death, Taiwan could become an autonomous province of China with the Generalissimo's elder son, Premier Chiang Ching-kuo, as governor and only gradual changes in the way of life and the economy of the island to be made during his lifetime.

Vice President Yen Chia-kan, who is 70, was sworn in as president Sunday. But the power remains with Premier Chiang, who has been running the country since July 1972.

In his first public statement as president, Yen said: "As long as we can eliminate the cause of domestic turmoil embodied in the wickedness of Mao Tse-tung, we can bring the blessings of peace and justice to free Asia and the free world."

In his will, published a few hours after his death, Chiang called on his followers to carry out his unfulfuilled dream of recapturing the mainland.

Operation Baby Lift Ends

SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP) — Operation Baby Lift, the massive, four-nation evcaution of orphaned Vietnamese from war-threatened Saigon, ended on a large-scale basis today and a Saigon official said from now on the children will leave in smaller groups.

Diplomatic and government officials said the airlift had reached the scheduled quota approved earlier by the South Vietnamese government. They said all the children who have been evacuated were already in the adoption process, and the airlift only speeded up the paper work and the orphans' departure.

Dr. Phan Quang Dan, deputy premier for social welfare, was at the airport to say goodby to the last 223 orphans who left aboard two planes for the United States. "The large operation has ended," he said. "From now on, the orphans will leave in smaller groups."

On Sunday, two flights carrying a total of 135 children landed at Travis Air Force Base in California and one flight carring 407 youngsters landed at Seattle. And two other planes left Saigon today with a total of 223 orphans, bringing the unofficial tally of evacuated orphans to 1,700.

Some of the children arriving in California and Seattle on Sunday were then flown on to Chicago, New York and other points.

Nations including the United States, Australia, Canada and Great Britain began airlifts five days ago, flying infants as young as 21 days old across thousands of miles to safety and, in some cases, to hospitals for much needed medical treatment.

Many of the children have been hospitalized for treatment of malnutrition, dehydration, chicken pox and other ailments. Some have died during the lengthy and crowded flights.

But most of the daughters and sons of parents who either abandoned them or were killed in the fighting between the South Vietnamese and Communist-led forces are destined to new parents, many of whom have been waiting years for their arrival.

"All those clothes will be too small now," said Charles Bloom of White Bear Lake, Minn., who brought to the Minneapolis airport a new outfit for their 3-year-old adopted son.

Bloom, like most other excited adults greeting the new additions to their families, was full of happiness and pride.

"Look at him!" he said. "He's scared to death, but he's not even crying. Isn't that something?"

Mrs. Bob Davis of Piedmont, Okla., held 2½-year-old newly christened Valerie Eades Davis in her arms at the airport in Oklahoma City and said: "She's more than we ever hoped for. She's so happy and doesn't even seem tired."

In Detroit, 14 children completed the last leg of their journey from Saigon on Sunday, and Gov. William G. Milliken was among the crowd to greet them at Metropolitan Airport.

Some of the children who arrived in this country during the weekend are survivors of Friday's C5A Galaxy crash in which at least 200 youngsters and escorts died or are missing.

Eleven-year-old Thuy, a blind girl who survived the crash, was met in San Francisco by her new parents, Dorothy and Bob DeBolt.

"Thuy is a beautiful, beautiful little girl," said Mrs. DeBolt, whose family already includes 17 children from previous marriages and other adoptions.

"All our children are so absolutely beautiful, and everybody gets along marvelously," she said. "But it does get confusing at times. Once a girl called us and said, 'This is Jennifer. I'll be home soon.' I said, 'All right.' Then I realized we didn't have anyone in the family named Jennifer. Oh well, what's another?"

JOURNEY'S END: Mrs. rean Bello, of Yorktown Heights, New York, carries her newly adopted son in New York's Kennedy Airport Sunday. The boy was one of 57 orphans who arrived here from South Vietnam. (AP Wirephoto)

Viet Aid Pressure To Be On Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — The debate over further aid to South Vietnam is expected to intensify this week as Congress faces renewed pressures to vote more money for a country whose military position deteriorated dramatically during the 10-day congressional recess.

Before going on recess, the Democratic majorities in the House and Senate went on record against further U.S. funds for South Vietnam and Cambodia.

Since then, both countries have suffered major setbacks against advancing Communistled troops. Both South Vietnam President Thieu and Tran Kim Phuong, the South Vietnamese ambassador to the United States, have said Congress will be responsible for the country's fall if more funds are not approved.

Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger speaking Sunday on CBS' "Face the Nation" avoided placing all the responsibility on Congress for failing to approve more aid.

Schlesinger said Congress cannot be blamed for the performance of South Vietnamese troops. But he continued: "In addition, there are many other factors that contributed to this partial collapse, and undoubtedly amongst those factors is a decline of aid of approximately 70 per cent."

Philly Fire Halts Trains

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Train service between New York and Washington was halted for more than four hours Sunday night and early today when a warehouse fire forced the Penn Central Railroad to turn off its power. At least seven trains were stopped at various points along the Washington-New York route until service was restored shortly before 2 a.m. today. There were seven major fires in Philadelphia on Sunday, including four at once in the northern section of the city.

Demonstrators Jostle Teddy

QUINCY, Mass. (AP) — More than 200 antibusing demonstrators poked, grabbed at and jostled Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, forcing police to form a protective flying wedge around him. One woman poked at him repeatedly Sunday with the point of a stick bearing a small American flag. A man grabbed him by the leg but was pulled away by police. Although he was not injured in the Sunday incident, his aides canceled a speech set for later in the day in Sharon when the demonstrators showed up there too.

Oil Talks Open In Paris

PARIS (AP) — The oil-exporting nations and some of their leading customer countries open a preparatory conference today in the wake of an American declaration that Washington's ultimate goal is the destruction of the powerful exporters' cartel. The American challenge was not likely to make the atmosphere around the conference table any more pleasant. But since the task of the 10-delegation meeting is only to make preparations for a world energy conference during the summer, there was a possibility that agreement to go ahead might be reached.

Truce In Ireland Falters

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Northern Ireland's truce seemed in danger of collapse today after a weekend of violence in which 11 persons were killed and more than 80 wounded. Merlyn Rees, the British minister of state for Northern Ireland, said he hoped the ceasefire, the Irish Republican Army's Provisional wing declared some weeks ago "will last a little while longer at least." But Gerald Fitt, Ulster's leading moderate Roman Catholic politician, said he was convinced the IRA would call off the truce.

State Conservatives Meet

ROMULUS, Mich. (AP) — The state Conservative party met over the weekend and members pledged to work outside the Republican party in order to build a national majority party of conservatives. Among those attending the party convention Saturday night were former U.S. Rep. Robert Huber, who was voted out of office last November, and James Wells, former candidate for governor. Richard Durant, former chairman of the 14th district Republican Committee, said the GOP no longer reflects a conservative viewpoint.

Rail Decision Reversed

ADRIAN, Mich. (AP) — The U.S. Railway Association has reversed its recommendation concerning one segment of Lenawee County trackage and now says the line should continue in operation. Previously all Penn Central track in the county had been scheduled for extinction. The USRA now recommends that one key line be included in the new Con-Rail System to be run by the federal government. The USRA announced in Washington that additional information has indicated the line running from Vulcan, Ohio, to Ottawa Lake, Mich., is economically viable for operation by Con-Rail.

Crestwood Still Brewing

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Despite a ruling by the state Supreme Court which says Michigan teachers who strike illegally can be fired, the long, bitter dispute between teachersNadministrators and parents in the Dearborn Heights Crestwood district may not yet be over. The Michigan Education Association says the ruling may be appealed to the U.S. Supreme Court. Even so, it appears at this time the 184 teachers fired last December may be retained, although no final decision has been reported ay the school board. "We will protect the rights of the teachers, not excluding the possibility of an appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court," said MEA attorney Erwin B. Ellman. Crestwood administrators, who planned a meeting tonight to discuss the situation, fired the teachers after a long strike over a new contract.

Detroit Weekend Slayings

DETROIT (AP) — Four weekend slayings, three sparked by domestic arguments, raised the city's 1975 homicide toll to 135 Sunday, 35 less than on the same date in 1974. Police said they are holding a 19-year-old man on an open charge of murder in the shooting death of his mother. Officers said the young man apparently went berserk during an argument. Mubbie White, 38, was shot fatally in the chest during an argument with his girlfriend, police said. The woman was arrested.

May Hold Public Hearing

ADRIAN (AP) — The Cambridge Township board may hold a public hearing on the proposed rezoning of 160 acres of land in the Irish Hills for Cedar Point Inc., an amusement park company. Hearings would only be considered if the Sandusky, Ohiobased firm resubmits its request for the rezoning. Cedar Point officials announced last week they were abandoning plans to build a $15 million amusement park in the Irish Hills because of delays in getting the land rezoned for commercial use.

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The state's tainted feed disaster has put some ranking members of Gov. William Milliken's administration on the spot.

State Agriculture Department B. Dale Ball is defending his agency's role in handling the disaster. At the same time, he is calling for changes in laws and procedures to avoid mass poisoning of livestock in the future.

State Public Health Director Maurice Reizen is trying to give reassurances there is no danger to the public food supply. But he admits scientists are still in the initial stages of researching toxic effects of PBB.

Some 15,000 dairy and beef catteinmeve been slaughtered because they ate feed from Michigan Farm Bureau Services grain accidentally laced with a deadly fire retardant chemical, polybrominated biphenyl.

"Michigan is the guinea pig for PBB," said Reizen. "I hate to say that publicly, but it's true."

Ball quickly came under fire in April, 1974 when the public first learned that thousands of Michigan beef and dairy cattle and poultry ate contaminated feed distributed across the state by Michigan Farm Bureau Services.

Four months earlier, mice which ate the feed died in lab experiments, but the agriculture department did not sound the alarm because it did not realize the extent of the problem, said Ball.

The feed fed to the mice "was from one herd ... at that time we had no knowledge that any other herd had that same sort of feed," Ball said.

The Farm Bureau, responding to customer complaints late in 1973, pulled its feed off the market, but did not tell the state it had done so.

The State Agriculture Department failed to pinpoint what was wrong with the feed, even though the mice died.

"We do lots of experiments, use lots of mice and lots of mice die," said George Whitehead, an aide to Ball.

"We checked these animals for at least 50 compounds which are on our records to determine what was causing the problem and we were unable to come up with the causative agent which we later found was PBB," Whitehead said.

Ball spent much of the past year asserting his agency did its best to handle the catastrophe, the largest livestock poisoning in American history.

Ball managed to sidetrack the legislature's call for a probe of his agency by proposing new laws that would require feed distributors to report to the state when they pull feed off the market.

Whitehead said perhaps the agency should hire a full-time toxicologist who might have better luck than the agency did in identifying PBB in the animal feed.

A news conference held several weeks ago provides perhaps the best evidence that the contaminated feed episode has become a politically sensitive issue for the Milliken administration.

The conference was conducted following reports that lab experiments on animals raised the possibility of human birth defects and other harmful effects on persons who ate food with PBB.

"Although our studies are not yet complete, assertions of extensive human physical effects attributable to PBB contamination in food are clearly premature and unwarranted," Reizen said in a prepared statement.

"I will be the first to say that it is possible that there are some toxic effects from PBB but I don't know what they are," Reizen said under questioning. He said tests that should be ready next month may provide more data on effects of PBB on humans. He also endorsed the idea of studies to examine the possibility of human birth defects.

Milliken aide Mark Mason opened the session with a statement that studies have not revealed any pattern of illness attributed to PBB.

Mason was in Grand Rapids the following week to meet with officials from one of the state's largest grocery chains. The officials said they were considering banning Michigan-bred meat and dairy products from their shelves because of the tainted feed disaster.

Meijer Inc. finally announced it would not accept any meat or dairy products containing PBB and the chain now conducts its own tests to make sure food is untainted.

A few days after he returned to Lansing, Mason and other state officials from the Agriculture and Public Health departments blasted a series of articles on the disaster published in the Grand Rapids Press. Mason and the state officials said they were filled with "half truths and errors."

Editors at the Press issued a statement backing the series and the newspaper later printed a lengthy, detailed story that examined and countered the state officials' objections point by point.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

In 1973 with an active-duty roster of only 38,000, the U.S. Coast Guard rescued 64,182 persons, almost twice the amount of people in the Coast Guard. The Coast Guard was launched Aug. 4, 1790. The World Almanac notes, when President Washington authorized the purchase of 10 armed cutters to travel the eastern seaboard in search of smugglers.

Consumers, Edison To Ask State For Rate Increases

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Michigan's two largest electric utilities are planning to hit the state soon with record-setting, back-to-back rate increase.

Detroit Edison and Consumers Power say the need the money to finance construction programs that are essential to provide adequate service in the 1980s.

Edison is expected to ask for about $90 million sometime this month, while Consumers probably will file for about $70 million in May.

The requests are expected to raise the ire of customers, who still haven't gotten used to the $150 million in annual increases granted to Edison and Consumers earlier this year.

President Ford's Project Independence calls on the nation's electric utilities to put $618 million into capital improvements by 1985. But many of the utilities — including Edison and Consumers — are facing a credit squeeze.

For example, Standard & Poor's rating on Edison's bonds recently plunged from AA to BBB, defined as "borderline between definitely sound obligations and those where the speculative element begins to predominate."

Since large investors steer clear of shakier issues, Edison is having more trouble selling its bonds and has to offer a higher return, making the issue more expensive. The firm is having similar difficulties selling stock.

Skrocketing interest rates and inflation — especially in construction — also stand in the way of expansion.

Edison Controller Robert O. Wagner says his firm will seek a rate hike "substantially higher" that the $86.1 million hike granted in February. He said the application would be filed within two weeks.

John Kluberg, vice president of Consumers, said the Jackson-based utility probably will file in May for a record increase. The firm was granted a $66 million annual increase in January.

The Michigan Public Service Commission has the final say over the rate requests.

Commission Chairman William Rosenberg and fellow Republican Lenton Sculthorp generally have supported utilities in rate applications.

The third commissioner, Democrat William Ralls, has voted frequently against rate increases.

Consumers management has been attacked for cost overruns on the Marysville gas conversion plant and for technical problems which kept the Palisades nuclear plant at South Haven out of service for 17 months.

Longtime Sheriff Dies

BAD AXE, Mich. (AP) — Merritt McBride, longtime sheriff of Huron County who died at the age of 71 last week in New Port Richey, Fla., will be buried here today. McBride was sheriff from 1942 to 1972. He was a former president of the Michigan Sheriff's Association, using the post to help make brown uniforms and black-and-white squad cars standard for departments throughout Michigan. McBride once tore the liquor license off the wall of a Caseville motel because he considered the motel unworthy of the license, granted by the state Liquor Control Commission.

State Conservatives Meet

ROMULUS, Mich. (AP) — The state Conservative party met over the weekend and members pledged to work outside the Republican party in order to build a national majority party of conservatives. Among those attending the party convention Saturday night were former U.S. Rep. Robert Huber, who was voted out of office last November, and James Wells, former candidate for governor. Richard Durant, former chairman of the 14th district Republican Committee, said the GOP no longer reflects a conservative viewpoint.

Rail Decision Reversed

ADRIAN, Mich. (AP) — The U.S. Railway Association has reversed its recommendation concerning one segment of Lenawee County trackage and now says the line should continue in operation. Previously all Penn Central track in the county had been scheduled for extinction. The USRA now recommends that one key line be included in the new Con-Rail System to be run by the federal government. The USRA announced in Washington that additional information has indicated the line running from Vulcan, Ohio, to Ottawa Lake, Mich., is economically viable for operation by Con-Rail.

Crestwood Still Brewing

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Despite a ruling by the state Supreme Court which says Michigan teachers who strike illegally can be fired, the long, bitter dispute between teachersNadministrators and parents in the Dearborn Heights Crestwood district may not yet be over. The Michigan Education Association says the ruling may be appealed to the U.S. Supreme Court. Even so, it appears at this time the 184 teachers fired last December may be retained, although no final decision has been reported ay the school board. "We will protect the rights of the teachers, not excluding the possibility of an appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court," said MEA attorney Erwin B. Ellman. Crestwood administrators, who planned a meeting tonight to discuss the situation, fired the teachers after a long strike over a new contract.

Detroit Weekend Slayings

DETROIT (AP) — Four weekend slayings, three sparked by domestic arguments, raised the city's 1975 homicide toll to 135 Sunday, 35 less than on the same date in 1974. Police said they are holding a 19-year-old man on an open charge of murder in the shooting death of his mother. Officers said the young man apparently went berserk during an argument. Mobbie White, 38, was shot fatally in the chest during an argument with his girlfriend, police said. The woman was arrested.

May Hold Public Hearing

ADRIAN (AP) — The Cambridge Township board may hold a public hearing on the proposed rezoning of 160 acres of land in the Irish Hills for Cedar Point Inc., an amusement park company. Hearings would only be considered if the Sandusky, Ohiobased firm resubmits its request for the rezoning. Cedar Point officials announced last week they were abandoning plans to build a $15 million amusement park in the Irish Hills because of delays in getting the land rezoned for commercial use.

Milliken Designates Arbor Week, Day

LANSING — Governor William G. Milliken has proclaimed April 20-26 as Arbor Week in Michigan, with April 24 designated Arbor Day.

In making his declaration, the governor pointed out Michigan's forests have long been a source of pride for the state's residents, as well as being an important economic commodity. Michigan's increasing population has increased the need for lumber, said Milliken. Industries such as housing, recreation, and paper are pressuring our forests for more and more trees.

The governor further state Michigan's highly populated areas have the most crucial need for trees and it is to the advantage of all that our natural resources in those areas be preserved and enlarged and that conservation and restoration of trees be considered a major step in continuing our great natural heritage.

He urged Michigan citizens, either individually or in civic groups, to plant trees on Arbor Day and to place special emphasis on the importance of trees during Arbor Week.

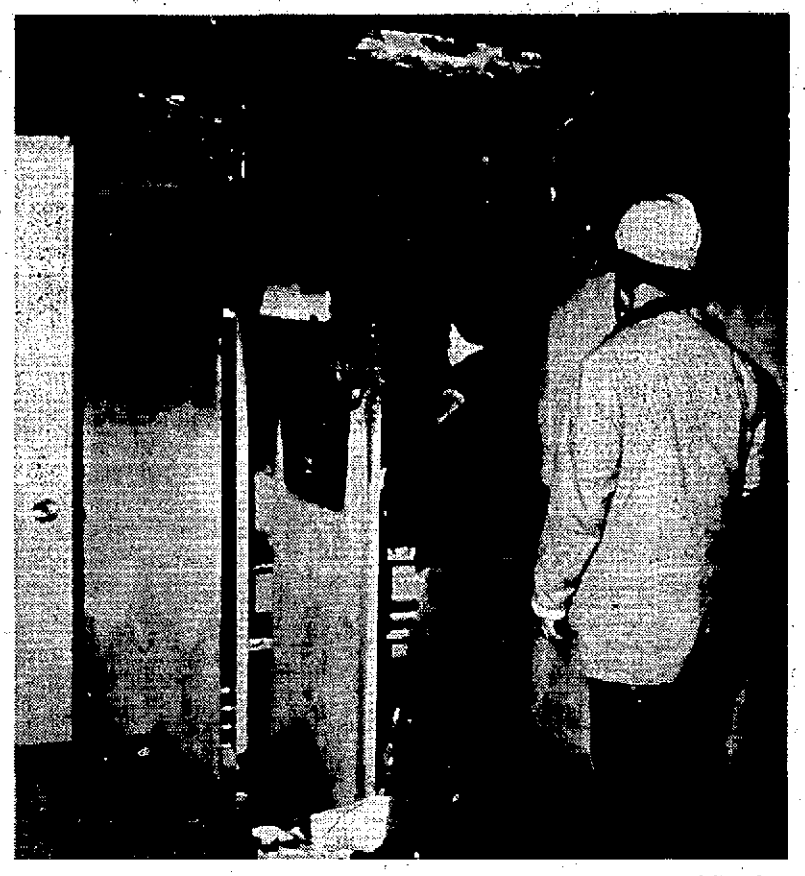

As in previous years, the Michigan Association of Nurserymen will mark Arbor Day by planting a tree on the Capitol lawn in Lansing. Joining in the ceremonies this year will be Mrs. William G. Milliken, wife of the governor.

A special pamphlet giving full information for the observance of Arbor Week may be obtained from the Department of Natural Resources, Publications Room, Stevens T. Mason Building, Lansing, Michigan 48926.

The six regional chapters of M.A.N., located in Detroit, Lansing, Saginaw, Grand Rapids, Kalamazoo, and Flint, are available to aid groups with their programs. For information, contact the Michigan Association of Nurserymen, 5127 Aurelius Road, Lansing, Michigan 48910.

Hutchinson Joins Special House GOP Task Force

WASHINGTON (Special) — House Minority Leader John J. Rhodes (R-Ariz.) announced today that Congressman Edward Hutchinson (R-St. Joseph, Mich.) has been named a member of a special Republican task force charged with the responsibility of developing a House Republican legislative program.

The decision to create a Congressional legislative program is virtually unprecedented for a party in control of the White House. Minority Leader Rhodes explained the move as a "necessary attempt on the part of Republicans to show the American people precisely what a Republican Congress would do."

Rhodes said that the program "would not in any way be a substitute for the President's program", but would "complement Administration policies and perhaps go beyond the program already established by the President.

"We think that we can be more innovative in many areas than any sitting President can afford to be, "Rhodes stated.

Rhodes said that his primary motive in breaking with tradition to "set the wheels in motion" toward developing a House GOP program was a "desire to call to the forefront of the public's attention the lackluster record of the Democrats and to show people that there is an alternative."

Rhodes noted that Democrats have controlled Congress 38 out of the last 42 years, "yet the polls show that the people are not satisfied with the performance of Congress."

The task force responsible for creating the program is comprised of the House GOP leadership, the ranking Republican members of House committees and five "wild card" appointments designed "to ensure broad participation and viewpoint."

Rhodes described Congressman Hutchinson, ranking Republican member on the House Judiciary committee, as a "well respected and highly intelligent Member of Congress who will add much to the caliber and potential of the task force. We have a lot of brains on our side of the aisle and Congressman Hutchinson is one of the prime examples."

A draft of the Task Force program is expected by late May or early June.

Americans Given Pep Talk By Ford

federal deficit through new spending programs.

"The Congress must learn to live within the nation's means" and should fix and observe a budget that would limit to $60 billion the deficit in the new fiscal year that begins July 1, he said.

"Adding to the deficit is like gambling," Ford said in the address prepared for the gambling capital of the nation. He said that overstimulation of the economy can offset all governmental efforts to combat the current recession and lead a quick renewal of runaway inflation. Saying that Congress is threatening to vote actions that would produce a deficit of $100 billion, Ford declared, "Every time your congressmen and senators add a new spending program or otherwise increase the deficit by a few billion more, the inflationary odds go against us."

The President also complained that Congress added what he sees as ill-considered amendments to the $24.8-billion tax-cut law and weighted tax relief heavily in favor of the lowest income levels.

Arguing that the tax bill places an increasing burden on middle-income Americans — "the most productive members of our society" — Ford said that those in the middle-income group "cannot continue to carry an ever increasing share of all governments."

He said:

"The Congress took some six million Americans off the tax rolls. We cannot afford to have this nation divided between taxpayers and non-taxpayers. This is most unfair. It places an increasing burden on the middle-income taxpayers. And there are very real dangers in increasing the number of Americans who pay no taxes and contribute nothing to support the government."

In arguing against a deficit of more than $60 billion, Ford asserted:

"When the economy is weak and private credit demands are low, the administration's projected deficit could be financed without encouraging inflation. But when the economy turns up, as we anticipate in the second half of the year, any larger deficit will consume money available for the private sector, drive up the interest rates and regenerate more inflation."

Americans Given Pep Talk By Ford

federal deficit through new spending programs.

"The Congress must learn to live within the nation's means" and should fix and observe a budget that would limit to $60 billion the deficit in the new fiscal year that begins July 1, he said.

"Adding to the deficit is like gambling," Ford said in the address prepared for the gambling capital of the nation. He said that overstimulation of the economy can offset all governmental efforts to combat the current recession and lead a quick renewal of runaway inflation. Saying that Congress is threatening to vote actions that would produce a deficit of $100 billion, Ford declared, "Every time your congressmen and senators add a new spending program or otherwise increase the deficit by a few billion more, the inflationary odds go against us."

The President also complained that Congress added what he sees as ill-considered amendments to the $24.8-billion tax-cut law and weighted tax relief heavily in favor of the lowest income levels.

Arguing that the tax bill places an increasing burden on middle-income Americans — "the most productive members of our society" — Ford said that those in the middle-income group "cannot continue to carry an ever increasing share of all governments."

He said:

"The Congress took some six million Americans off the tax rolls. We cannot afford to have this nation divided between taxpayers and non-taxpayers. This is most unfair. It places an increasing burden on the middle-income taxpayers. And there are very real dangers in increasing the number of Americans who pay no taxes and contribute nothing to support the government."

In arguing against a deficit of more than $60 billion, Ford asserted:

"When the economy is weak and private credit demands are low, the administration's projected deficit could be financed without encouraging inflation. But when the economy turns up, as we anticipate in the second half of the year, any larger deficit will consume money available for the private sector, drive up the interest rates and regenerate more inflation."

Coloma Files Another Bid For 2 Mills

COLOMA — Coloma township residents Saturday voted for the second year in a row to have the township board seek a two-mill property tax allocation from Berrien county's tax allocation board, instead of one.

The allocation board divides among county, township and school governing bodies a 15-mill property tax rate permitted to be levied on taxable property value without a vote of the people.

Action on the two-mill request came at the township's annual meeting.

A similiar attempt last year was unsuccessful.

A. G. Blevins, township supervisor, said Watervliet township has also expressed an interest in seeking additional millage from the allocation board.

Treasurer Robert Palmer said the main reason for seeking an additional mill is to assist in paying for services.

Each mill represents $21,800, according to Palmer. In other areas, the 69 people present also approved a $202,051 budget, up $24,835 over last year's budget of $177,216.

The police portion of the budget, for the fourth consecutive year, was the highest expenditure in the budget, up $2,887 from last year's $99,613. The new police budget of $102,500, reflects about a five per cent pay hike to Chief Richard Klimaszewski, $11,500 to $12,000; and a three per cent hike for four officers and four fulltime dispatchers. Officers' pay will range from $8,857 to $9,949, while pay for dispatchers will be $4,472 to $4,888.

Other increases in the first $200,000 budget in township history, with last year's cost in parenthesis, are: General fund, $28,933 ($16,663); Fire, $10,000 ($7,000) clerical salaries, $3,350 ($1,500).

Residents approved holding regular township board meetings at 7:30 p.m. on the first and second Monday of each month at the township hall.

Residents expressed concern over Blevin's idea to reassess the township in the future. Blevin said the move would raise taxes but would result with all 2,600 parcels of property being assessed at 50 per cent of the true market value of the property.

Blue Star Crash Hurts 2 Women

SOUTH HAVEN — Two women were injured early today in a one-car accident on Blue Star Memorial highway north of here, according to state police at the South Haven post.

Kathleen Kuenzli, 34, Jensen apartments, South Haven, identified as the driver, was listed in serious condition at Bronson hospital, Kalamazoo, while Delores Wallace, 27, 627 Cherry street, South Haven, was listed in fairly good condition at South Haven Community hospital. Troopers said the car went off a a curve near Lake Ridge road, Casco township, Allegan county, and struck a tree shortly after midnight.

The accident remains under investigation, police said.

Say Officer Threatened With Rifle

CASSOPOLIS — Joseph L. Goodger, 48, route 2, Cassopolis, was arrested Saturday on a charge of felonious assault after a sheriff's deputy said a man pointed a rifle at him.

Sheriff James Northrop said Deputy James Collins reported he was threatened with a rifle when he went to investigate a report of a family disturbance at the Goodger home.

According to the officers, Collins was threatened after he asked a man to surrender a rifle in the front yard. No shots were fired and the man later surrendered the weapon, deputies said.

NEW WATER SYSTEM

Lake Township Halts Bond Sale

BRIDGMAN — The sale of $5 million in bonds to finance completion of and additions to the Lake township water system has been temporarily halted, township officials revealed at the township's annual meeting Saturday.

Supervisor Wade Shuler told the some 50 people attending the meeting the halt is necessary because of a controversial attempt by Bridgman city to annex the Cook nuclear plant and other township property.

The plant comprises some 90 per cent of the township's tax base.

The $5 million issue was to be used to finish off the $3.5 million water intake and filtration facilities plus extend water lines to township homes and businesses.

Shuler said the halt in the bond sale means that no water lines will be laid until the annexation proposal is settled by the state boundary commission and the courts to which the township has pledged to take its case.

The township board in early February approved the bonding project and extra 2½-mills in property tax to pay off the bonds.

That was before the city formally announced its plan to annex the $800 million Indiana & Michigan Electric company plant.

In a related matter, township residents voted that the township board should not meet with the city to discuss the annexation unless the meetings are public and announced in advance.

The vote served as a rebuke of city officials who had proposed an April 14 informal meeting between township and city officials on the annexation issue.

Shuler also said anti-annexation petitions are being circulated by township residents in Bridgman and that an estimated 350 city residents have signed the petitions.

In general business, a 1975-76 township budget of $656,429 was approved by those at the meeting. The new budget is about $331,711 more than the 1974-75 budget of $324,718.

Township officials attributed the majority of the increase to payments that must be made on bonds that financed the initial phase of the township's water distribution system.

Elected township officials did not get a raise.

Township officials also announced annual cleanup will be the week of April 24-26 and set meetings in the coming year for the first Monday of each month.

SOUTH HAVEN TOWNSHIP

Joint Landfill Proposal Rejected

By TOM RENNER
South Haven Correspondent

SOUTH HAVEN — A suggestion that a community sanitary landfill be established to serve residents landfill be established to serve residents of South Haven township and the City of South Haven was rejected by South Haven township residents attending the annual township meeting Saturday afternoon.

The suggestion was made by Ed Stieve as a possible solution to the city's problem of attempting to locate a site for a landfill and a management problem at the township's existing landfill.

The city has purchased property in the township for establishment of a dump, but the proposal has been met with opposition from township residents.

A motion by Stieve that the township seek a meeting with city officials to discuss the feasibility of a joint landfill was rejected by people attending the meeting 35-17.

An attempt to refuse to allow the township board authority to buy, sell or lease land during the next year failed. Jens Torp introduced a motion that would have required the township board to call a special meeting of the citizenry to consider every proposal to buy, sell or lease land. His proposal failed 21-30. A motion renewing the board's authority in the matter passed 29-19.

Torp indicated the intent of his motion was to make sure that residents had an opportunity for input if and when the township board gives serious consideration to a request from several Van Buren county agencies that they be allowed to rent office space at the South Haven townhall.

The residents authorized the township board to seek a 1.5 mill tax allocation from Van Buren county for the upcoming fiscal year. The township was allocated one mill last year.

A show of hands by residents indicated approval of a new method by which the township could receive tax revenue to finance its fire protection agreement with the City of South Haven.

Currently, the township every five years has sought millage equal to the amount needed to pay the city for the service. A two-mill proposition expired last year.

Township officials are considering the establishment of a fire district which would mean that electors would ballot just once on authorizing the township board to levy the necessary millage. Then the township boar would only need to conduct an annual public hearing to present a proposed budget and establish the millage rate. Township officials said they would continue to investigate the merits of the two methods and make a decision at a later time.

Residents voted that the township board should be more strict in enforcing a policy that only residents can use the township landfill.

No salary increases for elected officials were considered. Township Clerk Franklin Torp also indicated that a budget for the new fiscal year would be presented at a later date after the millage allocated by the county is determined.

The annual financial statement indicated general fund expenses of $157,995 during 1974-75 as opposed to revenue of $158,371. The township entered the new fiscal year with a $13,840 surplus.

Bainbridge Considering Renting Out Town Hall

Bainbridge township board Saturday afternoon held for study a proposal that the township hall be rented to township residents for various functions.

Board members decided to study possible rental rates for the hall after receiving requests to rent the building from residents as the result of a recent remodeling of the hall.

A fee schedule is expected to be ready by the board's May meeting.

Saturday's meeting, following the annual meeting, will replace the usual first Monday of the month meeting for April only.

Casco Meeting Adjourned For Lack Of Order

SOUTH HAVEN — The annual Casco township meeting was abruptly adjourned Saturday by Supervisor Rankin Lyman on grounds was unable to maintain order.

Some of the estimated 100 to 125 people who attended the meeting were there to protest increased property assessments for tax purposes, but Lyman, who also serves as assessor, said the recently completed board of review was the place to comment on the assessments and not the annual meeting.

When some citizens persisted on discussing the assessments Lyman adjourned the meeting.

"I'm sorry that I had to end the meeting because I know there were people attending with other topics, but I wasn't going to stand there and let people beat on me," Lyman said after the meeting.

Two citizens, Robert Battles and Peter Forstner, were most vocal about the assessment controversy. Battles said he was representing a committee of residents protesting increased property valuations and called on the supervisor to review the 1975 tax rolls and reassess every parcel of land and assign new assessments for everyone. Battles said the committee would seek to have an outside agency do the review if the supervisor failed to respond.

In other action, it was decided to table until the 1976 annual meeting consideration of a proposal to build a new township hall. A committee appointed after the 1974 annual meeting estimated a new townhall would cost a minimum of $80,000.

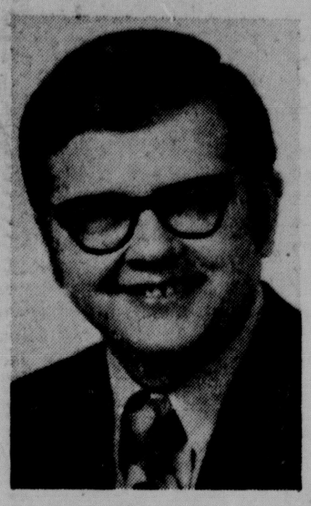

An $80,527 budget for the new fiscal year was approved. The budget is approximately $35,000 less than a year ago with most of the difference resulting from an anticipated decline in state sales tax revenue.

Lyman said the budget represents an austerity movement and that no new major road improvement programs are anticipated during the upcoming year.

Battles said he was representing a committee of residents protesting increased property valuations and called on the supervisor to review the 1975 tax rolls and reassess every parcel of land and assign new assessments for everyone. Battles said the committee would seek to have an outside agency do the review if the supervisor failed to respond.

In other action, it was decided to table until the 1976 annual meeting consideration of a proposal to build a new township hall. A committee appointed after the 1974 annual meeting estimated a new townhall would cost a minimum of $80,000.

An $80,527 budget for the new fiscal year was approved. The budget is approximately $35,000 less than a year ago with most of the difference resulting from an anticipated decline in state sales tax revenue.

Lyman said the budget represents an austerity movement and that no new major road improvement programs are anticipated during the upcoming year.

Bainbridge Considering Renting Out Town Hall

Bainbridge township board Saturday afternoon held for study a proposal that the township hall be rented to township residents for various functions.

Board members decided to study possible rental rates for the hall after receiving requests to rent the building from residents as the result of a recent remodeling of the hall.

A fee schedule is expected to be ready by the board's May meeting.

Saturday's meeting, following the annual meeting, will replace the usual first Monday of the month meeting for April only.

Season Opens Today With Warming Trend

Weatherman Cincy Baseball Fan

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

The weatherman must be a baseball fan ... at least in Cincinnati.

After more than a week of unseasonably cold weather, the temperature rose into the 50s Sunday and a further warming trend is expected to push the thermometer into the 60s today for the opener of the major league baseball season between the Reds and the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Three more games are scheduled under the lights as the National League begins its 100th campaign and the American League its 75th.

In the NL, the Montreal Expos will be in St. Louis to face the Cardinals while the Atlanta Braves invade Houston to play the Astros. The lone AL contest finds the Kansas City Royals in Anaheim against the California Angels.

The Royals and Angels meet again Tuesday night while eight other AL clubs get under way — the New York Yankees against the Indians in Cleveland, the Milwaukee Brewers against the Red Sox in Boston, the Minnesota Twins against the Texas Rangers in Arlington and the Chicago White Sox in Oakland against the world champion, Catfish Hunter-less A's.

In NL games Tuesday, the Philadelphia Phillies face the Mets in New York, the San Francisco Giants meet the Padres in San Diego and the Braves and Astros go at it again in Houston.

The recent storm that tormented the Midwest caused two of Tuesday's scheduled openers to be called off. The Chicago Cubs will host the Pittsburgh Pirates in their NL opener on Wednesday instead while the AL's Baltimore Orioles will oppose the Tigers in Detroit on Thursday in a regularly scheduled game. Tuesday's game will be made up later in the season.

The Dodgers finished four games ahead of the Reds in the NL West last year and the two teams are expected to pick up where they left off. Don Sutton, 19-9 in 1974, will pitch for the Dodgers against Cincinnati's Don Gullett, 17-10, before a sellout crowd of 52,000 in Riverfront Stadium, including Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn and Sen. Robert Taft, ROhio, who will throw out the first ball.

After viewing the Dodgers and Reds, Kuhn will rush to St. Louis to watch veteran pitcher Bob Gibson begin his final season. Gibson, the winningest active pitcher with 248 victories but trying to bounce back from a sore knee that dropped his record to 11-13 last season, will be opposed by Montreal lefthander Dave McNally, 16-10 with the Baltimore Orioles, who traded him during the off-season.

In Houston, the Braves, minus Hank Aaron for the first time in 22 years, will use knuckleballer Phil Niekro against the Astros' Larry Dierker.

However, the best may come when California's Nolan Ryan books up with Kansas City's Steve Busby. Ryan closed out 1974 with his third career no-hitter while Busby has pitched a no-hitter in each of his first two seasons.

Luke Walker Sent Walking

Tigers Drub Mets 14-1 In Exhibition Finale

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) — Walks probably helped the Detroit Tigers decide to give Luke Walker his walking papers.

That, and the fact that Detroit recently acquired pitcher Ray Bare from St. Louis, undoubtedly made Walker expendable.

Sunday the Tigers announced they had placed the veteran lefthanded pitcher on waivers for the purpose of giving him his unconditional release.

It'll take about a week for the former Pittsburgh Pirate to clear waivers. After that he becomes a free agent.

"We tried like hell to get him a job," said Tiger General Manager Jim Campbell. "We called everybody but we couldn't make a deal. We exhausted all the clubs that showed any interest in him at all.

"I think he'll be able to catch on someplace. He's got a major league arm and he's always had good stuff. But he just didn't fit into our plans after we got Bare."

The subtraction of Walker, who must be paid two months salary because of the late cut, reduced Detroit's roster to the 25-man limit for opening day — which has been pushed back from Tuesday to Thursday at Tiger Stadium due to ice and snow on the field.

Manager Ralph Houk has announced that Joe Coleman will be his starting pitcher against Baltimore. It'll be the first time in six years that Mickey Lolich hasn't pitched the Tigers' opener.

Detroit closed out its Grapefruit League season with a 13-19 record Sunday, finishing in rousing fashion with a 14-1 drubbing of the New York Mets behind the strong pitching of rookie Vern Ruhle and the hitting of Willie Horton, Leon Roberts and Terry Humphrey.

Walker wound up with the best earned-run-average of all Detroit's pitchers in Florida, 2.84, but he walked 14 batters in 19 innings, not to mention eight others he walked in six innings of a game he pitched for the Evansville farm club.

"It doesn't make any difference which hand a man throws with if he can get the ball over the plate and get hitters out," said Houk when asked about the shortage of lefthanded pitchers on the staff.

Of the eight Tiger pitchers, only Lolich and John Hiller are lefties.

"He wasn't going to start and he's not the kind of guy you bring in in the middle of a game (because of his wildness)," Houk said of Walker.

Walker joined the team before the start of last season. He wasn't used much and the New Boston, Tex., southpaw ended up with a 5-5 record and a 4.99 ERA in 28 games.

"It's weird. I realized I had to have a good spring and I thought I did," Walker said. "That's what makes it such a disappointment. A couple other pitchers on this team told me they thought I had pitched better than anybody else down here this spring...

"It's not that I'm bitter. I have no regrets. If I wasn't any more important to them than this, it's just as well that I'm gone."

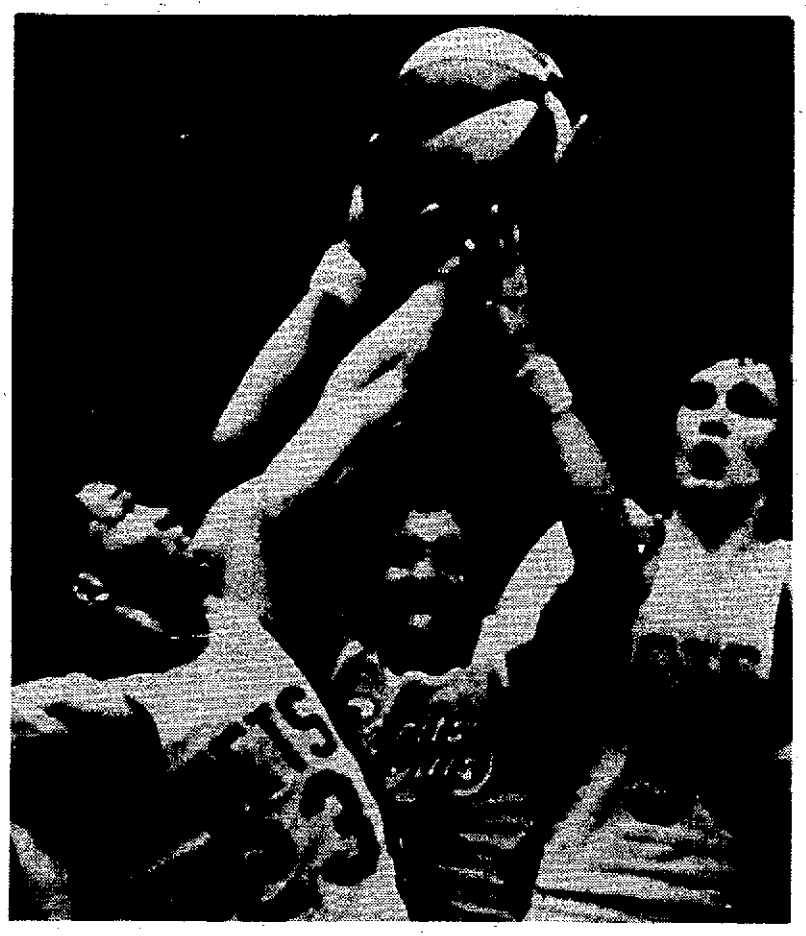

Ruhle's mound performance was one of the spring's strongest. He gave up one uncarned run and five hits in seven innings.

Detroit tagged three Met pitchers for 16 hits.

Horton drove in six runs, including three on a bases-loaded single in the fifth and a pair with a single in the eighth. Rookie Roberts and Humphrey were both 4-for-4 at the plate.

Knicks Edge Into Playoffs

Cavs Lose Game And Wild Card Berth

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

For the ninth straight year, the New York Knicks are a shoo-in for the National Basketball Association playoffs. But this time it's a pretty tight fit.

The Knicks, who used to breeze into the playoffs in past years, had to squeeze in this time — and in fact needed the help of another team to do it Sunday.

The Knicks beat the Buffalo Braves 105-93 and then had to sweat out Kansas City-Omaha's 95-94 victory over the Cleveland Cavaliers. The results gave both teams identical seasonending records of 40-42, but the Knicks claimed the wild-card berth because they beat the Cavaliers 3-1 in their season series.

"We really played like the Knicks of old," said Walt Frazier, who led the Knicks with 26 points. "The ball was zinging around and we were really moving. Buffalo likes to do a lot of switching on defense, and we made them pay for it. We found the open man."

"For pride's sake, it always is nice to get into the playoffs," added Frazier's backcourt mate, Earl Monroe.

The Knicks landed the 10th and last berth and will face Houston Tuesday night in the opener of the Eastern Conference playoffs. In another first-round game Tuesday night, Seattle will play Detroit in the Western Conference triggered by Frazier's leadership and a burst of 14 straight points in the third quarter, the Knicks rolled past Buffalo. New York's victory overshadowed a 32-point effort by Buffalo's Bob McAdoo, which made him the fifth highest single-season scorer in NBA history. McAdoo finished the season with 2,831 points, the most since Wilt Chamberlain accumulated 2,948 with San Francisco in the 1963-64 season.

In other games Sunday, the Washington Bullets beat the New Orleans Jazz 119-103; the Portland Trail Blazers walloped the LKOS Angeles Lakers 126-97; the Seattle SuperSonics stopped the Phoenix Suns 114-111 and the Chicago Bulls ripped the Milwaukee Bucks 112-100.

Nate Archibald scored 33 points and Ron Behagen blocked a shot by Fred Foster with one second left as Kansas City-Omaha shattered Cleveland's playoff hopes.

Wes Unseld hauled down 30 rebounds to win the NBA's rebounding title as Washington beat New Orleans.

Lloyd Neal poured in 21 points and Portland outscored Los Angeles 38-15 in the second period to run away from the Lakers.

Archie Clarke fired in 31 points to lead Seattle over Phoenix.

Norm Van Lier scored 24 points and Roland Garrett added 18 to power Chicago past Milwaukee.

Marichal Pitches 'Fairly Well' In Dodgers' Debut

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

Juan Marichal, the old Dodger-killer, is still at it ... only this time he was pitching for them.

The veteran right-hander, recently signed by the Dodgers after failing to reach agreement on a contract with the Oakland A's, made his spring debut Sunday and was the losing pitcher in Los Angeles' 3-2 exhibition loss to the California Angels.

Marichal gave up three runs — all in the first two innings — and seven hits in six innings. He walked four and struck out three and his performance improved notably after the third inning when his control got better.

Marichal received a mixed reaction from the Dodger Stadium crowd when his name was announced. But he was applauded when he took the mound for the first time and received a standing ovation from the fans behind the Dodger dugout when he left the field after his final inning.

"I was wild, but I started to get loose after about three innings," Marichal said. "Then I got my control and I thought I pitched fairly well."

Elsewhere on the final day of spring training, the Baltimore Orioles edged the Atlanta Braves 8-7 in 13 innings, the Texas Rangers and Houston Astros battled to a 2-2 tie in 11, the New York Yankees nipped the Pittsburgh Pirates 3-2 in 10, the Detroit Tigers clobbered the New York Mets 14-1, the Minnesota Twins downed the Boston Red Sox 7-3, the Milwaukee Brewers outslugged the Chicago Cubs 12-6, the Chicago White Sox trounced the San Diego Padres 9-2 and the Oakland A's beat their Tucson farm club 8-5.

Baltimore's Al Bumbry singled home the winning run to cap a two-run rally in the 13th inning against Atlanta, which dropped eight of nine spring decisions to Baltimore.

Texas' Jim Fregosi homered in the seventh inning to tie the game and the Rangers and Astros battled through 11 innings before the game was called to allow the Rangers to catch a plane home. Bobby Bonds doubled with one out in the 10th and scored on Bob Oliver's single to lift the Yankees past the Pirates.

Rookie Vern Ruhle pitched seven strong innings and Willie Horton drove in six runs as the Tigers kayoed Jerry Koosman in the fifth inning and routed the Mets. Bob Darwin had three straight hits, including his fifth home run of the spring, in leading the Twins over the Red Sox.

Mike Hegan smashed two home runs and a ground-rule double to lead the Brewers over the Cubs. Bill Melton's three-run homer climaxed a four-run outburst in the first inning and the White Sox defeated the Padres.

Golfers Head For Masters

Weiskopf Wins Final Masters Tuneup

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — "I've worked hard," Tom Weiskopf said. "I'm back."

But Weiskopf, a winner again after 18 months of frustration, was not the only one to turn a happy face toward Augusta, Ga., and the upcoming Masters, that annual spring rite that occupies a unique position in the game of golf.

While Weiskopf's relatively easy, front-running, three-stroke triumph Sunday made him the happiest man in the Greater Greensboro Open, there was a large number of pro golf's greats who found their own ray of a sunshine in the wind and cold that plagued this old event.

"I think I accomplished what I wanted to," said Johnny Miller, a three-time winner this season who made a surprise entry here to hone his game for the Masters.

"I played a good, solid tournament," he said. "My game is good. My swing is good. My putting is coming along. It isn't great yet, but it's good." He tied for sixth.

"I'm really quite pleased," said Gary Player, the gritty little South African who holds the British Open crown and will defend in Augusta. A final round 69 brought a big smile to his face.

"That's the best round I've played in several years," said Arnold Palmer. "It's really very encouraging." After shooting himself out of contention in the early going, Palmer closed with a five-under-par 66 in the final round but, like Player, was far, far back.

"Fantastic," said Lee Elder, who will be the first black to play in the Masters. "Maybe I can surprise some people." He scored a rare double eagle — holing a 181-yard five iron second shot on the par five 14th hole.

And Lee Trevino finished a very creditable fourth in the wind and biting cold that sent him digging for extra sweaters every round. "I was wearing everything I owned," said Trevino, who shot a late round 68 for 281.

But Weiskopf, a leader since his opening round of 64, was the happiest of them all. He pushed his bulging lead to six shots with a 15-foot sidehill put for an eagle on the ninth hole, then cruised home with a 68 and a 275 total, nine under par on the 6,643-yeard Sedgefield Country Club course.

Veteran Al Geiberger quietly slipped in to take second with a 66—278 after Jerry McGee, Weiskopf's only real challenger in the final round, hit in the water and made a double bogey on the 17th hole. He was third at 68—280.

Season Opens Today With Warming Trend

Weatherman Cincy Baseball Fan

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

The weatherman must be a baseball fan ... at least in Cincinnati.

After more than a week of unseasonably cold weather, the temperature rose into the 50s Sunday and a further warming trend is expected to push the thermometer into the 60s today for the opener of the major league baseball season between the Reds and the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Three more games are scheduled under the lights as the National League begins its 100th campaign and the American League its 75th.

In the NL, the Montreal Expos will be in St. Louis to face the Cardinals while the Atlanta Braves invade Houston to play the Astros. The lone AL contest finds the Kansas City Royals in Anaheim against the California Angels.

The Royals and Angels meet again Tuesday night while eight other AL clubs get under way — the New York Yankees against the Indians in Cleveland, the Milwaukee Brewers against the Red Sox in Boston, the Minnesota Twins against the Texas Rangers in Arlington and the Chicago White Sox in Oakland against the world champion, Catfish Hunter-less A's.

In NL games Tuesday, the Philadelphia Phillies face the Mets in New York, the San Francisco Giants meet the Padres in San Diego and the Braves and Astros go at it again in Houston.

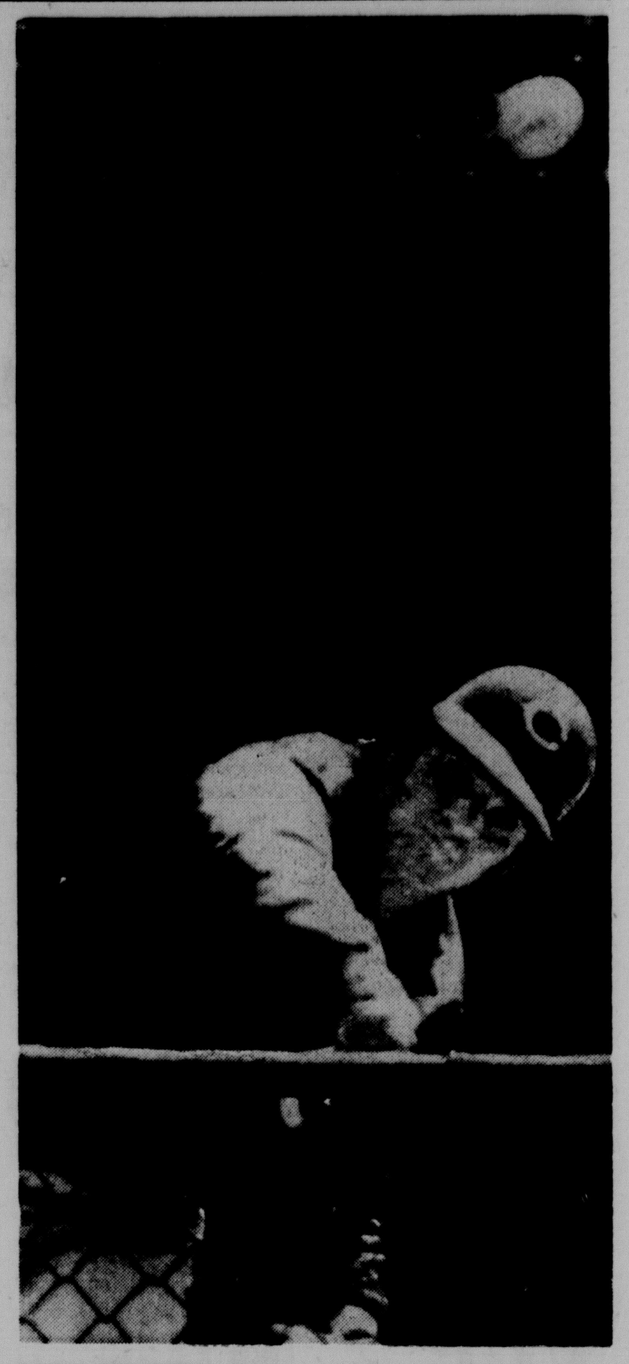

The recent storm that tormented the Midwest caused two of Tuesday's scheduled openers to be called off. The Chicago Cubs will host the Pittsburgh Pirates in their NL opener on Wednesday instead while the AL's Baltimore Orioles will oppose the Tigers in Detroit on Thursday in a regularly scheduled game. Tuesday's game will be made up later in the season.

The Dodgers finished four games ahead of the Reds in the NL West last year and the two teams are expected to pick up where they left off. Don Sutton, 19-9 in 1974, will pitch for the Dodgers against Cincinnati's Don Gullett, 17-10, before a sellout crowd of 52,000 in Riverfront Stadium, including Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn and Sen. Robert Taft, ROhio, who will throw out the first ball.

After viewing the Dodgers and Reds, Kuhn will rush to St. Louis to watch veteran pitcher Bob Gibson begin his final season. Gibson, the winningest active pitcher with 248 victories but trying to bounce back from a sore knee that dropped his record to 11-13 last season, will be opposed by Montreal lefthander Dave McNally, 16-10 with the Baltimore Orioles, who traded him during the offseason.

In Houston, the Braves, minus Hank Aaron for the first time in 22 years, will use knuckleballer Phil Niekro against the Astros' Larry Dierker.

However, the best may come when California's Nolan Ryan hooks up with Kansas City's Steve Busby. Ryan closed out 1974 with his third career no-hitter while Busby has pitched a no-hitter in each of his first two seasons.

Luke Walker Sent Walking

Tigers Drub Mets 14-1 In Exhibition Finale

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) — Walks probably helped the Detroit Tigers decide to give Luke Walker his walking papers.

That, and the fact that Detroit recently acquired pitcher Ray Bare from St. Louis, undoubtedly made Walker expendable.

Sunday the Tigers announced they had placed the veteran lefthanded pitcher on waivers for the purpose of giving him his unconditional release.

It'll take about a week for the former Pittsburgh Pirate to clear waivers. After that he becomes a free agent.

"We tried like hell to get him a job," said Tiger General Manager Jim Campbell. "We called everybody but we couldn't make a deal. We exhausted all the clubs that showed any interest in him at all.

"I think he'll be able to catch on someplace. He's got a major league arm and he's always had good stuff. But he just didn't fit into our plans after we got Bare."

The subtraction of Walker, who must be paid two months salary because of the late cut, reduced Detroit's roster to the 25-man limit for opening day — which has been pushed back from Tuesday to Thursday at Tiger Stadium due to ice and snow on the field.

Manager Ralph Houk has announced that Joe Coleman will be his starting pitcher against Baltimore. It'll be the first time in six years that Mickey Lolich hasn't pitched the Tigers' opener.

Detroit closed out its Grapefruit League season with a 13-19 record Sunday, finishing in rousing fashion with a 14-1 drubbing of the New York Mets behind the strong pitching of rookie Vern Ruhle and the hitting of Willie Horton, Leon Roberts and Terry Humphrey.

Walker wound up with the best earned-run-average of all Detroit's pitchers in Florida, 2.84, but he walked 14 batters in 19 innings, not to mention eight others he walked in six innings of a game he pitched for the Evansville farm club.

"It doesn't make any difference which hand a man throws with if he can get the ball over the plate and get hitters out," said Houk when asked about the shortage of lefthanded pitchers on the staff.

Of the eight Tiger pitchers, only Lolich and John Hiller are lefties.

"He wasn't going to start and he's not the kind of guy you bring in in the middle of a game (because of his wildness)," Houk said of Walker.

Walker joined the team before the start of last season. He wasn't used much and the New Boston, Tex., southpaw ended up with a 5-5 record and a 4.99 ERA in 28 games.

"It's weird. I realized I had to have a good spring and I thought I did," Walker said. "That's what makes it such a disappointment. A couple other pitchers on this team told me they thought I had pitched better than anybody else down here this spring...

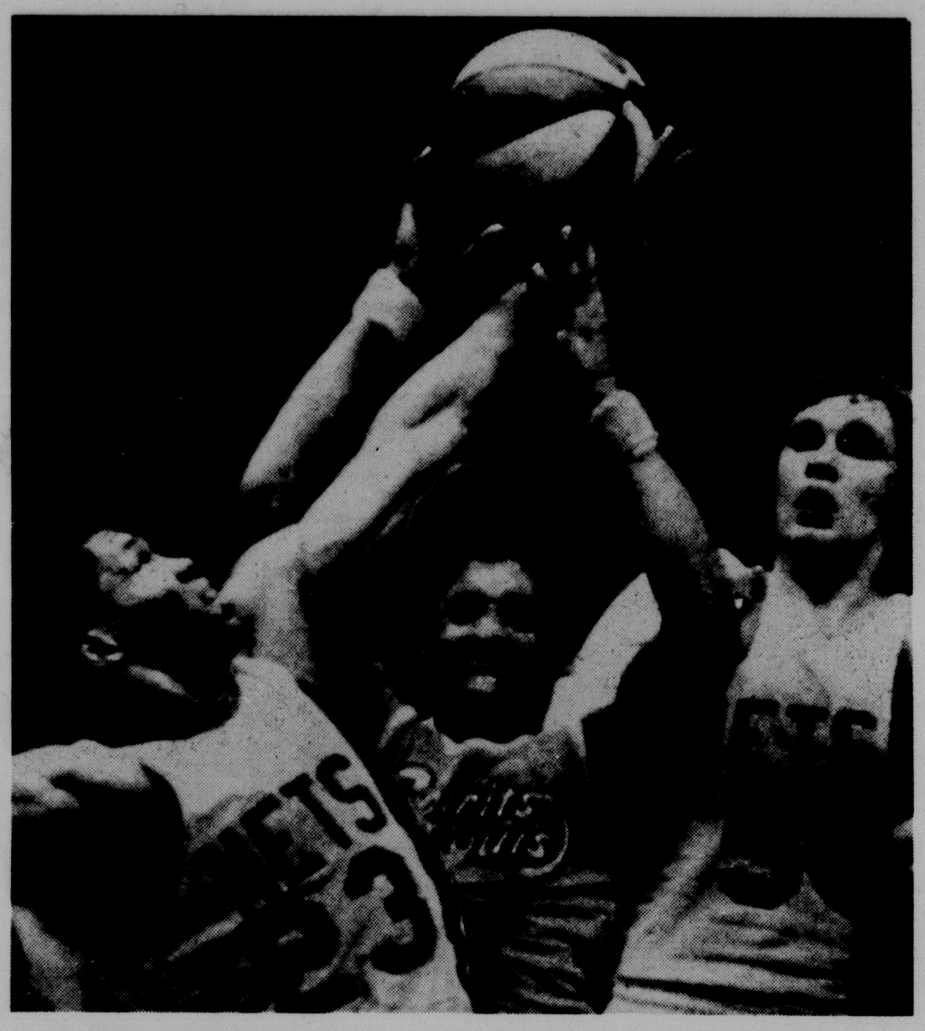

"It's not that I'm bitter. I have no regrets. If I wasn't any more important to them than this, it's just as well that I'm gone."

Ruhle's mound performance was one of the spring's strongest. He gave up one unearned run and five hits in seven innings.

Detroit tagged three Met pitchers for 16 hits.

Horton drove in six runs, including three on a bases-loaded single in the fifth and a pair with a single in the eighth. Rookie Roberts and Humphrey were both 4-for-4 at the plate.

Knicks Edge Into Playoffs

Cavs Lose Game And Wild Card Berth

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

For the ninth straight year, the New York Knicks are a shoo-in for the National Basketball Association playoffs. But this time it's a pretty tight fit.

The Knicks, who used to breeze into the playoffs in past years, had to squeeze in this time — and in fact needed the help of another team to do it Sunday.

The Knicks beat the Buffalo Braves 105-93 and then had to sweat out Kansas City-Omaha's 95-94 victory over the Cleveland Cavaliers. The results gave both teams identical seasonending records of 40-42, but the Knicks claimed the wild-card berth because they beat the Cavaliers 3-1 in their season series.

"We really played like the Knicks of old," said Walt Frazier, who led the Knicks with 26 points. "The ball was zinging around and we were really moving. Buffalo likes to do a lot of switching on defense, and we made them pay for it. We found the open man."

"For pride's sake, it always is nice to get into the playoffs," added Frazier's backcourt mate, Earl Monroe.

The Knicks landed the 10th and last berth and will face Houston Tuesday night in the opener of the Eastern Conference playoffs. In another first-round game Tuesday night, Seattle will play Detroit in the Western Conferenceltriggered by Frazier's leadership and a burst of 14 straight points in the third quarter, the Knicks rolled past Buffalo. New York's victory overshadowed a 32-point effort by Buffalo's Bob McAdoo, which made him the fifth highest single-season scorer in NBA history. McAdoo finished the season with 2,831 points, the most since Wilt Chamberlain accumulated 2,948 with San Francisco in the 1963-64 season.

In other games Sunday, the Washington Bullets beat the New Orleans Jazz 119-103; the Portland Trail Blazers walloped the LKOS Angeles Lakers 126-97; the Seattle SuperSonics stopped the Phoenix Suns 114-111 and the Chicago Bulls ripped the Milwaukee Bucks 112-100.

Nate Archibald scored 33 points and Ron Behagen blocked a shot by Fred Foster with one second left as Kansas City-Omaha shattered Cleveland's playoff hopes.

Wes Unseld hauled down 30 rebounds to win the NBA's rebounding title as Washington beat New Orleans.

Lloyd Neal poured in 21 points and Portland outscored Los Angeles 38-15 in the second period to run away from the Lakers.

Archie Clarke fired in 31 points to lead Seattle over Phoenix.

Norm Van Lier scored 24 points and Roland Garrett added 19 to power Chicago past Milwaukee.

Marichal Pitches 'Fairly Well' In Dodgers' Debut

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

Juan Marichal, the old Dodger-killer, is still at it ... only this time he was pitching for them.

The veteran right-hander, recently signed by the Dodgers after failing to reach agreement on a contract with the Oakland A's, made his spring debut Sunday and was the losing pitcher in Los Angeles' 3-2 exhibition loss to the California Angels.

Marichal gave up three runs — all in the first two innings — and seven hits in six innings. He walked four and struck out three and his performance improved notably after the third inning when his control got better.

Marichal received a mixed reaction from the Dodger Stadium crowd when his name was announced. But he was applauded when he took the mound for the first time and received a standing ovation from the fans behind the Dodger dugout when he left the field after his final inning.

"I was wild, but I started to get loose after about three innings," Marichal said. "Then I got my control and I thought I pitched fairly well."

Elsewhere on the final day of spring training, the Baltimore Orioles edged the Atlanta Braves 8-7 in 13 innings, the Texas Rangers and Houston Astros battled to a 2-2 tie in 11, the New York Yankees nipped the Pittsburgh Pirates 3-2 in 10, the Detroit Tigers clobbered the New York Mets 14-1, the Minnesota Twins downed the Boston Red Sox 7-3, the Milwaukee Brewers outslugged the Chicago Cubs 12-6, the Chicago White Sox trounced the San Diego Padres 9-2 and the Oakland A's beat their Tucson farm club 8-5.

Baltimore's Al Bumbry singled home the winning run to cap a two-run rally in the 13th inning against Atlanta, which dropped eight of nine spring decisions to Baltimore.

Texas' Jim Fregosi homered in the seventh inning to tie the game and the Rangers and Astros battled through 11 innings before the game was called to allow the Rangers to catch a plane home. Bobby Bonds doubled with one out in the 10th and scored on Bob Oliver's single to lift the Yankees past the Pirates.

Rookie Vern Ruhle pitched seven strong innings and Willie Horton drove in six runs as the Tigers kayoed Jerry Koosman in the fifth inning and routed the Mets. Bob Darwin had three straight hits, including his fifth home run of the spring, in leading the Twins over the Red Sox.

Mike Hegan smashed two home runs and a ground-rule double to lead the Brewers over the Cubs. Bill Melton's three-run homer climaxed a four-run outburst in the first inning and the White Sox defeated the Padres.

Golfers Head For Masters

Weiskopf Wins Final Masters Tuneup

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — "I've worked hard," Tom Weiskopf said. "I'm back."

But Weiskopf, a winner again after 18 months of frustration, was not the only one to turn a happy face toward Augusta, Ga., and the upcoming Masters, that annual spring rite that occupies a unique position in the game of golf.

While Weiskopf's relatively easy, front-running, three-stroke triumph Sunday made him the happiest man in the Greater Greensboro Open, there was a large number of pro golf's greats who found their own ray of a sunshine in the wind and cold that plagued this old event.

"I think I accomplished what I wanted to," said Johnny Miller, a three-time winner this season who made a surprise entry here to hone his game for the Masters.

"I played a good, solid tournament," he said. "My game is good. My swing is good. My putting is coming along. It isn't great yet, but it's good." He tied for sixth.

"I'm really quite pleased," said Gary Player, the gritty little South African who holds the British Open crown and will defend in Augusta. A final round 69 brought a big smile to his face.

"That's the best round I've played in several years," said Arnold Palmer. "It's really very encouraging." After shooting himself out of contention in the early going, Palmer closed with a five-under-par 66 in the final round but, like Player, was far, far back.

"Fantastic," said Lee Elder, who will be the first black to play in the Masters. "Maybe I can surprise some people." He scored a rare double eagle — holing a 181-yard five iron second shot on the par five 14th hole.

And Lee Trevino finished a very creditable fourth in the wind and biting cold that sent him digging for extra sweaters every round. "I was wearing everything I owned," said Trevino, who shot a late round 68 for 281.

But Weiskopf, a leader since his opening round of 64, was the happiest of them all. He pushed his bulging lead to six shots with a 15-foot sidehill put for an eagle on the ninth hole, then cruised home with a 68 and a 275 total, nine under par on the 6,643-yeard Sedgefield Country Club course.

Veteran Al Geiberger quietly slipped in to take second with a 66—278 after Jerry McGee, Weiskopf's only real challenger in the final round, hit in the water and made a double bogey on the 17th hole. He was third at 68—280.

NHL Clubs Finally Find Out Matchups

Hawks Go East To Bruin Playoff

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

It's a cinch that airlines and hotels did landmark business Sunday. National Hockey League clubs finally found out the matchups for the best-of-three first round, and hurried reservations were made for six teams who will be starting their series Tuesday night.

Two clubs, the New York Rangers and the New York Islanders, didn't have that problem. They will be facing off against each other in what can loosely be called a "commuter series."

But the Toronto Maple Leafs will be on their way to Los Angeles to face the Kings, the Chicago Black Hawks will head east to meet the Boston Bruins, and the St. Louis Blues will travel to Pittsburgh as Sunday's results finalized the standings and the matchups for the 1974-75 renewal of Stanley Cup play.

In Sunday's games, the Montreal Canadiens downed the Detroit Red Wings 4-2, the Kings tied the California Seals 1-1, the Black Hawks blanked the Minnesota North Stars 3-0, the Islanders topped the Rangers 6-4, the Philadelphia Flyers bested the Atlanta Flames 6-2, the Maple Leafs and Bruins played a 4-4 tie, the Washington Capitals blasted the Penguins 8-4 and the Blues trimmed the Kansas City Scouts 3-2.

Defenseman Serge Savard scored two goals — one from 70 feet, the other from 50 — to join the 20-goal club and help Coach Scotty Bowman record his 300th career victory.

Larry Patey scored the Seals' last goal of 1974-75, and possibly their last goal ever, to help California tie the playoff-bound Kings. The Seals, who may be moved or folded by the league before next season starts, fell behind 1-0 at 16:09 of the first period when Tom Williams scored from 40 feet.

Chicago, disappointed to be finishing third, gave Coach Billy Reay his 500th career victory to close out the regular season. Goals by Doug Jarrett, Ivan Boldirev and Cliff Koroll lifted Reay into a tie with Toe Blake for second place among alltime coaching leaders.

The Islanders and Rangers previewed their first-round series with the third-year Islanders scoring their second straight triumph over their intra-city rivals.

Bernie Parent won his second consecutive Vezina Trophy as the league's top goalie and the Flyers won the home ice advantage for every round they play in the playoffs with the victory over the Flames.

"Orr looks ready. I hope everybody else is," said Bruins' Coach Don Cherry after the tie.

Four goals by Stan Gilbertson helped Washington finish the worst season in league history on a winning note. The Caps lost 67 of their 80 games and gave up 446 goals.

The Blues clinched second in Division 2 on Larry Sacharuk's 20th goal of the year and others by Garry Unger and Floyd Thomson.

Pistons' Thinking Concerns Lanier

DETROIT (AP) — It was touch and go for a while, but the Detroit Pistons finally qualified for the National Basketball Association playoffs.

But if the Pistons aren't careful, their post-season competition could end Thursday night.

The Pistons, who used many reserves Saturday, lost their season finale 119-106 to the Milwaukee Bucks and begin their opening round of the playoffs at Seattle on Tuesday.

It's a best-of-three series, so there's not much room for mistakes.

The teams move to Detroit for a game Thursday. If a third game is needed it'll be Saturday in Seattle. Winner of the series will meet Golden State in a best-of-seven series.

"Seattle has the squad and they have the confidence. That will make a difference, especially when it starts out there," offered center Bob Lanier, who didn't play Saturday so he could rest his ailing left knee.

"It's imperative we win the first game out there," he said.

Lanier said he's concerned the Pistons might lack the power of positive thinking.

"I don't think we're on that confidence level we were on when we were really going well," he said. "Plus, as of the last month, we've been only playing six or maybe seven men. I don't think you can go anywhere in the playoffs without any depth."

"The experience will help, but we were playing with much more confidence at that point in time last year," Lanier said, referring to Detroit's opening-round playoffs with Chicago, which were won by the Bulls, four games to three. "Plus we had a better squad. That makes a difference."

Lanier, however, wanted to be certain his comments didn't concede anything to the Scotics.

"It's not fearing the worst," Lanier said. "It's just being realistic with myself. I'm not saying with all of these things against us we shouldn't win. These are just the cold facts. That's the way it is."

Forwards Curtis Rowe and Howard Porter were the only regulars who saw much action against the Bucks. They scored 19 and 20 points respectively.

Lanier's backup center, Jim Davis, played 43 minutes. He grabbed 18 rebounds against Milwaukee's Kareem Abdul-Jabbar.

The Pistons, who were to fly to Seattle today, finished the regular season with a 40-42 record.

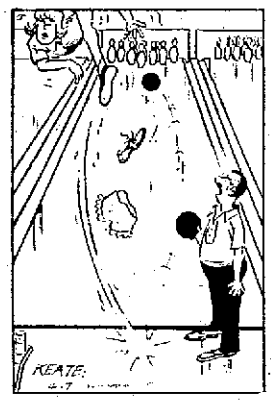

Seattle won its last seven games to wind up with a 43-39 mark.

Western Splits

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Western Michigan split a doubleheader with Indiana Saturday, losing 5-3 before winning 2-1 behind three-hit pitching by Tim White and Rick Farrow.

A triple by Indiana outfielder Mark Leasch in the fourth inning provided the winning margin in the first game. WMU shortstop Scott Carnes scored twice and third baseman Jim Carwarding hit a homer.

Wayne State Rules As Fencing Champ

FULLERTON, Calif. (AP) — A Jewish immigrant from the Soviet Union who came to Wayne State University via Israel, led the Tartars Saturday to the 1975 NCAA fencing championship.

Freshman Yuri Rabinovich of Odessa, Russia won the sabre crown. He was to have entered the tourney in epee, but an injury to defening sabre champion Steve Danosi forced Wayne State to change plans.

Greg Benko paced the Tartar effort with his second straight foil title as Wayne State captured their first NCAA sports championship ever at Fullerton State University.

Benko, a junior from Melbourne, Australia, captured the title with a 4-1 record in the round robin of six finalists. Rabinovich, 26, also won 4-1 in his division.

Wayne State had 89 points to 83 for Cornell. Notre Dame and Princeton tied for third with 75.

Risto Hurme of New York University became only the second person in the 31-year history of the fencing championships to win three titles in a row. The senior from Helsinki, Finland, took the epee crown.

Second in the epee class was Wayne State's Mark Masters, a sophomore from Grosse Pointe, Mich., who wasn't expected to compete before Danosi's injury.

Second in the foil was Jack Tichacek of Princeton and second in sabre was Tom Losconczy of Columbia.

NYU, which had won the last two team titles in this meet, wound up fourth with 73. Columbia had 68 followed by Pennsylvania with 66, Harvard with 61, Maryland with 59 and Penn State with 55.

Coach Istvan Danosi's Wayne State team placed second in the NCAA tourney last year and third in 1973.

Benko, a junior southpaw, has massed a 111-2 record for the season.

Olympic Winner Dead At Age 83

NANTUCKET, Mass. (AP) — Tell Berna, a former gold medal Olympic track champion, died Saturday of a heart attack. He was 83.

Berna won his medal for the two-mile run in the 1912 Olympics in Stockholm, setting a record for the event that held for 15 years.

One of his Olympic teammates and a former gold medal winner that year was Jim Thorpe.

Survivors include three daughters, a brother and seven grandchildren.

Bill Melchionni Gets Nets Going

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

When the New York Nets need a start, Bill Melchionni's got the spark to do it.

The Nets' machine was stalled Sunday until their playmaking guard got into the game — and then it was full speed ahead en route to a 111-105 American Basketball Association playoff victory over the Spirits of St. Louis.

"I thought Melchionni was the total difference," said New York Coach Kevin Loughery after his club took a 1-0 lead in the best-of-seven Eastern Division series. "He got the ball to the right spot every time. No question that Mel will get more playing time. The team needed movement when I put him in — and they got it."

Melchionni was recognized as New York's Most Valuable Player Sunday without scoring a point. St. Louis was winning 87-81 with 10 minutes to play when Melchionni came off the bench and turned the game around.

Melchionni, a one-time starter shunted to reserve status, ran the Net offense with an iron hand and collected six assists to help New York pull away.

"Just before I went in, Loughery told me to get ready," said Melchionni. "I looked at the game and decided what I had to do when I got in."

In other playoff games Sunday, the Kentucky Colonels beat the Memphis Sounds 98-91 in the Eastern Division and the Denver Nuggets stopped the Utah Stars 122-107 in the West opener.

Along with Melchionni's guiding force in the late stages, the Nets got a 32-point performance from Julius Erving and 24 from Billy Paultz, who hit 11 of 12 shots from the field.

Artis Gilmore scored 25 points to lead Kentucky over Memphis. The Colonels never trailed after the closing minutes of the first period, although Memphis was able to close within two points, at 85-83, with five minutes remaining in the game.

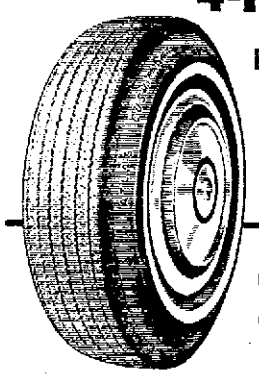

Ball-hawking guards Mack Calvin and Fatty Taylor ignited Denver's racehorse offense to help the Nuggets whip Utah. The Nuggets, who led 53-51 at the half, scored seven straight points early in the third period to take a 60-53 lead they never relinquished. Denver had eight players in double figures, led by Ralph Simpson's 20 points.

NHL Clubs Finally Find Out Matchups

Hawks Go East To Bruin Playoff

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

It's a cinch that airlines and hotels did landmark business Sunday. National Hockey League clubs finally found out the matchups for the best-of-three first round, and hurried reservations were made for six teams who will be starting their series Tuesday night.

Two clubs, the New York Rangers and the New York Islanders, didn't have that problem. They will be facing off against each other in what can loosely be called a "commuter series."

But the Toronto Maple Leafs will be on their way to Los Angeles to face the Kings, the Chicago Black Hawks will head east to meet the Boston Bruins, and the St. Louis Blues will travel to Pittsburgh as Sunday's results finalized the standings and the matchups for the 1974-75 renewal of Stanley Cup play.

In Sunday's games, the Montreal Canadiens downed the Detroit Red Wings 4-2, the Kings tied the California Seals 1-1, the Black Hawks blanked the Minnesota North Stars 3-0, the Islanders topped the Rangers 6-4, the Philadelphia Flyers bested the Atlanta Flames 6-2, the Maple Leafs and Bruins played a 4-4 tie, the Washington Capitals blasted the Penguins 8-4 and the Blues trimmed the Kansas City Scouts 3-2.

Defenseman Serge Savard scored two goals — one from 70 feet, the other from 50 — to join the 20-goal club and help Coach Scotty Bowman record his 300th career victory.

Larry Patey scored the Seals' last goal of 1974-75, and possibly their last goal ever, to help California tie the playoff-bound Kings. The Seals, who may be moved or folded by the league before next season starts, fell behind 1-0 at 16:09 of the first period when Tom Williams scored from 40 feet.

Chicago, disappointed to be finishing third, gave Coach Billy Reay his 500th career victory to close out the regular season. Goals by Doug Jarrett, Ivan Boldirev and Cliff Koroll lifted Reay into a tie with Toe Blake for second place among alltime coaching leaders.

The Islanders and Rangers previewed their first-round series with the third-year Islanders scoring their second straight triumph over their intra-city rivals.

Bernie Parent won his second consecutive Vezina Trophy as the league's top goalie and the Flyers won the home ice advantage for every round they play in the playoffs with the victory over the Flames

"Orr looks ready. I hope everybody else is," said Bruins' Coach Don Cherry after the tie.

Four goals by Stan Gilbertson helped Washington finish the worst season in league history on a winning note. The Caps lost 67 of their 80 games and gave up 446 goals.

The Blues clinched second in Division 2 on Larry Sacharuk's 20th goal of the year and others by Garry Unger and Floyd Thomson.

Pistons' Thinking Concerns Lanier

DETROIT (AP) — It was touch and go for a while, but the Detroit Pistons finally qualified for the National Basketball Association playoffs.

But if the Pistons aren't careful, their post-season competition could end Thursday night.

The Pistons, who used many reserves Saturday, lost their season finale 119-106 to the Milwaukee Bucks and begin their opening round of the playoffs at Seattle on Tuesday.

It's a best-of-three series, so there's not much room for mistakes.

The teams move to Detroit for a game Thursday. If a third game is needed it'll be Saturday in Seattle. Winner of the series will meet Golden State in a best-of-seven series.

"Seattle has the squad and they have the confidence. That will make a difference, especially when it starts out there," offered center Bob Lanier, who didn't play Saturday so he could rest his ailing left knee.

"It's imperative we win the first game out there," he said.

Lanier said he's concerned the Pistons might lack the power of positive thinking.

"I don't think we're on that confidence level we were on when we were really going well," he said. "Plus, as of the last month, we've been only playing six or maybe seven men. I don't think you can go anywhere in the playoffs without any depth."

"The experience will help, but we were playing with much more confidence at that point in time last year," Lanier said, referring to Detroit's opening-round playoffs with Chicago, which were won by the Bulls, four games to three. "Plus we had a better squad. That makes a difference."

Lanier, however, wanted to be certain his comments didn't concede anything to the Sconics.

"It's not fearing the worst," Lanier said. "It's just being realistic with myself. I'm not saying with all of these things against us we shouldn't win. These are just the cold facts. That's the way it is."

Forwards Curtis Rowe and Howard Porter were the only regulars who saw much action against the Bucks. They scored 19 and 20 points respectively.

Lanier's backup center, Jim Davis, played 43 minutes. He grabbed 18 rebounds against Milwaukee's Kareem Abdul-Jabbar.

The Pistons, who were to fly to Seattle today, finished the regular season with a 40-42 record.

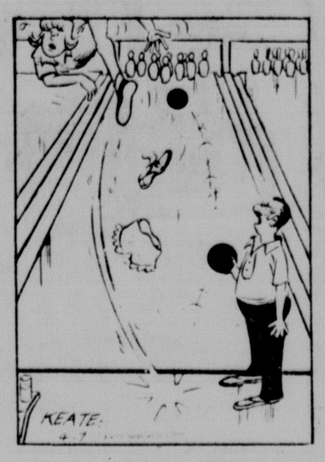

Seattle won its last seven games to wind up with a 43-39 mark.

Western Splits

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Western Michigan split a doubleheader with Indiana Saturday, losing 5-3 before winning 2-1 behind three-hit pitching by Tim White and Rick Farrow.

A triple by Indiana outfielder Mark Leasch in the fourth inning provided the winning margin in the first game. WMU shortstop Scott Carnes scored twice and third basemen Jim Carwarding hit a homer.

Wayne State Rules As Fencing Champ

FULLERTON, Calif. (AP) — A Jewish immigrant from the Soviet Union who came to Wayne State University via Israel, led the Tartars Saturday to the 1975 NCAA fencing championship.

Freshman Yuri Rabinovich of Odessa, Russia won the sabre crown. He was to have entered the tourney in epee, but an injury to defening sabre champion Steve Danosi forced Wayne State to change plans.

Greg Benko paced the Tartar effort with his second straight foil title as Wayne State captured their first NCAA sports championship ever at Fullerton State University.

Benko, a junior from Melbourne, Australia, captured the title with a 4-1 record in the round robin of six finalists. Rabinovich, 26, also won 4-1 in his division.

Wayne State had 89 points to 83 for Cornell. Notre Dame and Princeton tied for third with 75.

Risto Hurme of New York University became only the second person in the 31-year history of the fencing championships to win three titles in a row. The senior from Helsinki, Finland, took the epee crown.

Second in the epee class was Wayne State's Mark Masters, a sophomore from Grosse Pointe, Mich., who wasn't expected to compete before Danosi's injury.

Second in the foil was Jack Tichacek of Princeton and second in sabre was Tom Losconczy of Columbia.

NYU, which had won the last two team titles in this meet, wound up fourth with 73. Columbia had 68 followed by Pennsylvania with 66, Harvard with 61, Maryland with 59 and Penn State with 55.

Coach Istvan Danosi's Wayne State team placed second in the NCAA tourney last year and third in 1973.

Benko, a junior southpaw, has massed a 111-2 record for the season.

Olympic Winner Dead At Age 83

NANTUCKET, Mass. (AP) — Tell Berna, a former gold medal Olympic track champion, died Saturday of a heart attack. He was 83.

Berna won his medal for the two-mile run in the 1912 Olympics in Stockholm, setting a record for the event that held for 15 years.

One of his Olympic teammates and a former gold medal winner that year was Jim Thorpe.

Survivors include three daughters, a brother and seven grandchildren.

The funeral service was scheduled for today

Bill Melchionni Gets Nets Going

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

When the New York Nets need a start, Bill Melchionni's got the spark to do it.

The Nets' machine was stalled Sunday until their playmaking guard got into the game — and then it was full speed ahead en route to a 111-105 American Basketball Association playoff victory over the Spirits of St. Louis.

"I thought Melchionni was the total difference," said New York Coach Kevin Loughery after his club took a 1-0 lead in the best-of-seven Eastern Division series."He got the ball to the right spot every time. No question that Mel will get more playing time. The team needed movement when I put him in — and they got it."

Melchionni was recognized as New York's Most Valuable Player Sunday without scoring a point. St. Louis was winning 87-81 with 10 minutes to play when Melchionni came off the bench and turned the game around.

Melchionni, a one-time starter shunted to reserve status, ran the Net offense with an iron hand and collected six assists to help New York pull away.

"Just before I went in, Loughery told me to get ready," said Melchionni. "I looked at the game and decided what I had to do when I got in."

In other playoff games Sunday, the Kentucky Colonels beat the Memphis Sounds 98-91 in the Eastern Division and the Denver Nuggets stopped the Utah Stars 122-107 in the West opener.

Along with Melchionni's guiding force in the late stages, the Nets got a 32-point performance from Julius Erving and 24 from Billy Paultz, who hit 11 of 12 shots from the field.

Artis Gilmore scored 25 points to lead Kentucky over Memphis. The Colonels never trailed after the closing minutes of the first period, although Memphis was able to close within two points, at 8583, with five minutes remaining in the game.

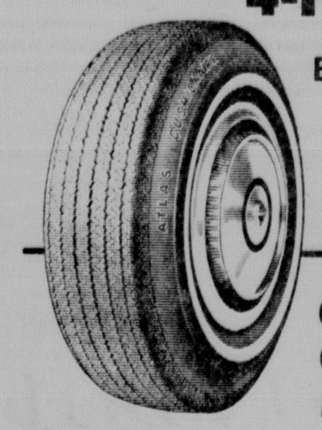

Ball-hawking guards Mack Calvin and Fatty Taylor ignited Denver's racehorse offense to help the Nuggets whip Utah. The Nuggets, who led 53-51 at the half, scored seven straight points early in the third period to take a 60-53 lead they never relinquished. Denver had eight players in double figures, led by Ralph Simpson's 20 points.

Cheating Believed Widespread In College Recruiting

By TOM SEPPY
AP Sports Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — For most college coaches, the search for new talent is the worst part of their job.

The big-time coaches must travel coast-to-coast in their quest to convince a top high school player that his college is better than the other 250 which are seeking the star. It usually means losing, and too many losses in the spring means too many losses in the winter.

Maryland's Lefty Driesell, one of the most successful recruiters, doesn't like the annual search.

"I don't know of any coach who really does, but it's part of the job, and you better get out if you don't want to do it," said Driesell, who signed four bluechip athletes one week in March. "I like getting around and meeting people, that part of it. But not the travel or the time away from home."

The pressure to field a winning team, which in turn soothes the alumni, fills the arenas and balances the budget, often leads to cheating and manipulating. The extent of it is a matter of debate.

Al McGuire of Marquette said: "I really think all this talk of cheating is overrated. From what I know, very little goes on. Sometimes a coach will use that as an excuse because he doesn't want to admit he was outrecruited."

Driesell: "There may be some violations going on, but generally speaking those people are caught and punished and I don't think they will be in the profession very long. You have dishonest people in every profession, but they don't last very long. I think cruiting violations are blown way out of proportion."

But two other reputable coaches, Digger Phelps of Notre Dame and Dale Brown of Louisiana State, have described the state of collegiate recruiting in terms of "Watergate," although Phelps backed off slightly after his comments were published.

Phelps said college basketball soon will be hit by a major recruiting scandal involving prestigious schools which "will be our Watergate." He later said his remarks were greatly exaggerated.

"Things will come out that will shock a lot of people," said Phelps. "I would not say what schools I think will get caught, but they include some prestigious schools in basketball.

"Obviously, our system of penalties does not work. Cheating is so widespread that until now the odds were against anyone being caught because there were so few investigators. But the few who were caught did not get a stiff enough penalty to discourage anyone."

Brown, who insists that a coach must be a trial lawyer to understand the NCAA's recruiting regulations, said: "We need a Watergate in college basketball to bring out the facts. I know what's going on, and it's terrible. But too many people won't believe it."

In February, LSU informed the Southeastern Conference it may have violated a basketball recruiting rule. "We do not think we were in violation of the rules, but maybe we broke 93 rules or something because there are so many I don't know," said Brown.

The alleged violation involves two LSU players who talked to a high school player in a dressing room after a game. Under NCAA rules, a college may not recruit high school players on the court or in a dressing room without permission from the coach.

"...This is the epitome of some of the problems which exist in the NCAA," he said. "I have had debates with the NCAA before over their rules, and I believe you almost have to be (famed trial lawyer) Melvin Belli to understand" them.

Wisconsin's John Powless says: "We've been forced to ignore some prospects because of what they were asking for. ...We've been forced to recruit some people we thought we could develop instead of some well-publicized blue chippers."

Recruiting is disliked equally by football coaches. Michigan's Bo Schembechler said of the constant follow-up, flattery and promises to prospects: "It's not good for the kids. It's not good for the coaches, either. Here I am prostituting myself to sign some 17 - year - old kid to come to Michigan."

Part of the reason some coaches prefer not to turn in their peers for illegal recruiting is that such a thing often can do more harm than good, according to a recent series in the Milwaukee Journal.

The paper quoted a former Big Ten coach as saying: "I and some other conference coaches used to always report certain schools, but the conference wouldn't do anything about it. It was like they were telling us to go out and cheat like the rest of them. Besides, it just creates bad feelings among coaches."

In their book on recruiting, "Athletes for Sale," to be released April 24, Kenneth Denlinger and Leonard Shapiro quote Denny Crum, coach of Louisville: "I think the recruiting violations are getting worse and worse. I can name you a half dozen of the worst cheaters right off the hat. Everyone knows they're cheating. You can give money under the table and it can't be traced."

Frank McGuire of South Carolina said in the book, "Most of the time I don't even want to know what's going on. When a prize recruit comes in, he's shown around by Mr. So and So, a prominent businessman. Whatever happens, happens on that end."

Ted Voigt, who quit in 1974 as an assistant coach at Wisconsin mostly because of the travel required by recruiting and scouting, said he believed illegal recruiting is widespread.

"I'm absolutely sure it goes on," he said. "A large number of blue chip athletes get extra incentive from coaches or alumni.

"I suspect that many of the schools that have been successful year in and year out participate in cheating. But the guys up top won't talk about it because that's why so many of them are there. The guys with losing records can't talk about it, because it sounds like they're just crybabying."

Kentucky Derby Field Shapes Up

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

Pending the Wood Memorial and the Bluegrass Stakes, the field for the 101st running of the Kentucky Derby now shapes up as 12 to 14 horses, headed by Florida Derby winner Prince Thou Art.

Also likely to be at the post May 3 at Churchill Downs in Louisville are Santa Anita Derby winner Avatar; Laramie Trail and Singh, winners of the Gotham Stakes divisions; Promised City, the Arkansas Derby victor, and more than half a dozen others.

These Derby nominees might join the likes of W.S. Farish III's Bold Gun and others in the starting gate for the 1¼-mile Kentucky Derby. Bold Gun, a little-known candidate, scored in an allowance race Saturday at Aqueduct, timed in 1:10 1-5 and winning by 1½ lengths.

Singh, owned by Miss Cynthia Phipps and Hal Price Headley Jr., scored his third stakes triumph without a loss when he won the second division of the one-mile Gotham by 2½ lengths over a non-Derby candidate, Round Stake.

With 30-35 mile-per-hour gusts of wind in his face, Singh still finished the mile in 1:37, a full second better than Laramie Trail's clocking in the first division.

Meantime, at Hot Springs, Ark., Promised City, winner of four out of five races this year, took the top purse of $82,140 in the Arkansas Derby to make the colt a prime contender for the Kentucky Derby.

In Arcadia, Calif., La Zanzara, a grey mare bred in England, surprised the males Sunday and became the first of her sex to win the San Juan Capistrano Handicap at Santa Anita since 1949.

The five year-old mare covered the grueling, 1¾-mile grass course in 2:52 1-5 to turn back the 1974 San Juan champion, Astray, by a head and win the $125,000 marathon.

Kickers Win

Gary Usinger scored three goals as the St. Joe Kickers downed Grand Haven 5-1 Sunday in a home exhibition game.

St. Joe's junior 'B' team was also a winner by a 2-1 score, with Steve Hardwidge and Lothar Usinger scoring the goals.

Cheating Believed Widespread In College Recruiting

By TOM SEPPY
AP Sports Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — For most college coaches, the search for new talent is the worst part of their job.

The big-time coaches must travel coast-to-coast in their quest to convince a top high school player that his college is better than the other 250 which are seeking the star. It usually means losing, and too many losses in the spring means too many losses in the winter.

Maryland's Lefty Driesell, one of the most successful recruiters, doesn't like the annual search.

"I don't know of any coach who really does, but it's part of the job, and you better get out if you don't want to do it," said Driesell, who signed four bluechip athletes one week in March. "I like getting around and meeting people, that part of it. But not the travel or the time away from home."

The pressure to field a winning team, which in turn soothes the alumni, fills the arenas and balances the budget, often leads to cheating and manipulating. The extent of it is a matter of debate.

Al McGuire of Marquette said: "I really think all this talk of cheating is overrated. From what I know, very little goes on. Sometimes a coach will use that as an excuse because he doesn't want to admit he was outrecruited."

Driesell: "There may be some violations going on, but generally speaking those people are caught and punished and I don't think they will be in the profession very long. You have dishonest people in every profession, but they don't last very long. I think cruiting violations are blown way out of proportion."

But two other reputable coaches, Digger Phelps of Notre Dame and Dale Brown of Louisiana State, have described the state of collegiate recruiting in terms of "Watergate," although Phelps backed off slightly after his comments were published.

Phelps said college basketball soon will be hit by a major recruiting scandal involving prestigious schools which "will be our Watergate." He later said his remarks were greatly exaggerated.

"Things will come out that will shock a lot of people," said Phelps. "I would not say what schools I think will get caught, but they include some prestigious schools in basketball.

"Obviously, our system of penalties does not work. Cheating is so widespread that until now the odds were against anyone being caught because there were so few investigators. But the few who were caught did not get a stiff enough penalty to discourage anyone."

Brown, who insists that a coach must be a trial lawyer to understand the NCAA's recruiting regulations, said: "We need a Watergate in college basketball to bring out the facts. I know what's going on, and it's terrible. But too many people won't believe it."

In February, LSU informed the Southeastern Conference it may have violated a basketball recruiting rule. "We do not think we were in violation of the rules, but maybe we broke 93 rules or something because there are so many I don't know," said Brown.

The alleged violation involves two LSU players who talked to a high school player in a dressing room after a game. Under NCAA rules, a college may not recruit high school players on the court or in a dressing room without permission from the coach.

"...This is the epitome of some of the problems which exist in the NCAA," he said. "I have had debates with the NCAA before over their rules, and I believe you almost have to be (famed trial lawyer) Melvin Belli to understand" them.

Wisconsin's John Powless says: "We've been forced to ignore some prospects because of what they were asking for...We've been forced to recruit some people we thought we could develop instead of some well-publicized blue chippers."

Recruiting is disliked equally by football coaches. Michigan's Bo Schembecher said of the constant follow-up, flattery and promises to prospects: "It's not good for the kids. It's not good for the coaches, either. Here I am prostituting myself to sign some 17 - year - old kid to come to Michigan."

Part of the reason some coaches prefer not to turn in their peers for illegal recruiting is that such a thing often can do more harm than good, according to a recent series in the Milwaukee Journal.

The paper quoted a former Big Ten coach as saying: "I and some other conference coaches used to always report certain schools, but the conference wouldn't do anything about it. It was like they were telling us to go out and cheat like the rest of them. Besides, it just creates bad feelings among coaches."

In their book on recruiting, "Athletes for Sale," to be released April 24, Kenneth Denlinger and Leonard Shapiro quote Denny Crum, coach of Louisville: "I think the recruiting violations are getting worse and worse. I can name you a half dozen of the worst cheaters right off the bat. Everyone knows they're cheating. You can give money under the table and it can't be traced."

Frank McGuire of South Carolina said in the book, "Most of the time I don't even want to know what's going on. When a prize recruit comes in, he's shown around by Mr. So and So, a prominent businessman. Whatever happens, happens on that end."

Ted Voigt, who quit in 1974 as an assistant coach at Wisconsin mostly because of the travel required by recruiting and scouting, said he believed illegal recruiting is widespread.

"I'm absolutely sure it goes on," he said. "A large number of blue chip athletes get extra incentive from coaches or alumni.

"I suspect that many of the schools that have been successful year in and year out participate in cheating. But the guys up top won't talk about it because that's why so many of them are there. The guys with losing records can't talk about it, because it sounds like they're just crybabying."

Nets 77th Goal For Grounded Jets

Hull Sets Scoring Record

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

Bobby Hull broke Phil Esposito's goal scoring record with his 77th tally of the season Sunday night, but he and his Winnipeg Jets face a long summer while eight other World Hockey Association clubs prepare for the playoffs.

Hull wound up with a sparkling 142 points in 78 games by adding 65 assists to his goal output. But he finished second in scoring to San Diego's Andre Lacroix, who amassed 41 goals and 106 assists to lead the Mariners into a post-season series with the Toronto Toros.

The two finished their regular seasons as the Jets and Mariners tied 5-5 Sunday night.

Other best-of-seven first-round series will match the Cleveland Crusaders against the defending champion Houston Aeros, the Minnesota Fighting Saints against the East Division champion New England Whalers, and the expansion Phoenix Roadrunners against the Canadian Division titlist Quebec Nordiques.

"Missing the playoffs is a letdown," said Hull, the 36-year-old left wing. "Yet everything we've been able to do as a line kind of heals the wound a little."

Hull's line, with Ulf Nilsson at center and Anders Hedberg on right wing, accounted for 136 goals, including 53 by Hedberg in his first professional season.

Hull's historic goal came at 19:26 of the middle period, on a wrist shot from just inside the blue line that beat Mariners netminder Russ Gillow. That topped the record Esposito set in 1970-71, when he collected 76 goals in 78 games.

Meanwhile, the Minnesota Fighting Saints topped the Baltimore Blades 6-5 in overtime, Houston tripped Toronto 5-2, the Vancouver Blazers trimmed the Indianapolis Racers 4-3, and the Edmonton Oilers beat the Chicago Cougars 6-3.

Gary Gambucci scored three goals, including the winner in overtime, as Minnesota tripped Baltimore.

The Blades had an empty-net goal nullified by an offside call. Then Wayne Connelly rapped in the tying goal with eight seconds left in regulation play.

Protests from the Baltimore fans approached riot proportions and referee Brent Casselman refused to leave the ice without a police escort.

Jim Sherrit and Frank Hughes scored two goals apiece to pace Houston. Frank Mahovlich and Wayne Dillon got Toronto's goals.

Vancouver clinched fourth place in the Canadian Division behind two goals by Hugh Harris. Mike Pelyk and Don Burgess had the other Blazers scores. Bob Sicinski, Dick Proceviat and Nick Harbaruk hit for Indianapolis.

Bruce MacGregor scored twice as Edmonton finished its season with a victory over Chicago. Ken Baird, Barry Long, Bobby Sheehan and Mike Rogers also connected for the Oilers. The Cougars got two goals from Jan Popeil and one from Bryan Baltimore.

Petty Wins NASCAR Race; Foyt Captures Trenton 200

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

Richard Petty and A.J. Foyt, rated by many to be the best race drivers America has produced, added victories to already bulging trophy cases during the weekend.

Petty, already a $1.82 million winner in stock cars, rode his red and blue Dodge to an overwhelming victory in the 250-mile Gwyn Staley Memorial Grand National race at North Wilkesboro, N.C., on Sunday.

It was the 37-year-old Petty's 168th career triumph, his 12th in 28 starts on the five-eighths of a mile North Carolina oval and his fourth in seven outings this year.

Foyt, racing's all-time money winner with more than $3 million in a career span that matches Petty's 17 years, beat 1974 Indianapolis winner Johnny Rutherford to the wire to capture the Trenton 200 for U.S. Auto Club championship cars.

The 40-year-old Foyt, known variously as "Super Tex" and "Tough Tony," established a new race record of 154.625 miles per hour for the 1.5 mile Trenton Fairgrounds layout.

Petty, toiling on a much smaller oval, the rustic North Wilkesboro Speedway, loafed around for two hours, 46 minutes and 39 seconds to beat the Chevrolet-driving Cale Yarborough by almost four laps.

Foyt, taking home the 50th career victory in the hot USAC championship cars, now has won three of his four starts this year and appears an odds-on favorite to pick up an unprecedented fourth triumph at Indianapolis, the next stop on the USAC tour.

The Texan started 10th in the line-up at Trenton — rain canceled time trials Saturday and forced the drivers to draw starting assignments from a hat — but he grabbed the lead on the 21st lap and never was headed.

The race was run without a yellow light being shown as Mike Moseley came home third, Wally Dallenbach fourth and Tom Sneva fifth.

Petty lost the front row pole position at North Wilkesboro to upstart Chevrolet driver Darrell Waltrip of Franklin, Tenn. But he beat Waltrip to the starting line and was never worse than fifth in the early stages. He was in and out of the lead several times before taking command for good at the 159th lap.

His average speed was 90.009 m.p.h., held down by four yellow lights involving 34 laps. His share of the purse was $6,675. Foyt was paid about $15,000.

Placing third behind Petty and Yarborough was Buddy Baker in a Ford. Dave Marcis drove a Dodge to fourth place while 1973 Grand National Rookie of the Year Lennie Pond came in fifth in a Chevrolet.

Coach Hired

ATLANTA (AP) — Coach Pepper Rodgers has added Russel Charles, who played football for Rodgers at UCLA in 1972 and 1973, to the Georgia Tech staff as an offensive coach.

"Russel is well skilled in the fundamentals of the wishbone attack as we know it," Rodgers said Saturday. "His youth and enthusiasm will also be great assets to our program."

Charles, 22, of Houston, replaces Steve Ortmayer who has joined the staff of the Kansas City Chiefs of the National Football League.

New WHA Trophy Named For Gordie

HOUSTON (AP) — The World Hockey Association has announced a new trophy to be presented the most valuable player in the league playoffs — the Gordie Howe Award.

The trophy was unveiled at a Houston Aeros' booster club gathering and honors the 47-year-old winger who has said this will be his final year, marking the end of a 27-year career as major league hockey's most prolific scorer.

Howe, the MVP award winner in the WHA last year and a longtime National Hockey league standout with the Detroit Red Wings, currently stands eighth in the league scoring race.

The award, sculptured in Howe's likeness, was announced by Ben Hatskin of Winnipeg, chief executive officer of the WHA.

"There is no question that this represents one of the most cherished awards a player can receive," Hatskin said. "The name Howe is synonymous with greatness."

Howe, who went over the 2,000-point mark this year, played 25 years with the Red Wings, retiring four years ago to take a front-office job with the Wings organization.

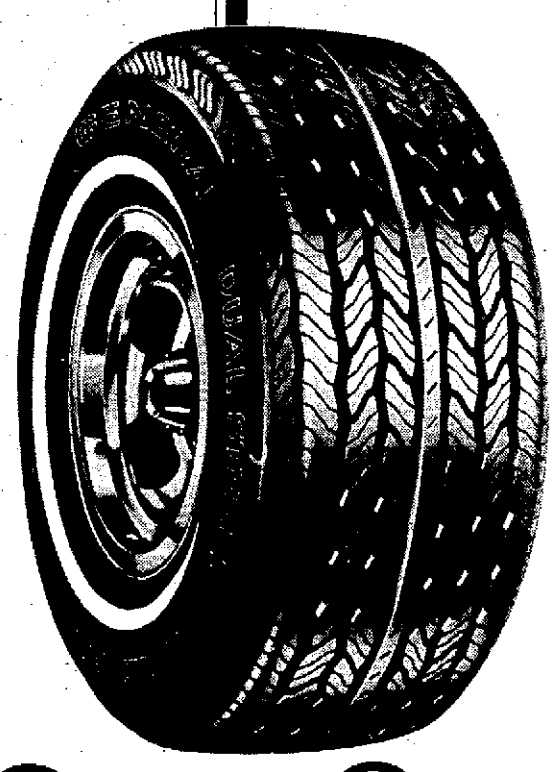

He had, however, expressed a long-standing desire to play on the same team as his two sons, Marty and Mark. When the Aeros plucked the two younger Howes from the Toronto Marlboro junior organization two years ago, Howe senior went along with the deal.

He later signed on as a player.

Nets 77th Goal For Grounded Jets

Hull Sets Scoring Record

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

Bobby Hull broke Phil Esposito's goal scoring record with his 77th tally of the season Sunday night, but he and his Winnipeg Jets face a long summer while eight other World Hockey Association clubs prepare for the playoffs.

Hull wound up with a sparkling 142 points in 78 games by adding 65 assists to his goal output. But he finished second in scoring to San Diego's Andre Lacroix, who amassed 41 goals and 106 assists to lead the Mariners into a post-season series with the Toronto Toros.

The two finished their regular seasons as the Jets and Mariners tied 5-5 Sunday night.

Other best-of-seven first-round series will match the Cleveland Crusaders against the defending champion Houston Aeros, the Minnesota Fighting Saints against the East Division champion New England Whalers, and the expansion Phoenix Roadrunners against the Canadian Division titlist Quebec Nordiques.

"Missing the playoffs is a letdown," said Hull, the 36-year-old left wing. "Yet everything we've been able to do as a line kind of heals the wound a little."

Hull's line, with Ulf Nilsson at center and Anders Hedberg on right wing, accounted for 156 goals, including 53 by Hedberg in his first professional season.

Hull's historic goal came at 19:26 of the middle period, on a wrist shot from just inside the blue line that beat Mariners netminder Russ Gillow. That topped the record Esposito set in 1970-71, when he collected 76 goals in 78 games.

Meanwhile, the Minnesota Fighting Saints topped the Baltimore Blades 6-5 in overtime, Houston tripped Toronto 5-2, the Vancouver Blazers trimmed the Indianapolis Racers 4-3, and the Edmonton Oilers beat the Chicago Cougars 6-3.

Gary Gambucci scored three goals, including the winner in overtime, as Minnesota tripped Baltimore.

The Blades had an empty-net goal nullified by an offside call. Then Wayne Connelly rapped in the tying goal with eight seconds left in regulation play.

Protests from the Baltimore fans approached riot proportions and referee Brent Casselman refused to leave the ice without a police escort.

Jim Sherrit and Frank Hughes scored two goals apiece to pace Houston. Frank Mahovlich and Wayne Dillon got Toronto's goals.

Vancouver clinched fourth place in the Canadian Division behind two goals by Hugh Harris. Mike Pelyk and Don Burgess had the other Blazers scores. Bob Sicinski, Dick Proceviat and Nick Harbaruk hit for Indianapolis.

Bruce MacGregor scored twice as Edmonton finished its season with a victory over Chicago. Ken Baird, Barry Long, Bobby Sheehan and Mike Rogers also connected for the Oilers. The Cougars got two goals from Jan Popeil and one from Bryan Baltimore.

Petty Wins NASCAR Race; Foyt Captures Trenton 200

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

Richard Petty and A.J. Foyt, rated by many to be the best race drivers America has produced, added victories to already bulging trophy cases during the weekend.

Petty, already a $1.82 million winner in stock cars, rode his red and blue Dodge to an overwhelming victory in the 250-mile Gwyn Staley Memorial Grand National race at North Wilkesboro, N.C., on Sunday.

It was the 37-year-old Petty's 168th career triumph, his 12th in 28 starts on the five-eighths of a mile North Carolina oval and his fourth in seven outings this year.

Foyt, racing's all-time money winner with more than $3 million in a career span that matches Petty's 17 years, beat 1974 Indianapolis winner Johnny Rutherford to the wire to capture the Trenton 200 for U.S. Auto Club championship cars.

The 40-year-old Foyt, known variously as "Super Tex" and "Tough Tony," established a new race record of 154.625 miles per hour for the 1.5 mile Trenton Fairgrounds layout.

Petty, toiling on a much smaller oval, the rustic North Wilkesboro Speedway, loafed around for two hours, 46 minutes and 39 seconds to beat the Chevrolet-driving Cale Yarborough by almost four laps.

Foyt, taking home the 50th career victory in the hot USAC championship cars, now has won three of his four starts this year and appears an odds-on favorite to pick up an unprecedented fourth triumph at Indianapolis, the next stop on the USAC tour.

The Texan started 10th in the line-up at Trenton — rain canceled time trials Saturday and forced the drivers to draw starting assignments from a hat — but he grabbed the lead on the 21st lap and never was headed.

The race was run without a yellow light being shown as Mike Moseley came home third, Wally Dallanbach fourth and Tom Sneva fifth.

Petty lost the front row pole position at North Wilkesboro to upstart Chevrolet driver Darrell Waltrip of Franklin, Tenn. But he beat Waltrip to the starting line and was never worse than fifth in the early stages. He was in and out of the lead several times before taking command for good at the 159th lap.

His average speed was 90.009 m.p.h., held down by four yellow lights involving 34 laps. His share of the purse was $6,675. Foyt was paid about $15,000.

Placing third behind Petty and Yarborough was Buddy Baker in a Ford. Dave Marcis drove a Dodge to fourth place while 1973 Grand National Rookie of the Year Lennie Pond came in fifth in a Chevrolet.

Van Buren Officials Hold The Line On Own Salaries

Pay raises were few and far between for elected township officials in Van Buren county during annual meetings Saturday.

Increases were reported in only four of the county's 18 townships. Increases in budgets occurred in 14.

Accounts of 17 of the township meetings follow.

Almena

ALMENA — A $5,000 allocation to begin planning for a new township hall was part of a 1975-76 Almena township budget of $64,482 passed during the annual township meeting Saturday.

A total of $3,000 of the $5,000 was earmarked for the purchase of land for the building, although township officials said they are not sure how much the building will cost or when work could begin. There was also some discussion of turning the present township hall into a historical society building, although no action was taken.

The new budget represents about a $4,000 increase over last year's expenditures of $60,150, with $23,180 slated to go for roads, $5,500 for fire protection, and $11,080 for salaries of township officers.

Ten people attended the two-hour meeting, during which Joe Reaves was named to the Lake View Community hospital board and Mrs. Harold Williams was appointed to the township library board.

Antwerp

MATTAWAN — An Antwerp township budget calling for expenditures of about $5,000 over last year's figure of $93,867 was approved during the annual township meeting Saturday.

Included in the new budget of $98,750, is a $3,000 increase, from $12,000 to $15,000, in the amount allocated for road repairs, according to township Supervisor Fred Olson. He said part of the money will be used to pave 23rd street from Red Arrow highway to the Mattawan village limits.

Other major expenditures in the new budget include $20,000 for fire protection, $9,500 for maintenance of the township landfill, $6,400 for attorney's fees, and $3,000 for building inspection, he said.

The budget is based on revenue which includes a previous balance of $22,710, sales taxes of $19,500, local property taxes of $22,000, and $20,000 from fire department income.

Olson said about 20 people attended the 45-minute meeting.

Arlington

BANGOR — A $65,128 budget for Arlington township government fiscal 1975 was approved by the 12 people attending the Arlington township annual meeting Saturday.

The budget is up approximately $24,000 over last year. Part of the increase ($7,000 to $8,000) will be for the township's share toward the purchase of a new Bangor fire truck. The balance represents unexpended road improvement funds.

The high $276 bid from Allan Hosier for the purchase of a used lawn mower was approved.

The board set its regular monthly meeting for the third Monday.

Bangor

BANGOR — Salary increases for elected Bangor township officials were approved during Saturday's annual township meeting.

The largest increase was a doubling of the salary of treasurer Mrs. Roena Moore from $1,200 to $2,400.

Other salary increases were: supervisor Glenn Hessey, $3,000 to $3,500; clerk Roger Thomas, $2,000 to $2,500; and trustees Alfred Wood and Curtis Drake, $15 to $25 per meeting.

In other areas, a $103,605 budget for the new fiscal year was approved by the 15 people attending. The budget for the past year was $77,801. Most of the increase will be from accumulated surpluses in the road improvement fund. In addition, the township is anticipating a $7,000 to $8,000 expenditure as its share of Bangor's new fire truck. This money will come from federal revenue sharing funds.

The board set its regular monthly meeting for the second Tuesday at 8 p.m. at the Wood school.

Bloom'dale

BLOOMINGDALE — Funds totaling $50,630 were earmarked for the rebuilding of two miles of 20th avenue from M-40 to 38th street during the annual Bloomingdale township meeting Saturday.

The $50,630 figure was among $96,000 allocated for road repair and maintenance in the $151,188 budget passed at the meeting. Last year's expenditures were $145,134.

Revenue from a six-mill levy on township residents for road repair and maintenance is expected to raise $67,113. Other major sources of income in the budget include $12,583 in contingency funds, $10,672 in federal revenue sharing, $23,260 in state sales tax, and $11,140 in delinquent taxes.

In other business, a request by Fire Chief Frank Sites for $400 in new equipment was approved, and Robert Pearson, Robert Remington, and John Boer were appointed to four-year terms on the zoning board.

KEEPING WATCH: On the inside looking out is Ookie, young female walrus at Bronx Zoo, who enjoys peering over her enclosure at onlookers as much as they enjoy looking at her. Ookie is also notorious for coaxing visitors close to edge of her pool and splashing them.

Supervisor Al Page announced that the township's state equalized valuation had risen from $6,404,774 to $8,389,148.

There was also some discussion on beginning a card system to be used for identification at the township landfill, but action was tabled until the next board meeting.

Columbia

BANGOR — Substantial pay increases for elected Columbia township official were approved by the 14 people attending the annual township meeting Saturday.

Salaries were increased as follows: supervisor Nathan Ellis, $3,200 to $5,200; clerk Ronald Kreiger, $2,000 to $4,000; treasurer Mrs. Gloria Waite, $2,000 to $4,000 and trustees Marvin Landers and Vern Kreiger, $15 to $25 per meeting.

A $76,633 budget for fiscal 1975 was approved. The budget for last year was $51,285. A portion of the increase will go toward the township's contribution of $7,000 to $8,000 for a new fire truck for Bangor.

The citizens approved a $250 donation to the Bangor recreation council.

The board set its regular monthly meeting for the third Tuesday at 8 p.m. at the township hall.

Covert

COVERT — A reduced budget for Covert township in fiscal 1975 was approved by the 70 people attending the annual township meeting Saturday.

The new budget, decreased by a drop in valuation of the Palisades nuclear power plant, will be $284,000 as opposed to $330,000 last year.

Most of the reduction will be absorbed through smaller appropriations for road improvements ($140,000 to $80,000) and the police department ($108,992 to $59,000).

Township officials said the smaller police budget will not mean a reduction in protection as the department will continue to have five fulltime employees. A major portion of last year's budget went toward capital expenditures that will not need to be repeated.

In other areas, the board agreed that a citizens committee investigating the possibility of setting up a transportation system for the township be continued.

Mrs. Octavia Hawkins urged purchase of a mini-bus to serve elderly citizens and others through the program and sponsored a motion that the committee be revitalized and expanded. The motion was approved.

Supervisor Jerry Sarno had said prior to the motion that the committee would be expanded.

Bernard Lucas, a Covert school board member, challenged the township's display of a chart showing that half or more of the local property taxes collected by the township go to the Covert schools system. He contended that the chart was disruptive and that the township was "picking on" the school board.

Mrs. Bernard Lucas was appointed chairman of the township's Bicentennial committee. A $500 donation toward the celebration was approved.

The annual township cleanup week was scheduled for May 5-10 with Frank Edmondson as chairman. The landfill will be open from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. each day during cleanup week.

The board set its regular monthly meeting for the first Monday at 8 p.m. in the township hall. The upcoming April meeting, however, was changed to April 14.

The board said it would conduct a public hearing in June to determine the uses for federal revenue sharing funds.

Decatur

DECATUR — A 1975-76 budget of $114,000 for Decatur township government, a $10,000 increase over last year's expenditures, was approved Saturday during the annual Decatur township meeting.

Supervisor Joseph Miller said at the meeting that he had asked township officers to refrain from asking for raises in order to hold the line on spending.

Among the major items in the new budget were $40,000 for roads, $17,500 for the Webster Memorial library, $5,000 for cemetery maintenance, and $5,000 for drains.

In other areas, Miller reported that the township's state equalized valuation had risen from $12,994,611 in 1974 to $13,179,399.

Treasurer Mrs. Ruth Leighton said that $404,778 of the $492,862 in 1974 taxes levied had been collected, and that she had taken in $1,760 in dog license fees for the year.

There was also discussion on whether to rebuild 2.87 miles of Old Swamp road, but no action was taken. Miller estimated the cost of the project at $78,000.

Resolutions granting the township board permission to buy and sell land as necessary, and thanking the Decatur volunteer fire department for the good job it has done in handling ambulance calls, were also approved.

Geneva

SOUTH HAVEN — A $113,167 budget for Geneva township government in fiscal 1975 was approved by the 20 people attending the Geneva annual township meeting Saturday.

The budget is an increase of $15,000 from the previous year.

The people present also approved the following donations: $200 to the Bangor recreation council, $100 to the Bangor branch of the Van Buren library, and $500 to the Van Buren Association for Retarded Citizens.

The board set its monthly meeting for the third Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the township hall.

Hamilton

DECATUR — A $5 boost in pay for attending meetings was granted Hamilton township trustees Saturday at the annual township meeting.

The rate was increased to $20 and affected current trustees, Stanton Fassett and Ernie Froehlich.

The increase was part of a 1975-76 budget of $64,175. The budget was down $3,825 from last year's $68,000. The major item in the budget was a $25,000 allocation for road maintenance.

The annual salaries of Supervisor Millard Phillips ($2,400) Clerk Mrs. Irene Weber, and Treasurer Richard Shroyer ($1,800 each) remained unchanged.

Shroyer reported that $138,059 of $159,905 in 1974 taxes levied had been collected, and that he had also taken in $768 in dog license fees.

Mrs. Weber said much of the discussion of the meeting centered around what to do with the township's $13,451 federal revenue sharing funds. The township does not have a hall of its own, and Mrs. Weber said the township board is considering buying the Hamilton Grange hall where it presently meets to use as a township hall. She said there was also discussion of applying the revenue sharing money toward a new township hall.

The hour long meeting was attended by 12 people.

Hartford

HARTFORD — A $170,000 budget for fiscal 1975 was approved by the eight people attending the Hartford township annual meeting Saturday.

The budget is up 13,000 from last year. The building fund portion of the budget was increased from $16,000 to $32,000 as the township anticipates construction of a new townhall.

Several appointments to committees were approved. Robert Crane was reappointed to a three-year term on the township road committee while Mrs. George Huffman was named to a one-year term on the library board and Mrs. Steve Schafer to a two-year term on the planning board.

William Cutting of Paw Paw was approved as the township's auditor.

The board set its regular monthly meeting date for the second Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. at the township hall.

No changes in the salaries of elected township officials were made.

Keeler

KEELER — An increased budget of nearly $35,000 for the new fiscal year was approved for Keeler township government during the annual township meeting Saturday.

The proposed budget will be $132,654 as opposed to $98,000 for the past year, according to Supervisor John Gillesby.

A major portion of the increase will go for a $20,000 addition to the fire station. The township also proposes to spend $45,000 for road improvements, up $5,000 from last year. The cost of preparing a new zoning ordinance was placed at $5,000.

Gillesby said most of the budget increase will be taken from a $44,000 accumulated surplus as well as anticipated larger tax revenues due to increased property valuation.

The board set its regular monthly meeting for the first Tuesday at 8 p.m. during the summer months and 7:30 p.m. during the winter.

Lawrence

LAWRENCE — A budget calling for expenditures by Lawrence township government of $17,255 over last year was approved during the annual Lawrence township meeting Saturday.

Included in the new budget of $78,907 were increases of over $5,000 each for cemetery maintenance and road repair. Last year's total expenditures were $61,652.

The amount budgeted for road repairs rose from $12,492 last year to $18,000 this year, with cemetery maintenance going from $11,561 to $16,950, with most of that increase because of the purchase of a new pickup truck.

Another major area of spending was the $14,375 budgeted for the fire department, which includes a raise in the annual salary of Fire Chief Dennis Harrington from $500 to $600. Firemen also received a raise, from $1 to $2 for each hour after the first hour they are at a fire.

The new budget is based on revenues expected to be $65,203 and a previous balance of $13,704. Major income sources include $20,000 from the state, $10,100 from property taxes, $8,030 from fire department services, and $9,000 in federal revenue saring.

In other action, Richard Reynnells was appointed to the zoning board of appeals and LaVerne Jewell was named to the library board. About 20 people attended the two hour meeting.

Van Buren Officials Hold The Line On Own Salaries

Pay raises were few and far between for elected township officials in Van Buren county during annual meetings Saturday.

Increases were reported in only four of the county's 18 townships. Increases in budgets occurred in 14.

Accounts of 17 of the township meetings follow.

Almena

ALMENA — A $5,000 allocation to begin planning tor a new township hall was part of a 1975-76 Almena township budget of $64,482 passed during the annual township meeting Saturday.

A total of $3,000 of the $5,000 was earmarked for the purchase of land for the building, although township officials said they are not sure how much the building will cost or when work could begin. There was also some discussion of turning the present township hall into a historical society building, although no action was taken.

The new budget represents about a $4,000 increase over last year's expenditures of $60,150, with $23,180 slated to go for roads, $5,500 for fire protection, and $11,080 for salaries of township officers.

Ten people attended the two-hour meeting, during which Joe Reaves was named to the Lake View Community hospital board and Mrs. Harold Williams was appointed to the township library board.

Antwerp

MATTAWAN — An Antwerp township budget calling for expenditures of about $5,000 over last year's figure of $93,867 was approved during the annual township meeting Saturday.

Included in the new budget of $98,750, is a $3,000 increase, from $12,000 to $15,000, in the amount allocated for road repairs, according to township Supervisor Fred Olson. He said part of the money will be used to pave 23rd street from Red Arrow highway to the Mattawan village limits.

Other major expenditures in the new budget include $20,000 for fire protection, $9,500 for maintenance of the township landfill, $6,400 for attorney's fees, and $3,000 for building inspection, he said.

The budget is based on revenue which includes a previous balance of $22,710, sales taxes ot $19,500, local property taxes of $22,000, and $20,000 from fire department income.

Olson said about 20 people attended the 45-minute meeting.

Arlington

BANGOR — A $65,128 budget for Arlington township government fiscal 1975 was approved by the 12 people attending the Arlington township annual meeting Saturday.

The budget is up approximately $24,000 over last year. Part of the increase ($7,000 to $8,000) will be for the township's share toward the purchase of a new Bangor fire truck. The balance represents unexpended road improvement funds.

The high $276 bid from Allan Hosier for the purchase of a used lawn mower was approved.

The board set its regular monthly meeting for the third Monday.

Bangor

BANGOR — Salary increases for elected Bangor township officials were approved during Saturday's annual township meeting.

Other salary increases were: supervisor Glenn Hessey, $3,000 to $3,500; clerk Roger Thomas, $2,000 to $2,500; and trustees Alfred Wood and Curtis Drake, $15 to $25 per meeting.

In other areas, a $103,605 budget for the new fiscal year was approved by the 15 people attending. The budget for the past year was $77,801. Most of the increase will be from accumulated surpluses in the road improvement fund. In addition, the township is anticipating a $7,000 to $8,000 expenditure as its share of Bangor's new fire truck. This money will come from federal revenue sharing funds.

The board set its regular monthly meeting for the second Tuesday at 8 p.m. at the Wood school.

Bloom'dale

BLOOMINGDALE — Funds totaling $50,630 were earmarked for the rebuilding of two miles of 20th avenue from M-40 to 38th street during the annual Bloomingdale township meeting Saturday.

The $50,630 figure was among $96,000 allocated for road repair and maintenance in the $151,188 budget passed at the meeting. Last year's expenditures were $145,134.

Revenue from a six-mill levy on township residents for road repair and maintenance is expected to raise $67,113. Other major sources of income in the budget include $12,583 in contingency funds, $10,672 in federal revenue sharing, $23,260 in state sales tax, and $11,140 in delinquent taxes.

Supervisor Al Page announced that the township's state equalized valuation had risen from $6,404,774 to $8,389,148.

There was also some discussion on beginning a card system to be used for identification at the township landfill, but action was tabled until the next board meeting.

Lee Township Supervisor Target Of Recall Petition

A petition demanding the recall of a supervisor showed up Saturday at one of of the annual township meetings held in the southwest corner of Allegan county.

The petition was filed in Lee township just prior to the start of the annual meeting there. Whether an election is to be held depends on verification of the signatures on the document.

Accounts of the meetings in Lee, Clyde and Ganges townships follow. A report on the meeting in Casco township is on page 19.

Clyde

FENNVILLE — Clyde township residents approved pay hikes for three elected township officials during Saturday afternoon's annual township meeting.

Supervisor Reginald King was given a $500 pay hike, raising his salary to $2,480; Clerk Mrs. Axel Nielsen was granted a $100 pay raise, bringing her salary to $1,884, and Treasurer Mrs. Alex Davie, was given a $100 increase, bringing her salary to $1,651.

Mrs. Nielsen said 38 people attended the one-hour session and approved a budget of $44,085. She and the township board had sibmitted a budget of $43,185, down $201 from last year's $43,386, but that the pay hikes, totaling $900, brought the budget to $44,085.

In other areas, the 1.07 mills levied for township roads was renewed.

The township board will again meet on the second Monday of each month.

Ganges

GANGES — A $72,750 budget for 1975-76 operations was approved for Ganges township government during Saturday's annual township meeting.

The new budget, with expected revenue of $77,633, calls for spending $40,000 on road improvements. Half of the $40,000 will be for work on 62nd street. In fiscal 1974, a $64,000 spending level was approved by voters.

Salaries for the supervisor, clerk, and treasurer were left at 1974 levels, $5,000, $3,900, and $4,000 respectively.

Fifteen people attended the 45-minute meeting.

Lee

PULLMAN — A petition seeking the recall election of Lee township Supervisor Edson Harrison was submitted to township officials just prior to the annual meeting here Saturday.

Township Clerk Melvin Riston said the petition of 186 signatures wants Harrison recalled, claiming he lacks qualifications for jobs of supervisor and assessor.

The petitioners also are claiming that some property value assessments were unfair, citizens' group, the township clerk reported.

Harrison, 57, a Republican, was elected to the post in 1972.

During the regular annual meeting Saturday afternoon, some 50 people attending the 2½-hour session approved a $53,600 township budget for fiscal year 1975-76.

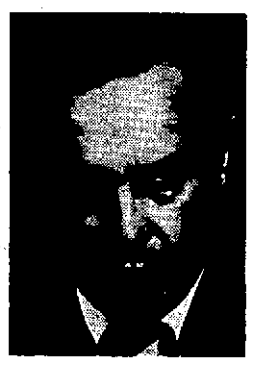

The new budget is about $1,578 higher than the township's 1974-75 budget, according to Riston.

Only salary increases granted, Riston said, were for the board's trustees who received a pay increase from $250 to $400 yearly.

He said the township board intends to ask for 1.7 mills for township operations from the county board of commissioners. It has been receiving one mill.

Riston said the petition signatures have to be examined to determine if they are valid. It takes 104 valid signatures to set up the recall election, he said.

The petition was submitted by Frank Alfaieri who said he represented a concerned ci-

CASS COUNTY MEETINGS

Only Wayne Officials Get Raises

Elected township officials in only one of the four townships making up the northwest corner of Cass county received pay raises Saturday during annual township meetings.

The raises went to officials in Wayne. Budgets in Wayne, Silver Creek and Pokagon were up, but in LaGrange the figures were down.

Articles on each of the meetings follow:

LaGrange

LAGRANGE — A 1975-76 LaGrange township budget of $57,285, about $4,000 lower than the 1974-75 budget, was approved by township residnts at the annual meeting Saturday.

Township officials said there are no salary increases for elected officials in the new budget which is lower because of an anticipated drop in revenue this coming year.

Officials said federal revenue sharing and state sales tax rebates funds will apparently be less in the coming year than in 1974-75.

Three road projects for the coming year were approved, however, officials said.

The projects are, $14,850 for blacktopping dirt portions of Dailey road; $2,105 for blacktopping portions of Cass street; and $3,600 for blacktopping Oak Grove street.

Poakgon

DOWAGIAC — Pokagon township residents adopted a 1975-76 township budget of $104,765, during the annual township meeting Saturday.

The new budget, in which there are no provisions for salary increases for elected township officials, is about $2,000 above the 1974-75 budget of $102,881.

Six people besides board members attended the meeting.

The board sought, and got approval, of a policy to get tougher with township residents who don't apply for required building permits.

Under the new policy, officials said, those who fail to obtain the required building permit will be charged double the usual building permit fees.

Silver Creek

DOWAGIAC — Silver Creek township residents at Saturday's annual township meeting approved a budget of $122,775, up $11,650 from the $111,125 budget approved last year for township governmental operations.

Township officials said the increase was due to increased costs of the secretary's office, police protection, cemetery maintenance, and the operation of the board of review.

Building administrator Art Deninis was given a $550 yearly pay increase, bringing his salary to $5,300.

The session was attended by 43 people who cast 26 votes in favor of the budget and 17 against.

Wayne

DOWAGIAC — A $93,000 budget for Wayne township was approved Saturday at the annual township meeting.

The budget is about $36,000 over the 1974-75 budget of $56,781.

Most of the increase will be for road repairs and improvements, township officials told the 10 people who attended the meeting.

Supervisor John Jerue said that the township board was reviewing the possibility of applying for a federal law enforcement grant to help pay costs of increased police protection.

Jerue said the police budget was increased $400 from last year to provide for additional road patrols. Jerue's announcement came after a lengthy discussion by those at the meeting who asked that more police be hired and more patrols be added.

Also included in the new budget were raises for the supervisor, an eight per cent boost bringing his salary to $5,400; the treasurer, an eight per cent boost up to $3,500; and the clerk, a 10 per cent hike up to $3,200.

The roads to be blacktopped or recapped in the coming year include parts of Atwood road, Dewey Lake street and Twin Lakes road, township officials said.

In other areas, the board was authorized to take bids for selling two parcels of land owned by the township.

Van Buren Units Also Announce Meeting Dates

$123,940, a $5,646 increase over last year's actual expenditures, was approved at the annual Paw Paw township meeting here Saturday.

The largest single increase, about $7,800, was the amount appropriated to the county road commission for road maintenance and new construction, which rose from $20,167 last year to a budgeted $27,950. Township Clerk Robert Jackson said the additional money would be used for some projects, including road resurfacing, which were postponed last year by a shortage of materials.

The road repair increase was offset by a number of items in which spending was reduced from last year, including a drop from $4,000 to $1,500 in the amount allocated for elections.

Sources of revenue include state revenue sharing, $53,551; tax collection fee, $10,000; liquor license return, $2,000; trailer park tax, $400; one mill township levy, $28,850; and a previous balance of $17,600.

Major areas of expenditures and appropriations in the budget include estimated expenses (salaries of township officers and police allotment), $18,900; township dump, $10,500; contingency fund, $5,000; Lake View Community hospital, $11,540; cemeteries, $10,000; road commission matching fund, $11,000; and road commission maintenance and new construction, $27,950.

It was also agreed to schedule township meetings for the second Thursday of each month at 7:30 p.m. in the township hall.

Saturday's 30-minute meeting was attended by 21 people.

Pine Grove

GOBLES — Two proposals dealing with what to do with the old Pine Grove township hall were approved Saturday during the annual Pine Grove township meeting.

One proposal authorized the township board to sell the hall, which has been vacant for about three years. The other established a committee to look into possible uses of the building. Named to the committee were Kensell Goss, James Greenwood and Jerry Smith.

The township board presently meets in the Kendall school.

In other areas, a 1975-76 budget of $53,850, a $933 increase over last year, was approved. Among major expenditures in the budget are $17,000 for roads, $6,800 for fire and water, and $10,308 for salaries of township officers.

One new budget item is a $2,000 expenditure for a file card system for the township assessor which would list descriptions of all township properties.

Supervisor Marshall Howrigan reported that the township's state equalized valuation had risen from $6,650,000 in 1974 to $7 million.

The board also voted to change its meetings to only the first Tuesday of the month, instead of every other Tuesday.

Mrs. Janet Abaduska was appointed to the library board.

Porter

LAWTON — Porter township Treasurer Harold J. Wilder and Clerk Mrs. Robert (Carole) Packer were each granted pay increases Saturday at the annual Porter township meeting.

Wilder's annual salary was raised from $2,400 to $2,760, while Mrs. Packer was granted an increase from $2,040 to $2,400. The salaries of Supervisor Marshall Mohoney ($4,200 annually) and Trustees Norman Turner and Herbert Moerdyk ($25 each per month) remained unchanged.

The increases were part of a 1975-76 budget of $42,600 approved during Saturday's 90-minute meeting, which was attended by 12 people. Last year's expenditures were $39,400.

The new budget is based on property taxes of $13,200 and revenue from the state of $29,400, according to Mrs. Packer.

Among the major expenditures were $9,500 for roads, $4,200 for Lake View Community hospital, $4,000 for the township landfill, $1,500 for cemetery maintenance, $3,000 for the planning commission, and $1,700 for legal fees.

Waverly

GLENDALE — Faced with the loss of revenue from a two-mill tax levy for road maintenance, Waverly township at its annual meeting Saturday slashed its 1975-76 budget to $45,167, a cut of over $8,000 from last year's expenditures of $53,702.

Township voters twice last year turned down a renewal of the two mill levy, with the resulting loss of revenue expected to be about $9,000, according to to township Clerk Mrs. Augusta Dahms. She said the township will also probably lose a portion of its federal revenue sharing money because of the millage defeat, which amounted to $5,123 last year.

The only new item in the budget is $800 appropriated for a land use study, according to Mrs. Dahms.

Major expenditures include $27,202 for road maintenance, $8,715 for salaries, and $1,500 each for fire protection and cemetery maintenance.

Major sources of income include: federal revenue sharing, $5,142; sales tax, $28,229; property tax, $4,309; delinquent taxes, $1,169; and collection fees, $1,939.

The 90-minute meeting was attended by 18 people.

Lee Township Supervisor Target Of Recall Petition

A petition demanding the recall of a supervisor showed up Saturday at one of of the annual township meetings held in the southwest corner of Allegan county.

The petition was filed in Lee township just prior to the start of the annual meeting there. Whether an election is to be held depends on verification of the signatures on the document.

Accounts of the meetings in Lee, Clyde and Ganges townships follow. A report on the meeting in Casco township is on page 19.

Clyde

FENNVILLE — Clyde township residents approved pay hikes for three elected township officials during Saturday afternoon's annual township meeting.

Supervisor Reginald King was given a $500 pay hike, raising his salary to $2,480; Clerk Mrs. Axel Nielsen was granted a $300 pay raise, bringing her salary to $1,884, and Treasurer Mrs. Alex Davie, was given a $100 increase, bringing her salary to $1,651.

Mrs. Nielsen said 38 people attended the one-hour session and approved a budget of $44,085. She and the township board had sibmitted a budget of $43,185, down $201 from last year's $43,386, but that the pay hikes, totaling $900, brought the budget to $44,085.

In other areas, the 1.07 mills levied for township roads was renewed.

The township board will again meet on the second Monday of each month.

Ganges

GANGES — A $72,750 budget for 1975-76 operations was approved for Ganges township government during Saturday's annual township meeting.

The new budget, with expected revenue of $77,633, calls for spending $40,000 on road improvements. Half of the $40,000 will be for work on 62nd street. In fiscal 1974, a $64,000 spending level was approved by voters.

Salaries for the supervisor, clerk, and treasurer were left at 1974 levels, $5,000, $3,900, and $4,000 respectively.

Fifteen people attended the 45-minute meeting.

'Enterprise' Keeps Flying

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Star Trek" flies again!

The joyous news is passing along from one "Star Trek" freak to another, and there are thousands.

No television series has ever attracted the fanatical folwing as the saga of the intrepid crew of the USS Enterprise.

Largely as a result of the continuing cult, Paramount has announced that it will produce a feature-length version of "Star Trek."

It will feature as many of the original cast as are willing to return, plus "10 international celebrities for cameo roles."

All this is very gratifying to Gene Roddenberry who will write and produce the feature. "Star Trek" is his baby.

"I just got back from a meeting with students at LSU (Louisiana State University)," he reported. "I like to get out to universities at least once a year to find out what they're thinking.

"This time they planned a meeting for 1,100 students. Eight thousand showed up, and the program had to be switched to the basketball stadium."

Star Trekkers are like that. Each year sees dozens of conventions among devotees of the series. There are two annually in New York, drawing more than 17,000 people, Roddenberry says.

"Star Trek" publications abound, and there are t-shirts, posters, bumper stickers and other forms of merchandise.

All this continues to amaze and delight the man who started the whole thing. Gene Roddenberry says he is "not a guru, and I don't have space-admiral ensignia on my pajamas. I'm just an ordinary guy who likes to sail and play golf.

"But when I attend one of the 'Star Trek' conventions, I'm treated like some kind of oracle. It's a little too much to take, and I try to limit myself to one convention a year."

Until 1966, Roddenberry was a journeyman script writer in the television mill, turning out scripts for "Playhouse 90," "Have Gun, Will Travel," etc.

"I was head writer for 'Have Gun,' and that was fun to do — it was a kind of fantasy," he recalled. "I also liked 'Naked City.'

"But after 15 years as a top free-lancer, I got tired of the limitations of television writing: it was impossible to deal realistically with anything concerning politics, sex or religion. There were simply too many taboos.

"So I decided to do what Jonathan Swift had done when he was faced with the same situation: I would create my own worlds, as he did with 'Gulliver's Travels.'

"Thus I could make my own comments about racial or religious prejudice, and they would seem to apply to another planet. The show could be appreciated on a pure adventure level by young people and the less sophisticated, and on an intellectual level by others."

Selling "Star Trek" wasn't easy. MGM said it was too expensive. CBS decided to go with another space series, "Lost in Space." Finally Lucille Ball gave it a try at Desilu.

"Desilu had tried and failed at every kind of pilot — priests, cowboys, private eyes — so Lucy decided to try something far out," Roddenberry said. "She and I had a good arrangement: I wouldn't tell her how to do comedy, and she wouldn't advise me on science fiction."

The first pilot cost $600,000 and was rejected by NBC as "too cerebral." It starred the late Jeffrey Hunter, who decided afterward he didn't want to do science fiction. He was replaced by William Shattner in the second pilot, which NBC accepted.

Oddly, "Star Trek" wasn't an instant success. Roddenberry's explanation: "It started in 1966-67, before man had even orbited the earth, and people were not yet space-conscious." The series continued for three years, then was canceled.

"That was before the networks were into demographics," said the producer-writer. "NBC didn't know that the 'Star Trek' audience was the young, buying Americans who are sought by sponsors.

"The cancellation brought a million letters of protest, and NBC suspected that I had somehow conspired to have them sent. Wow, if I could do that, I should be in politics."

"Star Trek" vindicated itself in syndication, becoming one of the biggest moneymakers for Paramount Pictures, which bought out Desilu. Small wonder a feature is in the works.

Sidney Poitier Has Changed His Mind

SIDNEY: Hung up on Joanna

ANN-MARGRET: Nothing off-color

D'ESTAING: A 'bad' translation

PEOPLE
By Robin Adams Sloan

Q: Has Sidney Poitier lost interest in Joanna Shimkus now that she's borne him two daughters out of wedlock? I hear he's hot for his new leading lady, an Indian girl. — H.W., Fairfield, Conn.

A: Absolutely not! Sidney's relationship with India's Persis Khambatta, his co-star in "The Wilby Conspiracy," is strictly professional. Sidney's so hung up on Joanna that they will probably marry soon. For ages Sidney disapproved of interracial marriage, but the successful wedlock of his friend black musician Quincy Jones to blonde actress Peggy Lipton has about changed Sidney's mind.

Remember what the Gov. of North Carolina said to the Gov. of South Carolina? Well, that's nothing compared to what the President of France, Giscard d'Estaing, said about the President of the U.S. after they met in Martinique. According to reporter Alex Cockburn, he said, "Je n'ai jamais recontre un tel imbecile." Or, "I've never met such an ass."

QUICKIES: Barbra Streisand still wants to make a movie with her idol Marlon Brando. "He's the greatest," sez she. . . Ann-Margret can't stand off-color stories. . . Erich "Love Story" Segal is having his own love story with an English girl named Karen. . . Audrey Hepburn's return to the screen as Maid Marian in "The Death of Robin Hood" will be overseen by the zany director Richard Lester in the campy mode he created for "The Four Musketeers."

Q: How did Ellen Burstyn and her "son" in "Alice Doesn't Live Here Anymore" really get along? In the movie they were something else. — P.P., Newark, N.J.

A: There's no love lost between the Oscar-nominated Ellen and her movie "son," Alfred Lutter III, whom you'll soon see in Woody Allen's "Love and Death." Alfred says of Ellen: "She was always hitting me in the mouth on the set. I told her not to, but I'm only a little boy." Ellen says, "Some little boy!"

QUESTION YOU NEVER ASKED: Which former U.S. President's daughter and her husband are expected to announce a "trial separation" any minute? We'll never tell, but we'll let you guess. Watch the papers.

Q: Was Richard Burton serious about that beautiful black actress Jeannie Bell? — S.D., Baltimore, Md.

A: Not for a minute. Richard was doing a big married friend in the business a favor, taking Jeannie out and pretending he was interested, to stop the pal's wife from worrying.

Total Recycling A 'Must'

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The former chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission says the United States must seek ways to recycle virtually all its materials to prevent future shortages similar to the current energy bind.

"In such a society, the present materials situation is literally reversed, all waste and scrap — what are now called 'secondary materials' — become our major resources, and our natural, untapped resources become our back-up supplies," said Dr. Glenn Seaborg.

The Nobel prize-winning chemist said the United States, with only six per cent of the world's population, consumes about 30 per cent of the world's production of minerals.

He added that before the nation can move towards a "recycle society," industry must shift to the design and production of consumer goods that are not obsolescent.

JOHN P. ROCHE
A Word Edgewise

For years we have been told by sundry solemn pundits that an American walkout in Southeast Asia wouldn't have the slightest impact elsewhere. Indeed, if one had the nerve to suggest that welshing on a commitment to the Republic of Vietnam could gain us a reputation as an international welsher, he was immediately put down as the village idiot or, perhaps even worse, a domino player. Europeans, Arabs, Israelis and other Asians, according to this litany, were far too intelligent to believe that the betrayal of an ally in Indochina would have the slightest implications on American policy elsewhere — particularly in the Middle East.

This theory was not without a certain naive charm: It was reminiscent of the queen in "Alice in Wonderland" who had to make herself believe seven impossible things before breakfast. To put it a different way, it required the full cooperation of the rest of the world to achieve any validity. Alas, most of the world is run by hard-boiled characters who are not impressed by this sort of wickerwork.

Take Indonesian Foreign Minister Adam Malik as a case in point. A tough, old anticommunist (in fact, a onetime Trotskyite), Malik looks at the map, notes that Soviet clients are shooting, or threatening to shoot, in Southeast Asia and the Middle East, and sums it up: same enemy, same war. On March 26 he put it starkly to a "Times" correspondent: "What is your commitment in the world? You (Americans) always tell us, 'My Seventh Fleet is here,' but if there's trouble, nothing happens."

A number of other, less-friendly precincts reported the same message, but in their instances with jubilation. Off in Peking, for example, Cambodian Prince Norodom Sihanouk took up dominoes with a vengeance, predicting that once the United States loses Cambodia, then South Vietnam, Laos, Thailand, the Philippines, Korea, then parts of the Middle East and Latin America would inexorably fall to progressive forces. And President Hafez Assad of Syria chimed in to note that our behavior in Asia was a litmus test of our staying poer in the Middle East.

However, the most devastating refutation of the irrelevance of American actions in Southeast Asia came from Israeli Minister of Defense Shimon Peres. In an interview published in the distinguished independent Tel Aviv paper "Ma'ariv" on March 26 (which a friend was good enough to translate from Hebrew — it got no coverage here), Peres sharply reaffirmed the "one world" principle. The tenor of his remarks can be gathered from the quote that was used as a headline: "Throughout the whole negotiations with Kissinger, there passed before my eyes the depressing pictures of Vietnamese women cradling their bleeding children."

The question, Peres said, that these pictures (as well as those of the fleeing Kurds and the Cambodians) brought to his mind was "the fate of small peoples or small states in the contemporary world, where it isn't just a question of East and West, or developed and developing countries, but between superpowers and the rest of the world. Does a small people have only a theoretical right of independence? Does it also have a real option to defend its independence? What is the fate of a small people that is abandoned by its great power friend and is confronted by the horrendous danger of losing its option to implement its right to independence?"

"The Answer, Mr. Minister, the Answer?" demanded the interviewer. "The answer that I gave myself and that guided me at every moment was we must not surrender," Peres replied. Later he added, "I have never had any time for nations that surrendered to the 'Zeitgeist' and gave up their will, determination and ability to make a stand because of physical considerations. Like many other Jews, I am deeply convinced that man is not a number but a creation with the ability by making a stand to insure his option for freedom."

By Robin Adams Sloan

Q: Has Sidney Poitier lost interest in Joanna Shimkus now that she's borne him two daughters out of wedlock? I hear he's hot for his new leading lady, an Indian girl. — H.W., Fairfield, Conn.

A: Absolutely not! Sidney's relationship with India's Persis Khambatta, his co-star in "The Wilby Conspiracy," is strictly professional. Sidney's so hung up on Joanna that they will probably marry soon. For ages Sidney disapproved of interracial marriage, but the successful wedlock of his friend black musician Quincy Jones to blonde actress Peggy Lipton has about changed Sidney's mind.

Remember what the Gov. of North Carolina said to the Gov. of South Carolina? Well, that's nothing compared to what the President of France, Giscard d'Estaing, said about the President of the U.S. after they met in Martinique. According to reporter Alex Cockburn, he said, "Je n'ai jamais recontre un tel imbecile." Or, "I've never met such an ass."

QUICKIES: Barbra Streisand still wants to make a movie with her idol Marlon Brando. "He's the greatest," sez she. . . Ann-Margret can't stand off-color stories. . . Erich "Love Story" Segal is having his own love story with an English girl named Karen. . . Audrey Hepburn's return to the screen as Maid Marian in "The Death of Robin Hood" will be overseen by the zany director Richard Lester in the campy mode he created for "The Four Musketeers."

Q: How did Ellen Burstyn and her "son" in "Alice Doesn't Live Here Anymore" really get along? In the movie they were something else. — P.P., Newark, N.J.

A: There's no love lost between the Oscar-nominated Ellen and her movie "son," Alfred Lutter III, whom you'll soon see in Woody Allen's "Love and Death." Alfred says of Ellen: "She was always hitting me in the mouth on the set. I told her not to, but I'm only a little boy." Ellen says, "Some little boy!"

QUESTION YOU NEVER ASKED: Which former U.S. President's daughter and her husband are expected to announce a "trial separation" any minute? We'll never tell, but we'll let you guess. Watch the papers.

Q: Was Richard Burton serious about that beautiful black actress Jeannie Bell? — S.D., Baltimore, Md.

A: Not for a minute. Richard was doing a big married friend in the business a favor, taking Jeannie out and pretending he was interested, to stop the pal's wife from worrying.

Total Recycling A 'Must'

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The former chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission says the United States must seek ways to recycle virtually all its materials to prevent future shortages similar to the current energy bind.

"In such a society, the present materials situation is literally reversed, all waste and scrap — what are now called 'secondary materials' — become our major resources, and our natural, untapped resources become our back-up supplies," said Dr. Glenn Seaborg.

The Nobel prize-winning chemist said the United States, with only six per cent of the world's population, consumes about 30 per cent of the world's production of minerals.

He added that before the nation can move towards a "recycle society," industry must shift to the design and production of consumer goods that are not obsolescent.

JOHN P. ROCHE
A World Edgewise

For years we have been told by sundry solemn pundits that an American walkout in Southeast Asia wouldn't have the slightest impact elsewhere. Indeed, if one had the nerve to suggest that welshing on a commitment to the Republic of Vietnam could gain us a reputation as an international welsher, he was immediately put down as the village idiot or, perhaps even worse, a domino player. Europeans, Arabs, Israelis and other Asians, according to this litany, were far too intelligent to believe that the betrayal of an ally in Indochina would have the slightest implications on American policy elsewhere — particularly in the Middle East.

This theory was not without a certain naive charm: It was reminiscent of the queen in "Alice in Wonderland" who had to make herself believe seven impossible things before breakfast. To put it a different way, it required the full cooperation of the rest of the world to achieve any validity. Alas, most of the world is run by hard-boiled characters who are not impressed by this sort of wickerwork.

Take Indonesian Foreign Minister Adam Malik as a case in point. A tough, old anticommunist (in fact, a onetime Trotskyite), Malik looks at the map, notes that Soviet clients are shooting, or threatening to shoot, in Southeast Asia and the Middle East, and sums it up: same enemy, same war. On March 26 he put it starkly to a "Times" correspondent: "What is your commitment in the world? You (Americans) always tell us, 'My Seventh Fleet is here,' but if there's trouble, nothing happens."

A number of other, less-friendly precincts reported the same message, but in their instances with jubilation. Off in Peking, for example, Cambodian Prince Norodom Sihanouk took up dominoes with a vengeance, predicting that once the United States loses Cambodia, then South Vietnam, Laos, Thailand, the Philippines, Korea, then parts of the Middle East and Latin America would inexorably fall to progressive forces. And President Hafez Assad of Syria chimed in to note that our behavior in Asia was a litmus test of our staying poer in the Middle East.

However, the most devastating refutation of the irrelevance of American actions in Southeast Asia came from Israeli Minister of Defense Shimon Peres. In an interview published in the distinguished independent Tel Aviv paper "Ma'ariv" on March 26 (which a friend was good enough to translate from Hebrew — it got no coverage here), Peres sharply reaffirmed the "one world" principle. The tenor of his remarks can be gathered from the quote that was used as a headline: "Throughout the whole negotiations with Kissinger, there passed before my eyes the depressing pictures of Vietnamese women cradling their bleeding children."

The question, Peres said, that these pictures (as well as those of the fleeing Kurds and the Cambodians) brought to his mind was "the fate of small peoples or small states in the contemporary world, where it isn't just a question of East and West, or developed and developing countries, but between superpowers and the rest of the world. Does a small people have only a theoretical right of independence? Does it also have a real option to defend its independence? What is the fate of a small people that is abandoned by its great power friend and is confronted by the horrendous danger of losing its option to implement its right to independence?"

"The Answer, Mr. Minister, the Answer?" demanded the interviewer. "The answer that I gave myself and that guided me at every moment was we must not surrender," Peres replied. Later he added, "I have never had any time for nations that surrendered to the 'Zeitgeist' and gave up their will, determination and ability to make a stand because of physical considerations. Like many other Jews, I am deeply convinced that man is not a number but a creation with the ability by making a stand to insure his option for freedom."

Troy Library Threatens Jail

TROY, Mich. (AP) — The Troy public library is threatening to throw city residents in jail for overdue books and unpaid fines.

Summonses being sent out at a rate of 25 a week are threatening the delinquent borrowers with up to 10 days in jail.

Officials say the suburban library has 300 delinquent borrowers with 600 overdue books and other materials valued at a total of about $3,000.

'Feeling Well' After Trip Fails

MOSCOW (AP) — Two cosmonauts who brought their Soyuz spacecraft back to earth after it failed to go into orbit are "feeling well," the Soviet news agency Tass reported today.

Tass blamed the failure of the space flight Saturday on the third-stage rocket which the announcement said went off course. An American expert on the Soviet space program said it was the first case of a booster failure in the history of manned space flight.

The latest failure in the trouble-plagued Soyuz series came a little more than three months before the joint mission July 15 by a U.S. Apollo crew and a Soyuz team.

EX-OLYMPIC STAR DIES

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP)—Dr. Harold M. Osborn, 75, a University of Illinois track star in the 1920s and two-time gold medal winner in the 1924 Olympics, died Saturday. Dr. Osborn, a retired osteopath, won the gold medal in the high jump with a record that stood for 10 years and the gold medal for the decathlon.

Troy Library Threatens Jail

TROY, Mich. (AP) — The Troy public library is threatening to throw city residents in jail for overdue books and unpaid fines.

Summonses being sent out at a rate of 25 a week are threatening the delinquent borrowers with up to 10 days in jail.

Officials say the suburban library has 300 delinquent borrowers with 600 overdue books and other materials valued at a total of about $3,000.

'Feeling Well' After Trip Fails

MOSCOW (AP) — Two cosmonauts who brought their Soyuz spacecraft back to earth after it failed to go into orbit are "feeling well," the Soviet news agency Tass reported today.

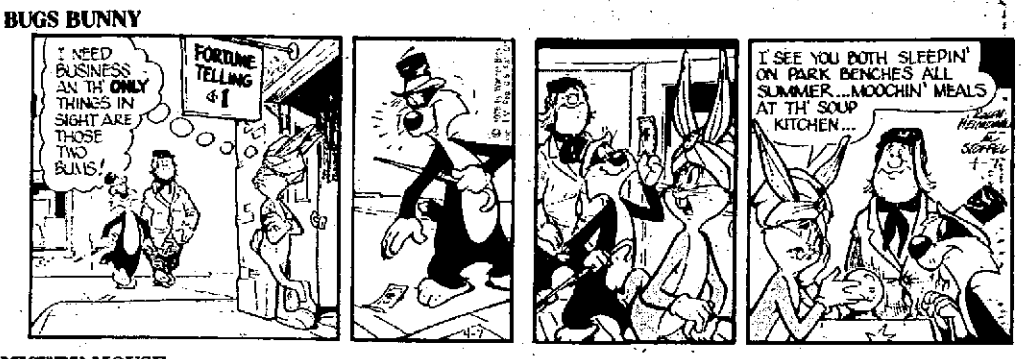

Tass blamed the failure of the space flight Saturday on the third-stage rocket which the announcement said went off course. An American expert on the Soviet space program said it was the first case of a booster failure in the history of manned space flight.

The latest failure in the trouble-plagued Soyuz series came a little more than three months before the joint mission July 15 by a U.S. Apollo crew and a Soyuz team.

Buchanan Review Board Rejects Clark Tax Appeal

By JOHN DYE
South Berrien Bureau

BUCHANAN — Clark Equipment company's appeal of a projected $463,000 increase in its personal property taxes this year has been turned down by the city's board of review.

Rudolph Rodighero, chairman of the three-man board, said that the board made the decision last Tuesday and a notice of its ruling was mailed to company Thursday.

Clark officials were unavailable for comment this morning.

"The board determined there would be no channe after a rather lengthy review," of material submitted by the company and John Leich, city assessor, Rodighero said.

Clark's approval of the assessment of real property taxes, estimated at $375,000 this year, compared to $245,000 last year, was also turned down, Rodighero said.

The boosts came because of increases in taxable value assessments by Leich.

A former Buchanan assessor himself, Rodighero described negotiations between the company and the board as "very amicable."

Unless a further appeal is successful, Clark stands to pay an estimated $1.2 million in personal property taxes on holdings within the Buchanan city limits, compared to $736,194 paid last year.

The amount, according to Leich, was determined by applying last year's total tax rate levied in the city of 53.7 mills against the projected assessment.

The personal property tax increase, according to Leich, stems from a projected $8.7 million increase in taxable value of the firm's property.

Last year, the property was valued at $13.5 million, while this year it was valued at $22.3 million, Leich said. Real property was valued last year at $4.5 million, while this year the figure has been set at about $7 million.

Leich said earlier that the increase in the personal property assessment was based on his use of data supplied last summer by the company after it failed to file a 1975 personal property tax statement before the Feb. 20 deadline set by state law.

Another factor in the increase was a state requirement to assess personal property at 50 per of its true market value this year, Leich said. He said in previous years the assessment rate was lower than 50 per cent and then brought up to the half-way level by application of an equalization factor.

NEWS OF MARKETS

Market Descent Continues

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market dropped back today in a continuation of last week's steady descent.

The opening Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down about two points, and losers held an 8-5 lead over gainers on the New York Stock Exchange.

Analysts noted an absence of any favorable news to generate buying interest.

They also said investors seemed generally uneasy over interest rate prospects in view of the recent upsurge in bond market rates and signs of leveling off in the bank prime lending rate after several months of declines.

Today's prices included Sony, down 1/4 at 9 3/8; Ford Motor, off 1/4 at 34 7/8; Monsanto, down 1/4 at 55, and General Electric, off 1/2 at 44 5/8.

On Friday the Dow Jones industrial average slipped 4.93 to 747.26, finishing an all-downhill week with a net 23.00 loss.

Losers outnumbered gainers by about a 5-3 margin in turnover of 14.14 million shares on the NYSE.

The Big Board's composite index gave up .29 to 42.98.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was off .13 at 79.01.

New Plant Underway For Clark

ASHEVILLE, N.C., — Congressman Roy A. Taylor (D-N.C.) and officials of Clark Equipment company, Buchanan, Mich., broke ground last week for a multi-million dollar tractor shovel manufacturing plant near here, according to a company announcement.

The new plant will cover 309,000 square feet and will be built on a 50-acre site in Skyland, N.C., just outside Asheville. Clark will fabricate and assemble 1 to 2½-cubic yard tractor shovels at the plant for customers in the construction and mining industries.

The new facility is scheduled for completion by mid-1976 and will employ about 500 peoplle when it reaches full production, the announcement said.

In his address to about 150 people attending the ceremony, Taylor said, "We welcome Clark Equipment to North Carolina and we look forward to great things happening for Clark, for the people it will employ here and for the Asheville-Skyland area."

Also speaking at the ceremonies, Edward T. Donahue, vice president and general manager for Clark's construction machinery division, Benton Harbor, said Clark's net sales in 1974 totaled $1.37 billion.

"More significantly, the company's major growth has come in the last decade," Donahue said. "Ten years ago, Clark's sales were just over $400 million, a figure that the construction machinery alone was able to surpass in 1974 with $506 million in sales."

"The construction machinery group — to which this plant will be a major contributor — accounted for 37 percent of corporate sales in 1974," Donahue said.

Products manufactured by the group include tractor shovels — which will be produced in Asheville — elevating scrapers, dozers, log skidders, log loaders, cranes, power graders and excavators.

Donahue pointed out that "North Carolina and this part of the country figure prominently in Clark's plans. Clark's general products group will complete a major transmission plant in Rockingham, N.C., later this year, and the company's material handling group recently opened a new lift truck plant not too far away in Georgetown, Ky."

"In fact," Donahue added, "Clark plans to spend well in excess of $50 million for plant expansions and machinery in 1975. The growth of the construction machinery group, specifically, has been both significant and steady, and I think that holds plenty of good news for the Asheville-Skyland area."

Clark is a manufacturer of construction machinery, material handling equipment, automotive components and commercial refrigeration equipment.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

Precious Metal Is For Professionals

By SAM SHULSKY

Q. I am a novice in investing and wonder about putting money into gold coins or "junk" silver. What about trading in futures contracts in other countries' monies including shorting them?

A. You might as well have asked: "I am shy with girls. How do I win the beauty on our block?" Dealing in gold and silver — in any form — is a full-time job for a professional. There is no way for me to promise you that the old coins or the "junk" silver you want to buy will rise in price. We have had sensational advances in the prices of precious metals in the past, although the most recent market history has been less than exciting.

If you are asking me if gold will go to $200, or $300, or $400 an ounce by 1980, or even sooner, I beg to be excused — I don't know.

When you talk about trading currency futures, you are really going "far out." Some of our biggest banks and most expert professional traders have suffered terrible losses in this market during the lst year. And when you ask about "shorting" all you are asking is whether it would make sense for you to gamble that the British pound or the French franc or the Italian lira will be lower next week or next month than it is today. Frankly, I can't see these pursuits for a doctor serving on a military base — especially when he has to ask what they are.

NEEDS MORE INCOME

Q. I am 74, in the 40 to 50 per cent tax bracket and I need more income. I have a long list of quality common stock plus about $300,000 in bonds and savings accounts. I want to leave an estate for my daughter.

A. When an investor in the 40 to 50 per cent income tax bracket says she needs more income, she really means: "I would like to retain more of the income I am getting now."

I could say that you have too much money in stocks and that your list is too long for a person your age, but it will make an excellent inheritance for your daughter. The "problem" lies with the roughly $300,000 now invested in taxable bonds and other dollar-fixed accounts. Assuming an average of even 7 per cent on these investments, you retain only $10,000 or $11,000 of the interest after taxes. If you were to shift the entire amount into tax-exempt bonds (and I would not advise so drastic a move) you could have about $18,000 a year tax-free from this sum. Of course you could also reduce the amount invested in low dividend common stock.

Mr. Shulsky welcomes written questions, but he will be able to provide answers only through the column.

For lists of growth and dividend stocks, please include a self-addressed, stamped envelope. Address your requests to Sam Shulsky, care of this newspaper.

ISRAELIS BARRED

NEW YORK (AP) — President Anwar Sadat of Egypt says Israeli-bound cargo may be allowed to pass through the Suez Canal when it is reopened in June but Israeli ships will be barred, according to Time Magazine.

Lawton Man Faces Bad Check Count

PAW PAW — Fred E. Carr, 34, Lawton, was scheduled to be arraigned in Van Buren Seventh District court here today on a charge of writing a $2,966 non-sufficient funds check.

Van Buren sheriff's deputies said Carr was arrested on a Jan. 23 warrant from the county prosecutor's office.

Carr is accused of not having funds to cover the check drawn on the Industrial State bank, Kalamazoo.

Carr was said by deputies to be a self-employed farmer. They said the check had apparently been written to cover farm supply purchases.

FALL SHORT

WASHINGTON (AP) — Grain production in the Soviet Union this year is expected by U.S. analysts to fall short of the goal set by Moscow but still could be the second largest harvest on record, the Agriculture Department said today.

Twin City Chamber Aiding Survey

The Twin Cities Area Chamber of Commerce is participating in the-City Cost-Of-Living survey conducted quarterly by the American Chamber of Commerce Researchers association (ACCRA), according to Roger H. Curry, executive vice president of the local chamber.

The survey is conducted quarterly under the auspices of the Chamber's Berrien County Economic Development department.

Begun in 1966, the survey has some 170 chambers in 45 states ascertain costs of specific items ranging from food to housing, medical care to entertainment.

ACCRA publishes two reports quarterly: The Consolidated Price report and the Inter-City Index report.

The Index offers a comparison of cost of living in communities across the nation, but is comparative only by individual quarters and not for other quarters.

Local chambers canvass the community to get at least three vendor prices for each item, where possible, and compute the average local price for each. The complete survey is turned in to ACCRA, which converts it by computer into a "reasonably accurate measurement of inter-city cost of living differences."

The Index shows the relative price level in participating cities compared to the U.S. average.

Chess Champion A 'Little Mouse'

NEW YORK (AP) — The executive director of the United States Chess Club says Anatoly Karpov's comments after being named the new chess champion of the world show the Russian is an unsportsman-like "little mouse" who is "whistling in relief" because he did not have to play against Bobby Fischer.

Edmund B. Edmondson said it was "utterly ridiculous grandstanding" for Karpov to say he was ready to play Fischer, but at the same time question whether the American was now "mentally capable of playing chess."

HOW TO READ THE HELP WANTED A dS

As unemployment, underemployment and forced withdrawals from an antog mistic job market continue to mount while the 1974-1975 slump probes for its near-term bottom, the help wanted section of your newspaper will become an ever more important link between you, the jobseeker, and you, the potential employer.

The job ads placed by private employment agencies in this nation's newspapers are traditionally a prime source to which millions of America's unemployed turn. But judging by the volume and emotionalism of letters to me whenever I wrote about these agencies, there is deep confusion (and misunderstanding) about their functions and ethics.

Here, therefore, are valuable guides prepared for you by Wendeen H. Eolis, president of the Assn. of Personnel Agencies of New York State.

—Look for the word "agency" in the ad to be certain that you have selected a licensed private employment agency. Private agencies are licensed and in most states must identify themselves as agencies.

— Get this fact straight: these agencies may never charge you a placement fee unless they obtain a job for you. If an agency advertises that some of its jobs are "fee paid," find out if the job to which you are being referred is "fee paid" and if there is any condition under which you could be obligated to pay any part of a placement fee. If the agency advertises that there is "never a fee to the applicant," the agency may not collect a fee from you under any circumstances.

—Consider multiple job classifications that may have work available for your background and skills and look under all categories that may apply to you. (For instance, if you have clerical and typing skills, you might qualify for positions under the heading of receptionist or perhaps even secretary).

—Look for agencies that handle a large number of jobs for your background and skills; an agency that regularly places people in your field is probably your best bet. The National Employment Assn., which has affiliates such as the APANY throughout the U.S., will offer in June a directory of all its members each agency. (A copy will cost $3.50, though. If you wish to contact the NEA, the address is 2000 K. Str., N.W., Washington, D.C. 20006.

Student Aid Is Available At LMC

Students who plan to attend Lake Michigan college this summer or next fall and will require financial help can submit applications at this time.

Miss Margaret Crishal, director of financial aid and placement at LMC, said high school seniors in particular are urged to complete financial aid forms as early as possible. She added that regulations of the agency providing federal funds for student assistance require that new applications must be submitted for each academic year.

Student assistance is available in the form of jobs, loans and grants, according to the financial aid director.

Applications for summer work-study employment positions are being accepted, Miss Crishal said. To qualify for college work-study funds, the student must demonstrate financial need through submission of a Parent Confidential Financial statement. If the student is independent from his parents, he may establish financial need by submitting a Student Financial statement.

Uncle Sam and MONY have a great idea for people with no pension plan

Recently enacted U.S. Government legislation has made possible generous tax benefits for people with no pension plan.

Under the Pension Reform Act, you can contribute annually up to 15% of your earnings—not to exceed $1500—to a pension plan. You can deduct the entire amount from your taxable income for the year and pay no current income taxes on it whatsoever. In fact, you pay no taxes on it until retirement when, most likely, you will be earning less and in a far lower tax bracket. What's more, the money contributed draws interest and increases rapidly in your retirement fund. And you pay no taxes on the interest, either, until retirement.

Buchanan Review Board Rejects Clark Tax Appeal

By JOHN DYE
South Berrien Bureau

BUCHANAN — Clark Equipment company's appeal of a projected $463,000 increase in its personal property taxes this year has been turned down by the city's board of review.

Rudolph Rodighero, chairman of the three-man board, said that the board made the decision last Tuesday and a notice of its ruling was mailed to company Thursday.

Clark officials were unavailable for comment this morning.

"The board determined there would be no change after a rather lengthy review," of material submitted by the company and John Leich, city assessor, Rodighero said.

Clark's approval of the assessment of real property taxes, estimated at $375,000 this year, compared to $245,000 last year, was also turned down, Rodighero said.

The boosts came because of increases in taxable value assessments by Leich.

A former Buchanan assessor himself, Rodighero described negotiations between the company and the board as "very amicable."

Unless a further appeal is successful, Clark stands to pay an estimated $1.2 million in personal property taxes on holdings within the Buchanan city limits, compared to $736,194 paid last year.

The amount, according to Leich, was determined by applying last year's total tax rate levied in the city of 53.7 mills against the projected assessment.

The personal property tax increase, according to Leich, stems from a projected $8.7 million increase in taxable value of the firm's property.

Last year, the property was valued at $13.5 million, while this year it was valued at $22.3 million, Leich said. Real property was valued last year at $4.5 million, while this year the figure has been set at about $7 million.

Leich said earlier that the increase in the personal property assessment was based on his use of data supplied last summer by the company after it failed to file a 1975 personal property tax statement before the Feb. 20 deadline set by state law.

Another factor in the increase was a state requirement to assess personal property at 50 per of its true market value this year, Leich said. He said in previous years the assessment rate was lower than 50 per cent and then brought up to the half-way level by application of an equalization factor.

NEWS OF MARKETS

Market Descent Continues

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market dropped back today in a continuation of last week's steady descent.

The opening Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down about two points, and losers held an 8-5 lead over gainers on the New York Stock Exchange.

Analysts noted an absence of any favorable news to generate buying interest.

They also said investors seemed generally uneasy over interest rate prospects in view of the recent upsurge in bond market rates and signs of leveling off in the bank prime lending rate after several months of declines.

Today's prices included Sony, down ¼ at 9⅜; Ford Motor, off ¼ at 34⅞; Monsanto, down ¼ at 55; and General Electric, off ½ at 44⅝.

On Friday the Dow Jones industrial average slipped 4.93 to 747.26, finishing an all-downhill week with a net 23.00 loss.

Losers outnumbered gainers by about a 5-3 margin in turnover of 14.14 million shares on the NYSE.

The Big Board's composite index gave up .29 to 42.98.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was off .13 at 79.01.

New Plant Underway For Clark

ASHEVILLE, N.C., — Congressman Roy A. Taylor (D-N.C.) and officials of Clark Equipment company, Buchanan, Mich., broke ground last week for a multi-million dollar tractor shovel manufacturing plant near here, according to a company announcement.

The new plant will cover 309,000 square feet and will be built on a 50-acre site in Skyland, N.C., just outside Asheville. Clark will fabricate and assemble 1 to 2½-cubic yard tractor shovels at the plant for customers in the construction and mining industries.

The new facility is scheduled for completion by mid-1976 and will employ about 500 people when it reaches full production, the announcement said.

In his address to about 150 people attending the ceremony, Taylor said, "We welcome Clark Equipment to North Carolina and we look forward to great things happening for Clark, for the people it will employ here and for the Asheville-Skyland area."

Also speaking at the ceremonies, Edward T. Donahue, vice president and general manager for Clark's construction machinery division, Benton Harbor, said Clark's net sales in 1974 totaled $1.37 billion.

"More significantly, the company's major growth has come in the last decade," Donahue said. "Ten years ago, Clark's sales were just over $400 million, a figure that the construction machinery group alone was able to surpass in 1974 with $508 million in sales."

"The construction machinery group — to which this plant will be a major contributor — accounted for 37 percent of corporate sales in 1974," Donahue said.

Products manufactured by the group include tractor shovels — which will be produced in Asheville — elevating scrapers, dozers, log skidders, log loaders, cranes, motor graders and excavators.

Donahue pointed out that North Carolina and this part of the country figure prominently in Clark's plans. Clark's general products group will complete a major transmission plant in Rockingham, N.C., later this year, and the company's material handling group recently opened a new lift truck plant not too far away in Georgetown, Ky.

"In fact," Donahue added, "Clark plans to spend well in excess of $50 million for plant expansions and machinery in 1975. The growth of the construction machinery group, specifically, has been both significant and steady, and I think that holds plenty of good news for the Asheville-Skyland area."

Clark is a manufacturer of construction machinery, material handling equipment, automotive components and commercial refrigeration equipment.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

Precious Metal Is For Professionals

By SAM SHULSKY

Q. I am a novice in investing and wonder about putting money into gold coins or "junk" silver. What about trading in futures contracts in other countries' monies including shorting them?

A. You might as well have asked: "I am shy with girls. How do I win the beauty on our block?" Dealing in gold and silver — in any form — is a full-time job for a professional. There is no way for me to promise you that the old coins or the "junk" silver you want to buy will rise in price. We have had sensational advances in the prices of precious metals in the past, although the most recent market history has been less than exciting.

If you are asking me if gold will go to $200, or $300, or $400 an ounce by 1980, or even sooner, I beg to be excused — I don't know.

When you talk about trading currency futures, you are really going "far out." Some of our biggest banks and most expert professional traders have suffered terrible losses in this market during the 1st year. And when you ask about "shorting" all you are asking is whether it would make sense for you to gamble that the British pound or the French franc or the Italian lira will be lower next week or next month than it is today. Frankly, I can't see these pursuits for a doctor serving on a military base — especially when he has to ask what they are.

NEEDS MORE INCOME

Q. I am 74, in the 40 to 50 per cent tax bracket and I need more income. I have a long list of quality common stock plus about $300,000 in bonds and savings accounts. I want to leave an estate for my daughter.

A. When an investor in the 40 to 50 per cent income tax bracket says she needs more income, she really means: "I would like to retain more of the income I am getting now."

I could say that you have too much money in stocks and that your list is too long for a person your age, but it will make an excellent inheritance for your daughter. The "problem" lies with the roughly $300,000 now invested in taxable bonds and other dollar-fixed accounts. Assuming an average of even 7 per cent on these investments, you retain only $10,000 or $11,000 of the interest after taxes. If you were to shift the entire amount into tax-exempt bonds (and I would not advise so drastic a move) you could have about $18,000 a year tax-free from this sum. Of course you could also reduce the amount invested in low dividend common stock.

Mr. Shulsky welcomes written questions, but he will be able to provide answers only through the column.

For lists of growth and dividend stocks, please include a self-addressed, stamped envelope. Address your requests to Sam Shulsky, care of this newspaper.

ISRAELIS BARRED

NEW YORK (AP) — President Anwar Sadat of Egypt says Israeli-bound cargo may be allowed to pass through the Suez Canal when it is reopened in June but Israeli ships will be barred, according to Time Magazine.

Lawton Man Faces Bad Check Count

PAW PAW — Fred E. Carr, 34, Lawton, was scheduled to be arraigned in Van Buren Seventh District court here today on a charge of writing a $2,966 non-sufficient funds check.

Van Buren sheriff's deputies said Carr was arrested on a Jan. 23 warrant from the county prosecutor's office.

Carr is accused of not having funds to cover the check drawn on the Industrial State bank, Kalamazoo.

Carr was said by deputies to be a self-employed farmer. They said the check had apparently been written to cover farm supply purchases.

FALL SHORT

WASHINGTON (AP) — Grain production in the Soviet Union this year is expected by U.S. analysts to fall short of the goal set by Moscow but still could be the second largest harvest on record, the Agriculture Department said today.

Twin City Chamber Aiding Survey

The Twin Cities Area Chamber of Commerce is participating in the City Cost-Of-Living survey conducted quarterly by the American Chamber of Commerce Researchers association (ACCRA), according to Roger H. Curry, executive vice president of the local chamber.

The survey is conducted quarterly under the auspices of the Chamber's Berrien County Economic Development department.

Begun in 1966, the survey has some 170 chambers in 45 states ascertain costs of specific items ranging from food to housing, medical care to entertainment.

ACCRA publishes two reports quarterly: The Consolidated Price report and the Inter-City Index report.

The Index offers a comparison of cost of living in communities across the nation, but is comparative only by individual quarters and not for other quarters.

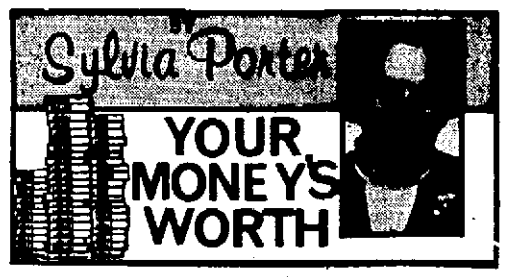

Local chambers canvass the community to get at least three vendor prices for each item, where possible, and compute the average local price for each. The complete survey is turned in to ACCRA, which converts it by computer into a "reasonably accurate measurement of intercity cost of living differences."

The Index shows the relative price level in participating cities compared to the U.S. average.

Chess Champion A 'Little Mouse'

NEW YORK (AP) — The executive director of the United States Chess Club says Anatoly Karpov's comments after being named the new chess champion of the world show the Russian is an unsportsman-like "little mouse" who is "whistling in relief" because he did not have to play against Bobby Fischer.

Edmund B. Edmondson said it was "utterly ridiculous grandstanding" for Karpov to say he was ready to play Fischer, but at the same time question whether the American was now "mentally capable of playing chess."

HOW TO READ THE HELP WANTED A dS

As unemployment, underemployment and forced withdrawals from an antog mistic job market continue to mount while the 1974-1975 slump probes for its near-term bottom, the help wanted section of your newspaper will become an ever more important link between you, the jobseeker, and you, the potential employer.

The job ads placed by private employment agencies in this nation's newspapers are traditionally a prime source to which millions of America's unemployed turn. But judging by the volume and emotionalism of letters to me whenever I wrote about these agencies, there is deep confusion (and misunderstanding) about their functions and ethics.

Here, therefore, are valuable guides prepared for you by Wendeen H. Eolis, president of the Assn. of Personnel Agencies of New York State.

—Look for the word "agency" in the ad to be certain that you have selected a licensed private employment agency. Private agencies are licensed and in most states must identify themselves as agencies.

— Get this fact straight: these agencies may never charge you a placement fee unless they obtain a job for you. If an agency advertises that some of its jobs are "fee paid," find out if the job to which you are being referred is "fee paid" and if there is any condition under which you could be obligated to pay any part of a placement fee. If the agency advertises that there is "never a fee to the applicant," the agency may not collect a fee from you under any circumstances.

—Consider multiple job classifications that may have work available for your background and skills and look under all categories that may apply to you. (For instance, if you have clerical and typing skills, you might qualify for positions under the heading of receptionist or perhaps even secretary).

—Look for agencies that handle a large number of jobs for your background and skills; an agency that regularly places people in your field is probably your best bet. The National Employment Assn., which has affiliates such as the APANY throughout the U.S., will offer in June a directory of all its members each agency. (A copy will cost $3.50, though. If you wish to contact the NEA, the address is 2000 K. Str., N.W., Washington, D.C. 20006.

—Since jobs that are advertised have been placed in the newspapers days before they appear and the same job may be listed by the employer with more than one agency, the advertised job may not be available by the time you visit the agency. So inquire about the job's availability before you go to the agency. If you are willing to accept other positions, ask about additional jobs for which you might qualify. The agency also may "market" your background to appropriate companies of interest to you.

—Be wary of agencies that advertise the same glamorous and unique positions for several weeks and watch out for "cutesy" language which fails to describe the job Also be cautious in answering ads that emphasize benefits rather than job duties. Agencies must, warns Ms. Eolis, include the information that is pertinent to the job.

—Don't be misled into thinking that the business in which the company operates must be specifically related in to the job available. Illustration: an adoption agency is in the business of working with children but you can hardly expect to be doing this if your job is for a switchboard operator at the adoption agency.

— Understand that advertised salaries may reflect an employer's budget but not necessarily be a promise to pay you that salary. The salaries offered will be related to your own individual skills, experience, work history and current market levels.

City police also said a stereo system valued at $799 was stolen from the home of Brenda Pierce, of 608½ Green avenue, Benton Harbor.

Benton township police said a tape player and a stereo with a total value of $215 was stolen from the home of Bernard Hall, 1985 Union street, apartment 1A.

A man, identified as Jack James Johnson, 53, of 1160 Pavone street, Benton Harbor, was booked on a charge of carrying a concealed weapon, after state troopers from the Benton Harbor post confiscated a loaded handgun early Sunday morning.

Troopers Joseph VanOosterhout and Ralph Drumm said the arrest was made in a parking lot at East Main and Pine street, Benton township. Troopers said they found a man in a car with a gun in his hand.

Two young men were arrested Sunday on charges of possession of marijuana after a minor accident, state police of the Benton Harbor post said.

Booked and lodged at the Berrien county jail were Joe Allen Masters, 18, Empire avenue, Benton township; and Dennis Robert Tillman, 17, also Empire avenue, Benton township.

Troopers Michael Boone and Douglas Murphy said Tillman was also charged with reckless driving and failure to stop at the scene of a property damage accident. Boone and Murphy reported the accident occurred at 8:15 p.m. Sunday on Napier avenue at Union street, Fairplain.

The car allegedly driven by Tillman was involved in a collision with another auto, troopers said. A driver and a passenger from one of the cars fled on foot. Murphy and Boone said Masters and Tillman were arrested shortly after the crash, and three ounces of suspected marijuana were found in a car.

An Elkhart, Ind., man was arrested early Sunday on a charge of possession of marijuana.

Patrolmen Larry Eichelberg and Kevin Kramp said Richard Dine, 24, Elkhart, was arrested after officers investigated a parked car on Vineland road. A quantity of alleged marijuana was seized.

A man who was hurt in a family fight was arrested after police discovered a bench warrant had been issued for his arrest, Benton Harbor police said.

Steven Parker, 21, of 1946 East Britain avenue, Benton township, was arrested on a warrant issued in December charging him with failure to pay fines and court costs.

Police said Parker had been treated for a head cut and released from Mercy hospital. No one was charged in connection with the family fight, police reported.

South Haven Thefts Are Investigated

SOUTH HAVEN — City police investigated several larceny and theft reports over the weekend.

James McNath, 515 Chambers street, said his pickup truck was stolen from in front of his home sometime Saturday night.

Three out-of-town residents who came to South Haven to fish reported larcenies from their autos. Henry Weber, of Oak Lawn, Ill., said a tool box and tools valued at $250 were taken from his car Saturday, while it was parked near the south beach.

James Kooi, of Schoolcraft, said a tool box and tools valued at $400 were taken from his auto Saturday while parked at the Black River park.

Richard Bale, route 4 Fennville, said a fishing rod valued at $56, was taken from his car Sunday while it was parked at the Black River park.

Mary Hard, 116 Van Buren street, South Haven, said her home was entered Sunday while she was in church and that a television and clock valued at $175 were taken.

Drivers Arrested Two Times

Two young men were issued traffic tickets for allegedly drag racing on M-139—twice within a 24-hour period over the weekend, according to Benton township police.

And, each of the tickets were handed out by the same officers, Ron Eagan and Dave Nelson.

The tickets were issued to David Frizzell, 21, of 400 LaSalle avenue, St. Joseph, and Terry Rach, 21, of Berrien Springs.

Patrolmen Eagan and Nelson said they cited both for allegedly drag racing in their cars on M-139 Friday night. The officers reported seeing the same two cars moving through the Fairplain plaza lot about 10 p.m. Saturday. The officers said they waited and watched.

The two cars moved onto M-139 and the drivers "floored their vehicles in a street drag race", the officers reported.

The officers again issued tickets.

Passerby Reports Car Blaze

Benton township firemen extinguished a car fire early today after a passing motorist saw the flames and called police.

Firemen said fire destroyed the interior of a car owned by Robert Poledna, Route 5, Dowagiac. Damage was estimated at $1,000.

The car was parked at Benton township park off Zollar road, firemen indicated. A man identified as Donald Wilson, 306 Royalton Heights, St. Joseph, saw the fire while he was driving on I-94 then reported it to the state police post in Benton Harbor.

plum into the maws of the invading Communist hordes. That is from 500 to 1,000 million (as compared to 250 million needed to stem the tide of invasion).

Since many senators (and voters likewise) think primarily or ONLY of the purse strings involved — and not in terms of Communist occupation, broken national treaties and promises, or human sacrifice — this loss of such valued military stores to the invader (if it had been pointed out by the President) could have — and likely would have — been the clincher in getting approval for the funds needed to stop the invaders at least from capturing our supplies in their path — even if not stopping their ultimate takeover of all of South Vietnam.

Few persons (voters) would have blamed their congressman for having voted for the expenditure of that requested 250 million if it would have meant the saving of from 500 to 1,000 million! Not only did we lose that much equipment which could have been retrieved from South Vietnam for other use (if it were not used against the invading Communist armies) but we lost it to our recognized enemy — which in effect means we have lost double that amount of one-half to one full billion dollars! We lost that much in value — the enemy gained it (for nothing). Therefore the monetary loss is doubled. To make matters even worse — those supplies which we took to South Vietnam to stem the invasion can now be turned around and can be used by the invader to insure their conquering of the entire country and the annihilation of the remaining millions of innocents! The shame of our stupidity in Vietnam (not only now but from the time our first men were put under attack in that part of Asia) shall go down in the indelible pages of history! We not only have lost many thousands of American lives in that "don't fight to win" war, and countless millions of dollars, but we have lost our international prestige, a good portion of our honor, and perhaps one day it will be learned we have lost our own freedom from an avoidable invasion upon ourselves in our own land!

Torture Victim Ignored

DETROIT (AP) — A 15-year-old Detroit girl was beaten and tortured over the course of two days last week. Even though a neighbor heard the commotion, police were not alerted until it was too late.

Three young men and a woman were arraigned Saturday and charged with first-degree murder in the death of Linda Williams.

Police said Gregory Lewis, 19, Audrie Watson, 19, Gary Bedford, 19, and Haven Walk, 22, began the beatings Wednesday morning and continued until Thursday evening.

It began after Mrs. Watson, who lived with Miss Williams, discovered that about $95 was missing from her cashed welfare check, police said.

Police said the quartet began beating Miss Williams with the wooden rolls from window shades, breaking 12 of them. Police said they then whipped her with a long telephone cord and beat her with a broom handle and baseball bat.

The Wayne County coroner's report listed the cause of death as "multiple blunt force injuries to the entire head and body."

Miss Williams escaped at one point and went to a downstairs flat and begged for help. Her 33-year-old neighbor said Miss Williams pleaded, "You gotta hide me, they're going to kill me."

But she told police Bedford and Mrs. Watson found Miss Williams and dragged her back upstairs.

The neighbor said she neglected to call police because "quite a bit of that goes on up there."

She said she heard screaming and pounding in the upstairs apartment from 10:30 a.m. Wednesday until about 9 p.m., then again from 10 a.m. to 7:30 p.m. on Thursday.

After the beatings, Miss Williams was dragged to a vacant apartment across the hall. Emergency Medical Service received an anonymous phone call and found her dead on the floor.

Police said they arrested Mrs. Watson and Lewis Thursday night in the flat where the beatings took place, while Bedford and Walk were arrested on Friday.

Preliminary examination was set for April 16.

Troopers Michael Boone and Douglas Murphy said Tillman was also charged with reckless driving and failure to stop at the scene of a property damage accident. Boone and Murphy reported the accident occurred at 8:15 p.m. Sunday on Napier avenue at Union street, Fairplain.

The car allegedly driven by Tillman was involved in a collision with another auto, troopers said. A driver and a passenger from one of the cars fled on foot. Murphy and Boone said Masters and Tillman were arrested shortly after the crash, and three ounces of suspected marijuana were found in a car.

An Elkhart, Ind., man was arrested early Sunday on a charge of possession of marijuana.

Patrolmen Larry Eichelberg and Kevin Kramp said Richard Dine, 24, Elkhart, was arrested after officers investigated a parked car on Vineland road. A quantity of alleged marijuana was seized.

A man who was hurt in a family fight was arrested after police discovered a bench warrant had been issued for his arrest, Benton Harbor police said.

Steven Parker, 21, of 1946 East Britain avenue, Benton township, was arrested on a warrant issued in December charging him with failure to pay fines and court costs.

Police said Parker had been treated for a head cut and released from Mercy hospital. No one was charged in connection with the family fight, police reported.

Drivers Arrested Two Times

Two young men were issued traffic tickets for allegedly drag racing on M-139—twice within a 24-hour period over the weekend, according to Benton township police.

And, each of the tickets were handed out by the same officers, Ron Eagan and Dave Nelson.

The tickets were issued to David Frizzell, 21, of 400 LaSalle avenue, St. Joseph, and Terry Rach, 21, of Berrien Springs.

Patrolmen Eagan and Nelson said they cited both for allegedly drag racing in their cars on M-139 Friday night. The officers reported seeing the same two cars moving through the Fairplain plaza lot about 10 p.m. Saturday. The officers said they waited and watched.

The two cars moved onto M-139 and the drivers "floored their vehicles in a street drag race", the officers reported.

Torture Victim Ignored

DETROIT (AP) — A 15-year-old Detroit girl was beaten and tortured over the course of two days last week. Even though a neighbor heard the commotion, police were not alerted until it was too late.

Three young men and a woman were arraigned Saturday and charged with first-degree murder in the death of Linda Williams.

Police said Gregory Lewis, 19, Audrie Watson, 19, Gary Bedford, 19, and Haven Walk, 22, began the beatings Wednesday morning and continued until Thursday evening.

It began after Mrs. Watson, who lived with Miss Williams, discovered that about $95 was missing from her cashed welfare check, police said.

Police said the quartet began beating Miss Williams with the wooden rolls from window shades, breaking 12 of them. Police said they then whipped her with a long telephone cord and beat her with a broom handle and baseball bat.

The Wayne County coroner's report listed the cause of death as "multiple blunt force injuries to the entire head and body."

Miss Williams escaped at one point and went to a downstairs flat and begged for help. Her 33-year-old neighbor said Miss Williams pleaded, "You gotta hide me, they're going to kill me."

But she told police Bedford and Mrs. Watson found Miss Williams and dragged her back upstairs.

The neighbor said she neglected to call police because "quite a bit of that goes on up there."

She said she heard screaming and pounding in the upstairs apartment from 10:30 a.m. Wednesday until about 9 p.m., then again from 10 a.m. to 7:30 p.m. on Thursday.

After the beatings, Miss Williams was dragged to a vacant apartment across the hall. Emergency Medical Service received an anonymous phone call and found her dead on the floor.

Police said they arrested Mrs. Watson and Lewis Thursday night in the flat where the beatings took place, while Bedford and Walk were arrested on Friday.

Preliminary examination was set for April 16.
